

America's Boy Scout Movement Born in London Fog of 1910

The Boy Scouts of America will be 50 years old Monday. Some 5,000,000 Scouts and Scouters (adults) from Puerto Rico to Alaska, from Hawaii to the Virgin Islands, at mass observances will recite aloud the 12 tenets of the Scout Laws: "A Scout is trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent." The long khaki line, winding down through the years, has included fat boys, thin boys, short boys, tall boys, the blind, the deaf, the lame, boys of talent and ability, boys who were shy and introverted, boys of every size, shape and color, boys who began as cubs at the age of 8 and continued through exploring the program for older boys, on into the ranks of adult leadership.

THE MAN WHO was instrumental in forming a committee of youth leaders to gather the numerous boy organizations into one permanent organization was William D. Boyce, a 51-year-old Chicago publisher. The group obtained a federal charter protecting the Scout name and uniform from commercialism.

Boyce came to Scouting in a London fog.

He was in England on a visit early in 1910 and had lost his way in the London muck when out of the gloom appeared a small boy, dressed in a wide brim hat and short pants. "May I be of service, sir?" The publisher accepted the boy's offer to lead him through the fog and upon arriving at his destination offered the boy a shilling. The boy declined. "I'm one of Baden-Powell's Boy Scouts," he explained. "And a Scout never accepts anything for being helpful." Boyce made it his business to learn about scouting. He looked up Baden-Powell, head of the recently formed movement.

Robert Baden-Powell, soldier, artist, author, was a spectacular figure of a man who might have sprung full blown from the pages written by his close friend Rudyard Kipling. An officer with the British army in India and Africa, he had been a polo champion, a big game hunter, a tamer of wild horses and a spy for the British in Russia, Greece, Turkey and Italy. Baden-Powell returned from the Boer War to find himself, at 43, a national hero and the youngest major general in the service. For 217 days his garrison of

Probe Asked of Dominican Persecutions

Venezuela Says Trujillo Regime Strangles Liberty

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Venezuela disclosed Saturday it will ask the council of the Organization of American States, Monday, to conduct an inquiry into reports of political suppression in the Dominican Republic.

Venezuelan Ambassador Marcos Falcon Briceño said a special meeting of the council will be convened to hear the Venezuelan charges against the Dominican government.

Falcon Briceño said that mass arrests and persecutions of political opponents by Dominican Dictator Rafael T. Trujillo "are gravely increasing tensions in the whole Caribbean area."

FALCON BRICENO said he has given Council President Vicente Sanchez Gavito of Mexico "a detailed verbal account" of his government's charge that the Dominican regime is guilty of "flagrant violations" of the principle of human rights enunciated in the OAS charter.

Boy Finds Skeleton in Cliffside

A wooden, box-type coffin containing human bones judged to have been buried approximately 20 years, was found Saturday in a seaside cliff near White's Point in San Pedro.

The casket and bones were spied by an unidentified boy, playing in the area, San Pedro Detective J. A. Henze said.

The box contained a skull, several ribs and a thigh bone. Detectives said the size of the skull, plus the presence of wisdom teeth, indicated the skeleton was probably that of an adult woman.

Pieces of brown cloth, bearing rusted snap fasteners, also were found in the box, officers said.

The box, approximately six feet long, had been buried about five feet deep on a small mesa about 25 feet from the ocean.

WIND, RAIN and the pounding sea had eroded part of the cliff away, and one end of the redwood box was sticking out, Henze said. The area is near the Nike missile site in San Pedro.

Henze said the bones will be sent to the coroner's office. Detectives plan to make a more extensive investigation of the discovery site today. Removal of an overhang on the cliff is planned to prevent the subject, headed by Glenn Irvin of the Chamber of Commerce, He said sanction had been given for use of Chamber office space by Chamber Executive Vice President Harry J. Krusz, who described in 1959 there was a total of

Vice President Terms U.S. Defenses Adequate

NIXON SAYS Entry in Race 'Obvious'

By BOB HOUSER

Vice President Richard M. Nixon paid respect Saturday to the public's patience and to political timing in noting that "a man with very good qualities might not be elected" if he ignores either.

In a taped interview with commentator Paul Coates, scheduled for telecast over KTTV (11) at 10:15 p.m. Monday, Nixon explained that a formal announcement, complete with press conference, would be "gilding the lily," because his candidacy is obvious from his ascent to primary contests in New Hampshire, Ohio and Oregon.

IF YOU begin too soon, he said, "the public gets tired of you. And the public gets tired of having their favorite TV programs pre-empted by political speakers."

The Vice President credited President Eisenhower with increasing the stature of No. 2 office, making the Vice President "the President's right arm." The Vice Presidency "will never be the same as a result of this administration," he added.

NIXON SAID he feels the practice of balancing a presidential ticket to get more votes is obsolete. He said this goal of selecting a Northerner and a Southerner or a conservative and a liberal, or balancing the ticket by religious faith should not be the basis

Takes Firm Stand Behind Ike Policies

Says No 'Sane' Man Would Risk Attack on U.S.

By The Associated Press

Vice President Richard M. Nixon Saturday expressed confidence in the United States' present military preparedness.

"At the present time," he said, "our present course seems adequate."

Speaking before 1,100 members of the California Newspaper Publishers Assn. in Los Angeles, the Vice President cautioned against using what he called "the numbers game" to determine this nation's strength.

"The complex of strength—considering missiles, bombers with their Hound Dog missiles, Polaris submarines that will be coming along and all the other forces—is what counts," he said.

HE SAID he considers this country's overall strength such that no potential aggressor can attack with the certainty that he will knock out everything we have.

"And that certainly is important because the aggressor would have to take a blow which no man who is sane would take," he added.

Nixon said he feels this situation will exist in "1961, '62 and '63—the years ahead."

The Vice President thus seemed to be placing himself firmly behind the Eisenhower administration's defense policies which have been criticized this week by some of the nation's leading military officers.

NIXON SAID the nation's military posture must be constantly re-examined and subjected to constructive criticism to keep it abreast of fast-changing times.

"In the final analysis," he said, "despite disagreement, somebody at the top has to make the decisions. I have confidence in the President, Gen. Nathan Twining (chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff) and the other Joint Chiefs who made these decisions."

Nixon said he felt the international issue will be the "overwhelming" one in the 1960 presidential campaign.

The Vice President is considered virtually a shoo-in

Mystery of the Noisy Ghost

By JOY MILLER AP Newsfeatures Writer

If your house has to be haunted, and you have any choice of ghosts, by all means pick a poltergeist.

This prankish ghost is the extrovert of the spirit world. It may toss your furniture around, keep your nerves on edge waiting for the next cup to float through the air, drop lighted matches from your ceiling.

But it won't stay long—a couple of months at most—and it won't hurt you, except maybe for a playful pinch.

If your noisy boarder follows the pattern of recent mysterious happenings in the news, it might mean a lot of extra housework to pick up the pieces.

In Baltimore a three-generation family, including a teenage grandson, reported flying sugar bowls, falling glassware and exploding bottles. And an elderly couple, with a visiting 16-year-old grandson, said objects flew across rooms, a davenport and refrigerator overturned and lumberjacks jumped off shelves at their farm home near Guttenberg, Iowa.

MAYBE, THOUGH THE FUN of all the entertaining will make up for the extra work. There's no doubt you'll have company. Day and night they come trooping to your door.

Firemen, police, (the FBI declined, in the Baltimore case), utility men, plumbers, homebuilders, men with all kinds of detecting apparatus, reporters, photographers, spiritualistic mediums, college professors studying psychic phenomena, strangers with surefire remedies remembered from the old country, people who offer to exorcise the spirit for a small fee, both real and would-be authorities on poltergeists and the just plain curious.

"You really get worn out, with people constantly coming and going, and with all the phone calls," recalls Mrs. James M. Herrmann of Seaford, Long Island.

In February, two years ago, the Herrmann family, which included Jimmy, 12, and Lucille, 14, was bedeviled by popping bottles and flying objects in one of the most publicized poltergeist cases in recent years.

The Herrmanns received letters from all over the world offering theories that ranged from spacemen to the devil at work, a restless spirit, and psychokinesis (movement of an object by mental, rather than physical, means). Mr. Herrmann favored electro-magnetic forces.

His wife says now:

"I don't think there is any definite solution. It was just one of those things, with no rhyme or reason to it. But there was a definite physical force behind it. You should have seen the dent in the secretary where the figurine flew through the air and hit it. And the figurine exploded into a million splinters. Nobody was in the room when it happened. But I don't believe it was a poltergeist. I still say: 'If it's a poltergeist, you'll have to show it to me.'"

ONE OF THE SCIENTIFIC INVESTIGATORS in the Herrmann case was Dr. Nandor Fodor, a New York psychoanalyst and a pioneer in taking poltergeist

Ike Names National Goals' Unit

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower appointed an 11-member national goals commission Saturday "to identify the great issues of our generation" and recommended national policies for the next decade or more.

"The commission has the opportunity to sound a call for greatness to a resolute people in the best tradition of our founding fathers," the President said in a memorandum outlining its job.

THE LONG-DELAYED announcement carries out a plan first proposed by Eisenhower in his 1959 State of the Union Message to Congress.

The membership includes five educators, two business executives, a labor leader, an editor, a retired general, and a retired jurist.

It was announced Wednesday that Dr. Henry Winston, former president of Brown University and now president of the American Assembly at Columbia University, would be chairman of the commission. Frank Pace, former secretary of the Army and now chairman of the board of General Dynamics Co. Inc., was also then named vice chairman.

EISENHOWER said he hoped the panel would "develop a broad outline of coordinated national policies and programs for the next decade and longer and that it will, in the process, set up a series of goals in various areas of national activity."

He said he would like the commission to finish its work by the time his term expires next January but was "far more concerned about the breadth and depth of the study than in the exact timing of its completion."

City Hall Darkened First Time

In his nine years as custodian at City Hall, E. R. Petersen had never been so tired.

All day he had helped the Police Department move to the new Public Safety Building.

Now the last of the files, dossiers and fingerprints had trundled on their way.

In the shadowy basement, Custodian Petersen roiled on, feeling oddly like an agent of the underworld. He was busy making darkness.

METHODICALLY he pulled the central light switches. Seventh floor, jailhouse; 6th floor, city attorney; 4th floor, juvenile bureau; 3rd floor, city manager; 1st floor, Police Department.

There were 28 switches. Then the custodian locked all interior doors. Among the new tenants of the Public Safety Building, only a burglar could come back to police rooms on the first floor. All the locks have been changed.

At 5:45 p.m. Saturday, Petersen clicked shut the front door.

For the first time since it was built 35 years ago, City Hall was locked and dark from roof to basement.

Conference on Music Forms Council to Start L.B. Festival

By GEORGE ERES

Delegates to the city's first community-wide conference on music Saturday set up a permanent Long Beach Music Council and empowered the new organization to establish a Music Festival.

More than 60 organizations were represented at the conference attended by 200 delegates, meeting at State College.

The "Long Beach City Hangers" (from a speech title director of motor vehicles, discarded by Dr. Carl McInnis) said Saturday the rate of loss, president of State College, one of the keynote speakers at the session) also would be about one and a quarter million more vehicles in California in 1960 than in 1959.

Robert McCarthy said there 000 registrations, McCarthy said.

In the Los Angeles metro area, registration renewal this year showed an increase of 8 percent, 119,000 more registrations during about the month of December 1959, than last year's 1,961,631 registrations.

Young, Old to Dominate Jobs in '70s

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Youngsters under 25, women of all ages and older men will dominate the labor market in 1970, a new government study said Saturday.

The Labor Department predicted the number of Americans seeking jobs will jump by 13,500,000 to more than 87 million in the next 10 years.

This would be the biggest 10-year increase in U. S. history, Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell said in announcing the forecast.

He said the economy should be producing goods and services valued at 750 billion dollars at the end of the "golden sixties" to provide jobs for nearly all of the new job-seekers.

But Mitchell said the manpower study should be a challenge to American industry, more concerned about the breadth and depth of the study than in the exact timing of its completion.

State Expects 1,250,000 More Automobiles in 1960

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The 7,199,116 vehicle registrations, With almost eleven months to go, there appeared to be no doubt that, with the sale of a new car here and the registration of people moving here from other states, the 1960 total would reach 8,450,000 registrations, McCarthy said.

In the Los Angeles metro area, registration renewal this year showed an increase of 8 percent, 119,000 more registrations during about the month of December 1959, than last year's 1,961,631 registrations.

L.A.C. Says: The Blessed Rains

This area should be grateful for even the small amount of rainfall we have had this year. It is far below normal, but it has come in such a way that most of it has sunk into the ground. Very little of it has created floods and swept into the ocean. We have had only a little over 6 inches to date—last year it was slightly over one inch. We are far behind the 27-year average of 13.71 inches.

Long Beach now gets about two-thirds of its water from wells—the other third from the Colorado River. But the wells are being rapidly depleted as more water is pumped than is deposited in the ground by rain. Many of the wells have to be pumped from depths which are expensive. There is a constant danger that sea water will break through and make them useless.

The seriousness of the shortage of rainfall is shown by tables given by the Water Commission in its very informative annual report. It shows our rainfall by years as follows:

1948-49... 8.89 inches	1953-54... 12.40 inches
1949-50... 9.40 inches	1954-55... 10.58 inches
1950-51... 7.78 inches	1955-56... 12.96 inches
1951-52... 17.42 inches	1956-57... 7.68 inches
1952-53... 9.04 inches	1957-58... 20.47 inches
	1958-59... 6.25 inches

It will be seen that the average for those 11 years is only 11.17 inches compared with the 27-year average of 13.71. But it is even more alarming when it is realized in only two of these 11 years have we equalled or exceeded the 27-year average. In these two years most of the rainfall caused floods and little of it went into underground storage.

The entire state is suffering from the same drought conditions. It is why the heavy rainfall in the northern mountains must be captured and stored in dams for future use in drought years. It is this reason the Feather River project is being promoted. But as the northern areas greatly increase in population they may need all the water from the runoff from the mountains where they originate.

It has been shown that large areas of the San Joaquin Valley have sunk as much as 20 feet due to the heavy withdrawal of underground water. It is much the same principle as our local subsidence caused by withdrawal of oil and gas. But it dramatizes the great danger California faces in its growing shortage of water.

As Long Beach becomes even more dependent on importing water from the Colorado River, so does all of Southern California. The expected population growth in the next 15 years is expected to use all the water available for that purpose. At that point our industrial and population growth must stop unless we are assured of adequate supplies of new water sources.

There are only two possible sources: (1) the water to be brought from the north. We cannot be sure of this unless adequate assurance is given us that the northern counties will let us have the water promised us. It is hoped this will be prevented by binding contracts. (2) The other alternative is desalting sea water. There have been great strides made in this process. Large plants are already in operation in various parts of the world. The cost is high—but recent reports indicate costs can now be reduced to make it practical. The reduced rainfall the past decade is evidence we must vigorously work on development of all sources of water on which this and future generations will be dependent.—L.A.C.

Probe Suicide Hanging of 2 Spinsters

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two elderly spinsters, wearing high-button shoes and black, 1900-style dresses, were found hanging Saturday night in their immaculate three-room apartment. Police said they had committed suicide rather than be evicted from their home of 25 years.

The possibility was raised that Hungarian-born Margaret and Helen Horvath killed themselves on Christmas. Police did not know the exact date. But they learned that the sisters were told just before Christmas that they would have to move next summer, when the building is to be razed.

Condition of the bodies led police to conclude the sisters had been dead about two months.

THEY LEFT a suicide note saying they were despondent over having to move. It said sufficient money was in their bank account to cover funeral expenses.

Neighbors said the sisters led quiet lives and had no intimate friends. That accounted for the fact no one had missed them.

Henry Zaepfel, a neighbor, said the Horvath sisters, Helen in her early 70s and Margaret in her late 60s, were called "The Gibson Girls" because of their old-fashioned clothes. Helen had worked as a cook. Margaret also had been a domestic servant.

He said they often were referred to as "those two friendly old sisters." They always wore black dresses, shawls and high-button shoes, he said.

The sisters came from a little town near Budapest. Zaepfel and his wife were witnesses when the sisters became naturalized citizens in 1945.

"WHENEVER they had dinner, they made a production of it, with new linen, their best silverware and candles," Zaepfel said.

He said the sisters brought a nephew from Hungary in 1956, after the anti-Communist rebellion. The nephew stayed with them a few months and left. His whereabouts were unknown.

6 Die in Fire, Explosion at Kansas Home

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—An explosion and fire in a north-west Wichita home Saturday night killed six persons and injured four others, police said.

Police Lt. Clyde Bevis said the blast occurred while two men were cleaning automobile parts with gasoline in the second-floor apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Galloway.

BEVIS SAID the dead were: Benjamin Blair, 28; three of his sons, Danny, 9, Stephen, 6, and Keith, 5; and two Galloway children, Larry, 11, and Jo Etta, 22 months.

Hospitalized were Blair's wife, Jean; their daughter, Cheryl, 2; Galloway and his wife, Alice, 29.

Cheryl Blair was reported in critical condition with a skull fracture.

said they affect his wife more, although she remains unruffled generally. But, he said, the children get pretty excited about the attacks and occasionally one will say, "Come quick, they're saying something terrible about you on TV."

He said he tries to explain that this is a part of being in public life and that we have to have debate on the issues; it's what makes the country great.

Asked about the rather vicious cartooning of Herblock, Nixon said, "I wish he were on our side. Because he is good."

OTHER NOTES from the telecast:

Nixon said he felt no personal enmity toward an old political opponent, former President Truman. "I have had some strong disagreements with Mr. Truman but I respect him because he fought for what he believed in and for his leadership in foreign policy in some respects—in the atomic bomb and the Greek-Turkish aid program. In other areas I disagree emphatically but not on a personal basis."

Asked if they could meet in a room and chat amicably, Nixon said, they could "as far as I'm concerned."

The Vice President said the children are "normally" self-conscious about being children of a Vice President. They don't mind being delivered to their school in the Nixon's 1955 Oldsmobile but insist on being let out a block before arriving when they're taken in his government limousine.

Radio Stations; Themselves, Accept Payola, FTC Charges

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government Saturday alleged that certain radio stations accepted illegal payola from the record industry.

This was the first such action against stations. Past complaints of this type by the Federal Trade Commission charged only that these payments went to radio and television disc jockeys.

The names of the radio stations were not disclosed. However, it was understood that the evidence on which the FTC based its complaint has been sent to the Federal Communications Commission and the Internal Revenue Service.

The new complaint charges that three Boston record distributors made illegal under-the-table payments to disc jockeys, radio stations and other broadcasting personnel who influenced the selection of records aired by the stations. The complaint was aimed at Records Inc., Music Suppliers Inc. and Dumont Record Distributing Corp., all of Boston. They have 30 days in which to file replies. Since last December, the FTC has issued 40 complaints charging that concealed payments were made to disc jockeys who, in return, plugged certain records on their shows. The FTC contends this is an unfair trade practice which tends to suppress competition in violation of the law.

phenomena out of the spirit world and into the psychological field. For nearly 40 years he has been interested in psychical research, and his latest book on the subject, "The Haunted Mind," has just been published by Helix Press.

Dr. Fodor has followed the trail of the poltergeist from Hungary to England and the United States. His field investigations include some of the most famous of the century, including British cases with fascinating names, like: "The Ash Manor Haunting," "The Thornton Heath Poltergeist," "The Talking Mongoose."

Although he has never seen the beginning of a poltergeist action, such as a saucer pick itself up off a shelf and start its flight, he says he has seen big saucers too thick to be broken by a man's hands split in the air as if struck a heavy hammer blow.

Explanations of poltergeist phenomena vary.

A British psychic researcher of the last century, Frank Podmore, settled the matter for the skeptic. Poltergeists were only naughty little boys or girls who wished to startle their elders, he said.

Then there's the spiritualistic theory, that a ghost or spirit is at work in the house. (Poltergeist, in German, means noisy ghost.) As Dr. Fodor explains this viewpoint:

"The belief is that, in order to make contact with objects, such as dishes or knickknacks, and project its 'spirit' energies, the entity must work through a living person—a medium. Since many of these cases (although not all) have centered about young boys and girls, it has been suggested that adolescents are in a particularly vulnerable or 'sensitive' state."

THE PARAPSYCHOLOGISTS THEORIZED in the Herrman case that the source of the invisible power which moved objects about the house was psychic, unconsciously operating through the boy.

Dr. Fodor says:

"Since poltergeist phenomena are usually associated with a boy or girl at the pubertal age, it is widely assumed that a side-tracking of the sexual energies in a maturing body may be responsible for the explosive manifestation. The why and how of this psycho-biological disorder is as yet unknown."

He has evolved a "poltergeist psychosis" which he calls "an episodic mental disturbance of schizophrenic character." This means that while the person is in this state, one part of his mind or personality dissociates, and he carries out destructive acts that represent his repressed desires or frustrations. Later, he doesn't remember anything about it.

"On the other hand," muses Dr. Fodor, "my experiences have shown that there are many events—usually at the beginning of the outbreaks—which are extremely hard to explain by completely normal physical laws."

Will parapsychology, with its psychokinetics, eventually provide the answer to the intriguing question of poltergeists? Or will psychoanalysis, with motives of revenge, spite or self-castigation, solve the problem?

Dr. Fodor hopes we'll get it all figured out someday. So until then, hold up all invitations to ghosts, spirits and their ghoulish friends.

LONG BEACH MUSIC GROUPS UNITE

Establishment of a Long Beach Music Council was effected Saturday at a conference on music at State College. At left is Dr. Carl McIntosh, State College president, who urged a broad base of support for music groups; George A. Krusz, who headed the festival panel, reported delegates in attendance were overwhelmingly in favor of establishment of a music festival. His panel recommended that the "Council empower a committee to explore the possibilities of a festival in the late spring of 1961."

Under the adopted organizational resolution presented by Don Gill, executive director of the All Western Band Review, the Music Council empowers a 17-man board of directors to name a festival director and stage the festival.

Directors include Gerald Desmond, member of the Long Beach City Council; Fred Ohlendorf, acting supervisor of music education, Long Beach Unified School District; Dr. Bertram C. McGarrity (who acted as conference chairman), professor

He made these other points before the publishers:

1—To recognize Red China and admit it to the United Nations now would have a "disastrous effect" throughout Asia.

2—The United States must continue its policy of non-interference in internal affairs of Latin American countries, regardless of their forms of government.

3—The American people can expect high spending for the first annual meeting of national security so long as the council, set for June 30, the threat of Communist aggression exists.

School Head Arrested as Drunk Driver

A 37-year-old Torrance elementary school principal was arrested on suspicion of drunk driving Saturday after he was involved in a minor collision and pursued by a witness to the accident.

Torrance police said Edwin R. Brown, 37, principal of the Magruder Elementary School, was picked up at his home, 16612 Cerise Ave., after his car was traced through a license number furnished by Jerry Damron, 23, of 912 Sartori Ave.

DAMRON SAID he saw Brown's car hit an auto driven by Carl L. Hall, 26, of 21505 Berendo Ave., Carson. Only minor damage was inflicted on either car, he said, but he observed Brown's car proceed in an erratic, weaving manner as though the driver were intoxicated.

He pursued the auto, forced it to stop and made a citizen's arrest, Damron said. He said Brown was driving the auto and agreed to return to the scene of the accident to await police.

But Brown did not return. Damron said. Police found him at home after they traced his auto registration through his license number.

He was freed on bail. Damron was listed as the arresting witness.

Finch to Tell of Flight, Face Gruelling Quiz by Prosecutor

By DIAL TORGERSO
Associated Press Writer
Dr. R. Bernard Finch has told the story he hopes will save his life.

When he finished it his voice was choked with emotion and there were tears in his eyes.
Three jurors cried. So did many women in the packed courtroom.
In a dramatic climax to three days on the witness stand at his Los Angeles murder trial, the handsome, 42-year-old surgeon said this was how his socialite wife, Barbara Jean, 36, was slain:

He and his mistress and co-defendant, Carole Tregoff, 23, went to the Finch estate in West Covina the night of July 18 to talk to Mrs. Finch about plans for a divorce.
Mrs. Finch drove into the garage and pulled a gun. Carole fled. Finch grabbed the gun away. Mrs. Finch regained it and ran into the night.
Finch, knowing Carole was nearby, "charged out" of the garage to find Barbara. He found her and snatched the gun away again.
It discharged as he tried to throw it away.
The bullet went through Barbara's chest.
Finch said he leaned over his wife in the moonlight and she gasped in her dying breath:

"Take care of the kids."
The Finchs' son, Raymond Jr., is 6. Mrs. Finch had a daughter, Patty, 12, by a previous marriage.
Will the story save Finch's life?
Veteran court reporters said they had never seen a murder trial jury more obviously touched by a defendant's testimony.
As Finch spoke, pausing long moments between words as he fought for emotional control, everyone in the packed courtroom leaned forward to catch his words. The hum of the air conditioning and the click of reporters' stenotypes could be heard.
Saturday Finch told a reporter he was all right within an hour after he testified.
"Sure it shakes you up

DR. FINCH
"It Shakes You Up"

The state contends the couple tried to hire Cody to kill Mrs. Finch so they could wed without splitting with her the $750,000 in community property she described in her divorce suit. When Cody didn't do the job they took the murder kit to the home to do it themselves, says the prosecution.
But Finch declared Cody was hired as a private detective—and, if necessary, as a gigolo—in a vain attempt of get evidence against Mrs. Finch for use in the divorce action.
The attaché case, he said, was being readied for use as an emergency kit for doctors in his clinic.
One of the syringes in the kit was a 50cc tube the size of a small flashlight. The state said it could be used to inject a fatal air bubble into someone's bloodstream. The prosecution said the second solution in the kit could have been used to put someone to sleep.
Finch replied that the big syringe was for use in drawing fluid from a child's stomach through a stomach tube. Carole is expected to testify. And the second, he said, was a mild, slow-acting drug—not the type one would use to produce instant unconsciousness.

The bullets, he said, he grabbed out of Mrs. Finch's car during the first struggle for the gun. He said the clothesline was for use on his cabin cruiser. The carving knife, he said, was bought for Carole's new apartment in Las Vegas.
After he leaves the stand,

Finch provided answers for nearly all of the seemingly damning testimony brought against him.
The state's most telling testimony came on two points: The so-called "murder kit" and the story of a swaggering convict that he was hired by Finch and Carole to kill Mrs. Finch.
The kit was an attaché case found at the Finch home the day after Mrs. Finch died. In it were sleep-inducing drugs, hypodermic syringes and needles, pistol bullets, clothesline, a carving knife, a flashlight and other items another doctor-witness testified were not usually carried in a doctor's bag.
The convict, John P. Cody,

Southland's Scouts Observe Grove Man Jailed Khaki Line's Half Century in Hit-Run Death

fewer than 1,000 men had defended the key railroad junction of Mafeking in the Transvaal against an attacking force 10 times as large.

During the siege, he became so exasperated with the inability of city bred recruits to survive under jungle conditions that he wrote a small pamphlet, "Aids to Scouting," outlining some of the basic skills required of a soldier. He illustrated the manuscript with his own drawings and sent it to a London publisher. Upon returning to England he was amazed to find that not only had his little book become a best seller but that boys all over the country were practicing its simple skills as a new kind of game.

At the urging of a friend, Baden-Powell rewrote the book in boy language and eventually had to retire from the army to devote his full attention, and also the rest of his life, to the movement he had inadvertently inspired.

IN THE UNITED STATES, the committee that formed the Scout movement chose James E. West, a young Washington attorney, to head the consolidated movement.

Like Baden-Powell, West was a living Scout legend. An orphan crippled from childhood with tuberculosis of the hip, he had taught himself to ride a bicycle in order to work his way through law school as a bookkeeper in a bicycle repair shop.

West moulded the Boy Scouts of America into a dynamic organization, helped launch Boy's Life Magazine, which now has a circulation of 2 million, and the Boy Scout Handbook, which recently fell into second place behind the Bible as the best selling book of all time.

The Boy Scout movement came to Long Beach in 1912 with formation of a newspaperboy troop of 27 members at Edison School.

Today the Long Beach Council includes 369 units in Long Beach, Lakewood, Signal Hill, Bellflower and Dominguez. It has a registration of 11,951 boys and 5,488 adult leaders. Youth membership includes 3,949 (ages 11-13) Boy Scouts; 1,194 Cubs (8-10) and 808 Explorer Scouts (14-18).

ANNIVERSARY OBSERVANCE by council members will include handicraft displays in local store windows, camping out in city parks and vacant lots, attending church in unit groups, serving as speakers at Service Clubs and civic organizations.

Parents of Scouts and friends of Scouting will be contacted and urged to become sustaining members of the council by contributing $10 or more each.

The Scout Council derives 40 per cent of its $175,000 annual operating budget from the Community Chests of Long Beach and Bellflower. The remaining $100,000 must be raised supplementally.

Orange County, divided into north and south area councils, has a total of 14,659 Scouts and 3,436 adult leaders.

The Los Angeles Boy Scout Council, which includes San Pedro, Palos Verdes, Wilmington Torrance and beach cities up to Culver City and across to South Pasadena, has 1,500 units with a total registration of 78,000 Scouts and adult leaders.

10,000 Nigerians Hear Graham Urge Awakening

KADUNA, Nigeria (AP)—Evangelist Billy Graham preached Saturday night to a crowd of 10,000 people in Kaduna, capital of the predominantly Moslem northern region of Nigeria.

About 1,200 persons responded to Graham's invitation to make decisions for Christ.

In urging his audience to accept Christianity, Graham said:

"You will win independence this year. You have made tremendous progress in all spheres. But if independence is to bring the maximum happiness, there must be a new moral and spiritual awakening."

Galapagos Colonists Head for San Pedro

Four Seattle, Wash., women and their three children, who plan to settle as colonists with their menfolk on the Galapagos Islands near the Equator, are expected to arrive in San Pedro this week.

Don Harrsch of Seattle, leader of the colonists, Saturday decided to place the seven aboard a bus and sail his battered colonist ship Alert down the coast from Coos Bay, Ore., with only men aboard.

THE WOMEN, children and 13 men made the trip from Seattle in the 30-year-old, 100-foot, remodeled refrigerator ship. The ship put in to Coos Bay last Tuesday, after being battered by winds and high seas.

Harrsch said the ship will

Demolition Dies

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Garrett Lyons, 59, chairman of the Delaware Democratic Party, died unexpectedly of a heart attack at a resort hotel early Saturday.

A 22-year-old Garden Grove man was arrested on suspicion of auto theft Saturday in the aftermath to a crunching Santa Ana Freeway accident late Friday in which a Van Nuys woman was killed.

Booked at the East Los Angeles sheriff's station was Tolliver Skinner of 13922 Clinton St.

Officers said Skinner would be rebooked on felony hit-run and manslaughter charges during the weekend.

SKINNER WAS driver of a truck which jumped the center divider of the freeway, just east of the Telegraph Rd. offramp, officers said.

The truck collided with a car driven by Stanley Weiner, 27, of Van Nuys. Weiner's wife, Sally, 26, was killed. Weiner and two other passengers were seriously injured.

A California Highway Patrol officer, called to the scene, said he helped Skinner from the truck and sat him down on the freeway shoulder while he went to aid the other injured.

SKINNER LEFT the scene, officers said, first thumbing a ride and later taking a taxi toward Garden Grove. He was ejected from the cab when his money gave out at Fullerton. CHP investigators traced Skinner, first through his place of employment where officials said Skinner had taken the firm's truck without authorization, then through a 22-year-old woman with whom he had been staying at Garden Grove.

SKINNER SAID he had been arrested last Nov. 1 on suspicion of manslaughter following an accident in which Mrs. Emma Lamb, 82, of North Hollywood, was killed.

He later was exonerated.

Port Guards Keep Union

Harbor division members of Local 1 of the American Federation of Guards voted, 61 to 25, not to withdraw from the independent union, it was announced Saturday.

The watchmen, who work for seven companies in the Long Beach and Los Angeles harbors, rejected the decertification which would have terminated the current AFG contract. The contract, now, will not expire until 1961.

Cuba Clamps Tight Guard Over Russian

HAVANA (AP)—Anastas I. Mikoyan went under heavy security wraps Saturday in his campaign to pull Cuba into orbit with the Soviet Union. Cuban officials denied any knowledge of the Soviet deputy premier's weekend program.

Presumably Mikoyan is spending his time in intimate meetings with Prime Minister Fidel Castro and lesser revolutionary leaders, whose hospitality was marred Friday by wild gunfire near the Fine Arts Palace housing the Soviet exposition.

THE IMPRESSION developed that all the shooting—which threw the exposition's opening into turmoil—came from trigger-happy Cuban guards and police in efforts to break up an anti-Communist student demonstration at the nearby statue of Cuba's liberator Jose Marti.

PLAINCLOTHES guards surrounded Mikoyan's residence in the Biltmore section of Havana as he departed at mid-morning in a motor procession under heavy escort.

WHERE, OH WHERE CAN HE BE?

Dana Sue McCall, 4, studies the posted appeal in front of her house at 6072 California Ave., which she hopes will result in the return of her year-old golden cocker spaniel, Sam. Dana Sue's mother, Mrs. Lemuel A. McCall, said Sam left the house last Monday in a fit of pique after having been given a bath and hasn't been seen since. Sam is readily identifiable by his long, unclipped tail, which he wags with a sidewalk-sweeping motion when petted.

Medics 'Kill,' Revive Two Men in Tests

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI)—Australian doctors Saturday "killed" two human guinea pigs with the deadly South American drug curare, then revived them in a dramatic experiment aimed at proving revolutionary new techniques of artificial respiration.

The normal breathing of the two volunteers, Laurence Slattery and Lesley Wasley, was stopped for 90 minutes during the tests at Royal Prince Alfred Hospital. Wasley later had to be taken from the hospital in a wheelchair, and Slattery was led home white-faced and talking incoherently from the ordeal. But the quick and full recovery was predicted for both.

A team of doctors, working by the New South Wales under the supervision of Dr. B. Clifton, first gave the volunteers an intravenous anesthetic and paralyzed their respiratory muscles without the world.

curare. Several methods of artificial respiration then were tried, including the traditional hiplit, back pressure, and mouth to mouth.

ONE OF THE most important results of the tests was to show that the head of person receiving resuscitation, such as a drowning victim, should be placed with the chin up, right on the patient's crossed hands rather than on its side—a method currently in use in many parts of the world.

According to Dr. Clifton, about 2½ times as much air reached Slattery's lungs with the head upright than in the traditional sidewise position.

The tests were sponsored by the Royal Life Saving Society. So-B. Clifton, first gave the volunteers an intravenous anesthetic and paralyzed their respiratory muscles without the world.

POLICEWOMAN BAFFLED—CAN YOU HELP?

Clients Retain Her to Find Chee-Foo

Policewoman Celeste Stewart of the Seal Beach Police Department was hard at work trying to solve a baffling disappearance Saturday.

It was not exactly in the line of duty, so Officer Stewart was working as sort of a private eye retained by two clients—her children, Carolyn, 11, and Michael, 9.

On Thursday another member of the Stewart household, name of Chee-Foo, disappeared from the family home at 1103 Seal Way, Seal Beach, while helping Michael empty the trash.

Chee-Foo is described in Officer Stewart's all-points bulletin as a full-grown, white, male Pekingese, with black markings on his head. His mouth is sort of twisted to one side. It was banged up about a month ago when Chee-Foo was hit by a car.

Any information on the missing dog may be reported to the Seal Beach Police Department which has been alerted.

'Little Man' Own 'Pleader' in Small Claims Court

By DON MADDOCK

There's one court where no attorney is welcome. Small Claims Court operates here daily for benefit of

$5,000 Apply to Russ for First Space Ride

(LONDON UPI)—More than 15,000 persons have written the Russian government asking for the honor of being the first person to be shot into space in a Soviet rocket, visiting Russian scientist Alla Ma devich said Saturday.

all persons living in Long Beach Judicial District who seek recovery of money, where the amount claimed is not over $150.

By law, no attorney may represent either the claimant or the party sued—on the filing, prosecution or defense of the small claims litigation.

Common types of actions include claims for auto damages, personal property damage (most often by a landlord against a negligent tenant), medical bills, rent, utility bills, labor claims, bad checks, insurance premiums, contracts, merchandise, theft and services rendered—anything from baby sitting to dry cleaning. Occasionally an unusual case pops up.

A claimant once erected toy train trackage in Judge Percy Hight's court. He brought an engine and proved to the court's satisfaction that it hadn't been repaired properly.

There's not just one small claims court here. Each Municipal Court judge hears several such actions every working day.

The court's purpose is to reduce the expense and delay which accompany ordinary litigation. Proceedings are informal, and decisions are rendered rapidly.

Volume is large. Some 1,800 small-claims actions were filed here in the last six months of 1959.

Many cases never go to trial. Parties to a dispute settle differences privately before the date for their appearance in court.

Claimants invoke the court's aid by paying a $1 filing fee and giving this information to a clerk:

1. Nature of the claim.
2. That payment was demanded of the debtor and that no part of it has been paid.

3. Residence address of the persons sued and the claimant's address.
4. That the debt was contracted to be performed in the court judicial district (which includes Long Beach, Signal Hill and nearby unincorporated county territory).

Small claims clerks, who are supervised by Municipal Court clerk Ruth M. Bauchet, are ready to explain all phases of court procedures and to aid claimants in preparing their actions.

Business firms and corporations also use the court. However, a firm must file a resolution by the board of directors appointing an employee as its agent to represent it in prosecution or defense.

Actions are set for trial between 10 and 30 days from issuance of an order, if the defendants live within the county. Otherwise, it takes from 30 to 60 days.

Service on defendants on the clerk's order may be made by certified mail by the clerk. The fee is $1 for each party served.

It also may be made by anyone over 18 years old who isn't a party to the action, and by the marshal or sheriff.

Certificate of actual service on each party must be filed with each case before trial.

If the defendant doesn't appear in court on the trial date, the claimant (if present) is given judgment for the amount due, plus costs advanced, on proof of the claim to the judge's satisfaction.

If all parties appear, the judge hears testimony by all parties and makes his decision.

Judgments rendered are enforceable for 10 years. Even this lengthy period may be extended.

Western Demos Rip GOP Record; Johnson Reopens Door

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—Western Democrats Saturday flailed the Republican record on natural resources and heard Minnesota Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey suggest he is the man to lead their party back to the White House.

Humphrey, self-described liberal Democrat, said 1960 will offer the voters their first clear choice in eight years between a Democrat and a Republican. He said he could not perceive how the Republicans could "let things get out of hand" to sidetrack the expected nomination of Vice President Richard M. Nixon for President.

OF NIXON, he said: "He is an accomplished politician, a hard fighter, a calculator; he has a powerful organization and he will be a tough candidate. His weakness is that he is an organization, machine-selected, designed and tooled Republican."

Humphrey pushed his candidacy before the 13-state Western Democratic Conference. Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, the only INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson kept himself in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination Saturday night, saying he is counting on support of the delegations from other states as well as Texas.

It was a striking contrast to his statement Friday at a news conference in Albuquerque, N.M., when he told newsmen he "will not seek the nomination."

Johnson said here he expects to be chairman of the Texas delegation to the party's national convention, adding, "I would hope it will be committed to the support of my candidacy."

JAMESTOWN, N.D. (UPI)—Sen. John Kennedy (D-Mass.) Saturday night called for a two-price program for wheat in his first major farm speech as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Kennedy, speaking to about 700 persons, said he will introduce a bill calling for one price for wheat used for human consumption. A lower one chief of staff of defense, a single overall war plan, increased authority for the defense secretary, and unified commands in the armed forces.

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—The name of Adlai Stevenson was injected into New Hampshire's March 8 presidential primary only minutes before the close of the filing period Saturday night. James L. Farley of Cornish filed as a delegate favorable to the two-time Democratic presidential nominee.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Philadelphia Bulletin said Saturday that incomplete results in its presidential preference poll of Pennsylvania Democratic leaders give a narrow margin to Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri over Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts.

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—Two Kansas districts elected their 12 delegates to the Democratic national convention Saturday and a majority favor Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts. But all 12 of the delegates are pledged to vote for favorite son Gov. George Docking until he releases them.

INTRUDER SLUGS FOUR AT PARTY

Four elderly persons suffered cuts and bruises on their heads when they were attacked by an uninvited male guest who crashed a party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Watson, 1991 Olive St., police reported Saturday.

A suspect, who gave his name as Richard L. Swingen, 20, refused to give any address. He was booked in city jail for investigation of battery, burglary and intoxication.

Fear Red Navy Chief Reveals Worry Over Sub Attacks on U.S.

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Officials feared Saturday that a riotous outburst by several hundred flag-waving Communists in downtown Buenos Aires Friday night might have been a dress rehearsal for Red demonstrators during President Eisenhower's forthcoming visit.

Police were forced to intervene twice with tear gas to disperse the demonstrators. Two policemen were injured slightly in the melees and seven demonstrators were arrested.

IT WAS THE first Communist demonstration in downtown Buenos Aires since last April and came less than three weeks before the scheduled arrival of the U.S. President on his South American tour. Thus far the Communists had publicly indicated they plan no trouble during the President's visit.

Police identified the demonstrators as being linked to a Peronist Communist-front organization that had been refused permission to hold a rally in a downtown hall.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Navy is worried about the Russian submarine threat, according to congressional hearings made public Saturday.

Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, chief of naval operations, told senators that Soviet military writers recently said modern Russian subs could travel under the Arctic ice and penetrate into Hudson Bay.

HE SAID the Russians also boasted that from the Hudson Bay, they could launch rockets at Detroit and other industrial cities in the Great Lakes area.

"One of the gravest military threats we face is the powerful Soviet submarine force," Burke said.

"Not only does this force present a threat to our sea communications but it also presents a threat to U.S. cities and bases."

"We are not yet able to feel

ADM. BURKE Tells of Red Threat

"especially that posed by the anticipated sub-launched ballistic missiles."

AS A RESULT, Burke informed the Senate defense appropriations subcommittee that "priority at the highest levels" was being given to anti-submarine warfare.

Figures supplied by the Navy to Congress show 13 of the 20 new ships proposed in the 1961 fiscal budget are anti-submarine warfare or support types.

Burke said the Navy also was working hard to get the most modern electronic equipment to detect and supply other data on enemy subs.

The Pentagon estimates the Russians have about 450 submarines. The United States confident in our ability to meet the threat," he said, has 112.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Don't Look Like a Bear

("Medicine and You," a regular Sunday feature of this newspaper, is prepared in collaboration with the Department of Medical Education, Seaside Memorial Hospital.)

By BEN ZINSER AND GEORGE X. TRIMBLE, M. D.

An expert on bee behavior says there are five factors that tend to make a bee more likely to sting a human:

- Brown, black or red clothes with worsted or flannel texture.
- Bright jewelry.
- Perspiration odor.
- Swatting motion.
- Erect posture.

The expert, Adrian Wenner of the University of Michigan, is quoted by Dr. Roy Patterson, Ann Arbor, in a report on "Allergic Emergencies" in the Journal of the American Medical Assn.

"The explanation for some of these observations," says Dr. Patterson, "is that any appearance or activity of the human that stimulates that of a bear may stimulate a bee to sting. The bear is the natural enemy of the bee."

Recommendation: "If a person is approached by a few bees, sitting or lying quietly is advisable."

THE ELECTROCARDIOGRAPH, a device that traces heart action on a paper tape, may possibly be of value in paternity suits. Dr. J. Marion Bryant of New York's Bellevue Hospital states that four clear-cut, easily recognizable hereditary patterns may be observed in EKG tracings. The finding resulted from a study of 1,035 persons of various racial backgrounds and families, he reports in Postgraduate Medicine. These patterns, called phenotypes, have "potential use as a medicolegal tool," Dr. Bryant believes.

ICE PACKS AND COLD WATER are not the best methods to reduce fever, says a report in the Journal of Applied Physiology. Recommended: place the patient in air-conditioned room, in still air, with 70-degree Fahrenheit temperature and 20 per cent relative humidity. Trouble is, ice and cold water are usually easier to come by than air conditioning with controlled humidity.

RATTLESNAKES BITE HUMANS an average of 52 times a year in Southern California, reports Dr. Findlay E. Russell, director of the neurological research laboratory of the College of Medical Evangelists. Although there are nine kinds of rattlers in the Southland, most of the bites are inflicted by the southern Pacific rattlesnake, the red diamond, the western diamondback and the sidewinder, he says in the American Journal of the Medical Sciences. Four rattlesnake-bite deaths have been reported in the Southland in the past five years, Dr. Russell says. That's a 1.5 per cent fatality rate.

THE CRASH PROGRAM to inform the public of the hazards of plastic bags is apparently paying off. In the last five months of 1959, playing with plastic bags resulted in only 13 deaths. But in the first seven months, 92 children accidentally suffocated in the bags, The AMA News says.

A PATIENT SUFFERING SEVERE SHOCK from hemorrhage has been saved by a transfusion of her own blood, says Lancet. And the blood used in the transfusion was that which had poured out from the patient's own circulation to precipitate the crisis.

The hemorrhage occurred as the result of a rupture of the channel (fallopian tube) which leads from the ovary to the womb. The patient had been afflicted with an abnormally located pregnancy in which the baby was forming outside the womb in the fallopian tube.

Because donor blood was unavailable, Dr. A. A. Azie of Nigeria, Africa, opened the patient's abdomen, using local anesthesia, and collected her own blood from the abdominal cavity. The blood was strained through sterile gauze and returned to the patient's circulatory system through a large-bore needle inserted into a leg vein.

RAPID HEALING OF BRUISES suffered by boxers can be achieved through the use of tablets containing two enzymes—streptokinase and streptodornase. Dr. Joseph L. Blonstein, medical adviser to the British Amateur Boxing Assn., says 10 boxers were given two tablets about four hours before entering the ring and another six tablets during the two days following the bout. Result: bruises cleared up more quickly than expected.

23 Arrested in $4 Million Home-Loan Fraud Scheme

NEW YORK (AP)—The FBI loans by making false statements on FHA loan applications. Saturday it had arrested 23 persons involved in a scheme through which money was obtained for home improvements and then diverted to weddings, funerals and air trips.

Kem Home Improvement Corp. of Freeport, N. Y., obtained four million dollars in loans guaranteed by the U. S. government after finding willing homeowners, the FBI said.

THE GOVERNMENT charged the firm kept more than $500,000 in commissions and turned over $1,309,793 in cash to homeowners of the total amount borrowed. The rest apparently went for actual home improvements.

The loans ran as high as $5,000 in one case, the FBI said, with the homeowner receiving $4,000 and the corporation keeping $1,000 as a service charge.

The FBI said many of the homeowners were poor credit risks, and Kem obtained the

New Police Station in Operation

"Sgt. Wiens is here." That was the first radio call received at the Long Beach Police Department operated amidst the confusion of moving into new headquarters Saturday.

The call, by Sgt. Donald M. Wiens, was received by radio dispatchers R. J. Knipf and H. C. Beck at the new communications center at 12:09 p.m.

AT 12:15 P.M. they transmitted the first call. The call, regarding a blocked driveway at 1365 Gardenia Ave., was dispatched to Unit 5.

Telephone repairs, radio technicians and movers swarmed through the building all during the day and late into the evening. Phones had to be checked, communications systems surveyed and furniture moved in.

Operation Switchover primarily went smoothly, but nearly every movement elicited a question. And most questions started with the words, "Where is . . . ?"

INITIATING THE new jail by being booked on a drunk charge was Josie Bonnewitz, 59, of 1435 Cedar Ave. She was arrested at 10:45 a.m. by Patrolman E. H. Ondrick.

Admits Attempt to Bomb Pastor

ATLANTA (UPI)—A member of a small-town Baptist church—apparently envious of the minister's wife—confessed Saturday that he "booby-trapped" the pastor's station wagon with a dynamite bomb which was discovered before it exploded.

Attempted murder charges were filed against well-to-do mill worker William, Columbus Johnson, 36, married father of a teenage son. Johnson broke down after two hours of questioning and confessed he concealed the bomb in the station wagon of his pastor, The Rev. J. T. Robinson of the Milledgeville, Ga., Baptist Church.

Robinson, leaving a church-sponsored Bible class at Atlanta Tuesday night, discovered the "booby trap" which would have exploded had he switched the vehicle's headlights to "bright."

"The good Lord was riding with me," Robinson said. "I give Him credit for saving my life."

Experts who dismantled the bomb, fashioned of two dynamite sticks and three percussion caps, said it would have killed Robinson instantly. They said the caps alone would have killed him.

Detectives said Johnson's formal confession gave a "domestic matter" as the root of a disagreement with the 36-year-old minister. But it was learned that Johnson's attentions to Robinson's wife, mother of three children, were involved, and that Johnson apparently had become smitten with the pastor's wife.

Find Bullet in Sniper Mystery

NEW YORK (UPI)—Police seeking clues to a sniper who wounded two pedestrians outside the Empire State Building Friday found a spent bullet Saturday.

The bullet was believed to have been fired by the same person who wounded a 46-year-old woman and a 59-year-old messenger as they walked past the world's tallest building.

The two were wounded slightly by .22-caliber bullets. Police believed the gun was fired from above street level. Those wounded were Mrs. Kathleen Cleary, who was shot in the hip, and Knute Kyvik, who suffered a shoulder wound.

Powerful New Rocket Motor Tested

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Aerojet-General officials report they have successfully tested a scale model of their newly designed, solid-fuel rocket engine which could become the most powerful in the world.

The Aerojet engine disclosed several weeks ago is based on the building-block concept. Each segment is self-sufficient. Hooking several together could provide several million pounds of thrust.

The scale model tested here Thursday was composed of three segments and generated 40,000 pounds of thrust for nearly 10 seconds, officials said.

Fire Destroys Family of 4

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A family of four was wiped out by fire here Saturday.

Peter P. Danksha, 42, his wife, Jane, 40, and their two daughters, Mary Ellen, 10, and Kathleen, 5, suffocated in their two-story brick home.

Police Lt. Thomas Gleason said the family died of anoxia, deprivation of oxygen caused by intense smoke.

2 Anti-Semites Get Prison Terms

COLOGNE, Germany (AP)—Two young Germans went to prison Saturday for the Christmas Eve desecration of Cologne's new synagogue, an act that ignited anti-Jewish incidents around the world.

At the end of a one-day trial, a state court gave a 14-month sentence to Arnold Strunk and a 10-month sentence to Paul Schoenen.

Strunk, a pale-faced 25-year-old baker, told the court he regretted his act. He showed no emotion when sentence was read. Neither did Schoenen, a 25-year-old apprentice clerk who slept through part of the trial.

Mexican Jetliner Sets L.A. Record

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A Mexicana Airlines (De Havilland) Comet 4C jet transport has set a new record between Los Angeles and Mexico City.

The British-built aircraft spanned the 1,670-mile route in a two-hour, 53-minute non-stop flight in the jetstream Friday carrying 44 passengers.

Nikita Threats Peril Summit Parleys

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev now appears determined to build up a new if limited Berlin crisis in advance of the May summit conference. His aim is to frighten and divide the Western powers and break down their position in West Berlin.

Khrushchev could carry his pressure strategy to the point where President Eisenhower would feel compelled to reconsider whether he should attend the summit meeting.

REPEATEDLY he has declared he would not negotiate under threat. U.S. officials believe Khrushchev will stop short of this point.

Summit conference plans would be in jeopardy, authorities said, if Khrushchev—having already revived his threat of a separate East German peace treaty—should also renege some kind of deadline for the West to abandon Berlin or risk a Communist squeeze to force them out.

At the White House and State Department, officials believe Khrushchev does not want to jeopardize the holdings of a summit conference. They speculate he will stop short of a wide open crisis, the United States has been estimated at 3-1, although the administration lately has indicated this may be scaled down.

Eisenhower administration leaders insist there is no real danger that the Khrushchev regime would use its greater missile capability to start a war in view of U.S. power to strike back.

Yet they also expect

Khrushchev to use his advantage increasingly in a determined and perhaps dangerous effort to advance his diplomatic aims.

4 L.B. Heart Assn. Grants Help Local M.D. Research Projects

By BEN ZINSER

Four medical research grants totaling $16,300 have been awarded to local doctors working in the field of heart and blood-vessel diseases, the Long Beach Heart Assn. announced Saturday.

Dr. John Lungren, chairman of the association's research committee, said the grants bring total research allocations of the local association to more than $200,000 during the past six years.

The grants were made possible through the financial support of Long Beach residents, Dr. Lungren said.

"THE WORK can continue only if the people of this city continue to contribute to the Heart Fund," he added.

Grants have been awarded to Dr. Irwin Ungar of St. Mary's Hospital; Dr. Jack Lieberman and Dr. Ronald Piccirillo of Harbor General Hospital, Torrance; and Dr. Chi Kong Liu, of Harbor General and Seaside Memorial Hospital.

AT SEASIDE, Dr. Liu and associates are attempting to find a simple test that can enable a doctor to differentiate between dangerous and harmless heart murmurs.

Their problem is a big one in the field of heart disease because about five per cent of the average grade-school population have, at a given time, some type of heart murmur.

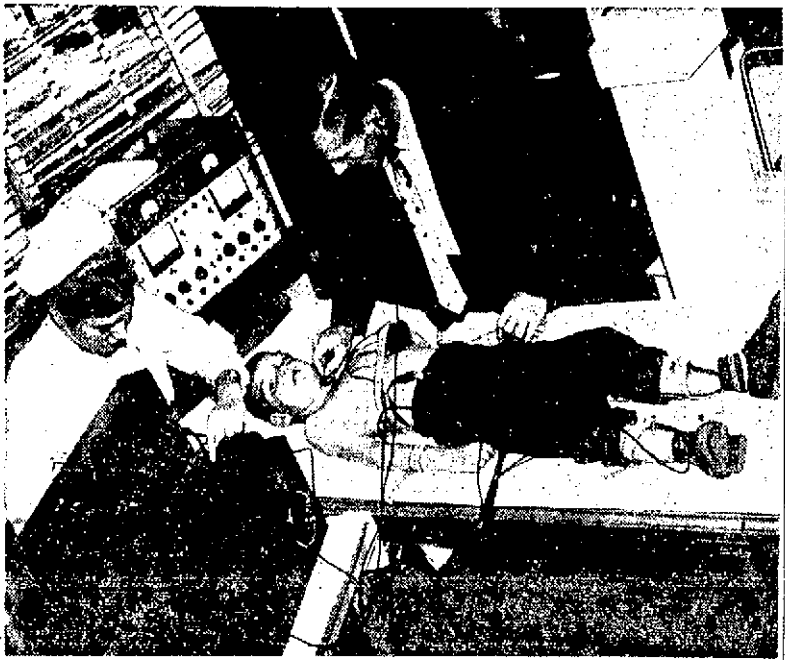

But four out of the five per cent have harmless murmurs, the doctors say. Only one per cent actually have something wrong with their hearts.

"Rapid advances in heart surgery make it possible for us to repair many of these defective hearts during childhood—if we can spot them," says Dr. Liu. "Therefore, a simple screening test to tell when a murmur signifies a defective heart is increasingly important."

Currently Dr. Liu's team is pursuing this lead:

Administration of a blood-pressure-raising drug, called Levoephed causes harmless, or functional, murmurs to disappear. But if the murmur indicates an actual heart defect, administration of Levoephed will make the murmur louder.

With a $2,100 grant, the Seaside doctors are using a heart-sound machine to record zig-zag line tracings of what the doctor hears in a stethoscope. They are comparing tracings of school children with murmurs with those of youngsters without known heart defects.

AT ST. MARY'S, Dr. Ungar's team, with a $4,500 grant, is developing a technique to cool the heart during cardiac surgery.

The method, expected to be ready for use with human patients by April, works this way:

A heart-lung machine will pump the patient's blood and supply it with oxygen during the course of the heart operation.

During this time the aorta—the body's great artery—will be clamped to isolate the heart from the body's blood circulation.

"The cold blood, cooled by a heat exchanger, will be sent to the heart, dropping its temperature from 98.6 degrees to 50 degrees Fahrenheit in two minutes.

The cold blood will cause the heart to stop beating, making surgical repair less difficult. The still heart also will make installation of plastic valves, when they are needed, an easier task.

AS SOON AS the heart stops beating, flow of cold blood to the heart will be

Negro Lunchers Close 2 Stores

GREENBORO, N.C. (AP)—Two Greensboro variety stores, where lunch counter integration has been attempted all week by Negro students, closed suddenly at midday Saturday.

The F. W. Woolworth store closed because of a telephone bomb threat. Then the management of the Kress store took similar action "in the interest of public safety."

The manager, H. E. Holgate, said crowds of "rowdies" moved on his store after Woolworth's closed.

Woolworth's store was a bedlam. Negroes carrying American flags milled about, and whites carrying Confederate flags paraded through the aisles.

Ike Looks Toward 3 or More Homes

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—President Eisenhower may have three or more homes in widely separated sections of the country after he leaves office next January.

His legal residence is almost certain to remain the comfortable place where he and Mrs. Eisenhower are relaxing this weekend—their farm at the edge of the Gettysburg Battlefield.

AT HIS ESTATE here the President takes a deep interest in his livestock and crop operations, now largely run for him by others. Saturday, for example, he spent about an hour inspecting his Aberdeen Angus cattle herd in raw weather and misty rain.

Mrs. Eisenhower is an enthusiastic flower gardener — outdoors in the summer and tending the plants in a small hothouse during the cold months.

But the President is a restless man whose liking for outdoor recreation—golf, fishing, hunting—is likely to continue to take him where the sun is bright and the weather warm.

AT HIS NEWS conference Wednesday Eisenhower said he is looking ahead, after retirement, to spending some time in the desert, shooting quail in Georgia—and just sitting in a rocking chair.

The desert reference undoubtedly was to the Palm Springs, Calif., area where he has vacationed three times as President and where he is reported to be interested in ac-

16 Known Dead in Andes Flood

LIMA, Peru (AP)—The death of 16 persons from flood waters from Lake Titicaca, high in the Andes, was reported in delayed dispatches here Saturday.

The flood washed away the adobe homes of some 2,500 persons. They lost more than 1,000 head of cattle. The stricken region is in Azangaro province in the Department of Puno.

Unofficial sources in Lima estimated that more than 20,000 persons might be affected.

Rail Wreck Rips Pipeline

CASEY, Ill. (AP)—Twenty-two cars of a 105-car Pennsylvania Railroad freight left the rails near here Saturday, ripping up one-fourth mile of track and shearing a 12-inch crude oil pipeline feeding a big, nearby tank farm.

There was momentary danger of fire from an estimated 2,000 to 3,000 barrels of crude oil that poured through the break about 1/4 of a mile from the Ohio Oil Co. tank farm.

Employees of the oil firm set fire to some of the crude oil, to cut down the danger from an uncontrolled blaze.

Discounts A-Waste Danger to Sea Life

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Dr. Roger Revelle, director of Scripps Institution of Oceanography, said Saturday that discovery of fish at a depth of seven miles in the Pacific does not rule out the possibility of using the ocean for an atomic waste basket.

Revelle said he was in disagreement on this point with Dr. Andreas B. Recknitzer, scientist in charge of the recent series of record-breaking dives for the bathyscaphe Trieste out of Guam.

Recknitzer said that the deep area also would be that discovery of fish at a depth of seven miles showed there are material dumped would be currents there and that greatly diluted.

CAPT. ROSCOE KARNS AND NURSE ABBY DALTON
A Big Double-Take for the Men on Navy Base

AHOY, MR. HENNESEY!

LB Base Doubles for Diego's Navy

By TERRY VERNON

Authenticity may be important in a television series, but economy is even more important.

And while the San Diego Naval Base is the locale of the Hennessey series on CBS Monday nights, San Diego is 125 miles from Hollywood, and Long Beach, also with a genuine naval base, is but 22 miles.

Thus, the Hennessey Company location shots are done at Long Beach, and, with the consent of authorities at the Long Beach base, only the prop men are inconvenienced. They cover Long Beach signs with signs marked "San Diego" whenever they are in camera range.

SO AT 7 A. M. on location mornings star Jackie Cooper, with Abby Dalton who plays Navy Nurse Martha Hale, and Roscoe Karns as the salty senior medical officer, hop into their Long Beach-bound limousine, followed by sound truck, camera truck, grip and prop truck, Navy jeep, wardrobe and make-up trailer, two limousines, a 30-passenger bus and a trailer.

One-hand-of-poker away via the freeway, the company swings through the naval base gates and the makeup dressing table is set up. It unfolds, mirror and all, from an exterior side of the wardrobe trailer.

PASSING GROUPS of sailors are befuddled to see "Captain" Karns and "three-star Admiral" Charles Meredith having their faces dabbed with grease-paint and powder.

In "The Ancient Vehicle" episode to be seen Monday, a 1901 replica of one of America's early roadsters plays an integral part in the teleplay.

Rev. Mason, Drive to Curb Crime Pastor Here, Among Youths Opens Dies at 58

By WARREN WALTERS

The Rev. Roy C. Mason, 58, pastor at North Long Beach Methodist Church, 5600 Linden Ave., died Saturday from an apparent heart attack.

Funeral service will be Wednesday at 2:30 p.m., in the church. Hunter Mortuary is directing.

Born in Whittier, the Rev. Mr. Mason was graduated from the University of California in 1923 and received his Bachelor of Divinity degree from Garrett Biblical Institute in Evanston, Ill.

The Rev. Mr. Mason served churches in Gilbert, Ariz.; Alaska, La Habra, and San Diego. He became pastor of the Long Beach church in 1952. His home here was at 470 Norton St.

The family asks that in lieu of flowers, contributions be made to the Mason Memorial Fund, in care of the North Long Beach Methodist Church.

Surviving are his wife, Norma; a son, Earl R.; parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. brothers, Harold and Warren, and a sister, Mrs. Ruth Peel.

Thousands of weapons to wage a stepped-up battle against juvenile delinquency will be placed in the hands of Long Beach parents, teachers and church leaders beginning this week.

The weapons: 30,000 to 50,000 booklets entitled "Laws for Youth."

The booklets, prepared as a project of the Exchange Club of Long Beach, will be distributed in connection with Crime Prevention Week which begins today and extends through Saturday.

THEME OF the week-long observance will be "Crime Prevention Begins in the Home."

In their sermons this morning, many Long Beach pastors will make reference to the problem of juvenile crime on the basis of information in pamphlets distributed by the National Exchange Club.

The booklet, "Laws for Youth," is slated to be a feature of at least two television shows this week, according to Bernard McCune, president of the Long Beach Exchange Club.

McCune said that most parents are unfamiliar with laws and regulations that pertain to youngsters.

"If they are aware of the laws," he continued, "parents can control their children better and thus head off juvenile misdeeds."

"LAWS FOR YOUTH" subject headings include alcohol and liquor, assault, loitering and the curfew law, disturbing and disorderly conduct, employment of minors, financial responsibility, juvenile court, narcotics and drugs, school attendance, malicious acts, vehicles and bicycles and weapons.

The Independent, Press-Telegram will present a story each day this week based on sections of the booklet.

Long Beach Unified School District will use 5,000 copies of the booklets as source material for teachers, administrators and counselors.

Police Capt. Paul F. Landsdowne, head of the Juvenile Division, who acted as an adviser in preparation of "Laws for Youth," said he plans to keep copies on hand in his department.

They will be given out, he explained, to parents who must appear at the Juvenile Division in connection with the misdeeds of their youngsters.

Oceanic Museum Approval Sighted

By GEORGE WEEKS

A citizens' advisory committee is moving toward prompt approval of a Maritime and Commerce Museum along the downtown shoreline, to be financed from tideland oil money.

Members of a subcommittee investigating the project have agreed informally on a package proposal to include not only a 150,000-square-foot building but considerable land fill, an access roadway and a parking lot of at least 400-car capacity.

The expanded development will mean an outlay well in excess of the $4,800,000 originally estimated.

Subcommittee members headed by Lester Lawson said they hope to get cost estimates and some planning detail in time for their own formal approval, referral to the full Public Improvement Committee and possible action by the City Council to submit the proposal at the May 10 primary.

APPROVAL OF a majority of the electorate is necessary for release of the tideland oil funds. Consent of the State Lands Commission also is required.

State endorsement for the site preparation and parking and access facilities, as well as the building itself, is considered probable.

This view was expressed to the subcommittee last week by Don Muchmore, a key state official in the undertaking.

Muchmore, of Long Beach, was recently named deputy director of the Department of Finance. The director, John Carr, also of Long Beach, is a member of the Lands Commission.

But Muchmore advised against attempting to incorporate into this one project the proposed development of other shoreline improvements in the downtown district.

For this reason, subcommittee members asked city management and planning technicians to delineate the scope of the development and bring in cost estimates for consideration this week.

THE SUBCOMMITTEE also agreed that a proposed lease with the California Museum Foundation, a state affiliate, should extend for as long a term as legally permissible.

Under the suggested plan, the foundation will operate the museum, assuming major responsibility for developing it into an attraction of national reputation.

Muchmore, who is also executive secretary of the foundation, said he is confident the museum will attain that standing.

He suggested that it be designated as the California Maritime and Commerce Museum.

Maritime and Commerce Museum.

PROPOSED SITE of the building is on land to be filled southward from the prolongation of Long Beach Blvd., in the heart of the area marked for extensive improvement under a new shoreline development plan.

Museum exhibits, some semipermanent and others varying from time to time, would feature such fields as the history of the ocean, world geography, science, history and technology of the U. S. Navy and the development of shipping.

An adjunct to the building would be a basin for display of oceangoing vessels, historic and otherwise, which could be inspected by the public.

The 28-member advisory committee, under chairmanship of H. G. Appleton, is studying the project at the request of the City Council.

Wing Slots to Aid Douglas Jetliner

Wing slots are being added to the intercontinental model of the DC8 jetliner, which will reduce its takeoff run by 1,000 feet, but this is causing a three-to-five-week delay in deliveries of the plane, the Douglas Aircraft Co. said Saturday.

The intercontinental DC8 was certified by the Federal Aviation Agency last week. Fifty-nine of the craft are on order and are scheduled to be delivered by the middle of 1961.

The modification of the model by the addition of wing slots and the changing of wing tips will give it additional lift and enable it to operate off shorter runways, a company spokesman said.

Independent and P-T Win State Prizes

The Independent and the Press-Telegram were cited for excellence in three different categories of the California Newspaper Publishers Assn. Better Newspaper Contest, the association announced Saturday at its annual convention in Los Angeles.

The Long Beach Independent took second place in the best-sports-page competition. The Press-Telegram was awarded a second place among newspapers of 100,000 circulation or more for its youth-interest coverage.

The Independent, Press-Telegram's Good Old Days section, which appeared during the annual downtown merchant's festival last fall, was granted second place in the best special section division.

More than 10 other overseas airway systems have ordered the intercontinental jetliner. Deliveries to foreign customers during 1960-1961 is expected to give a boost to the United States' balance of trade which has been lagging the last two or three years.

'Accident Corner' Cleared in Study

By FRED BOLINGER

Lack of "reasonable caution" caused the deaths of two motorists at Ximeno Ave. and Colorado St., during the past 13 months.

City Traffic Engineer Robert D. Dier arrived at that conclusion after studying the intersection, described as an "accident-prone corner" by Mr. and Mrs. Orville A. Kenyon in their letter to City Council.

THE KENYONS said they were forced to sell their home on the corner (4343 Colorado St.) because of danger from cars involved in accidents there.

Fatal crashes were on Dec. 17, 1958, and Jan. 23, 1960. Other smashups also have occurred at the corner, according to the Kenyons.

Dier said that both fatal accidents were caused by drivers running the east-west stop signs. He doubts if an automatic signal or a yellow blinker would stop such drivers.

Humane Unit Honors Bibb and Vickers

Long Beach City Manager Sam Vickers and Animal Regulation Director James W. Bibb received a plaque from the Humane Society of the United States Saturday honoring Long Beach's Animal Shelter, which the humane group called one of the best in the nation.

Frank G. Bonelli, chairman of the County Board of Supervisors, received a similar plaque on behalf of the county. The presentations were made at the State Humane Society's annual meeting at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles.

Henry Burmester, former editor of The Independent, Press-Telegram, Mrs. Mary Davidge and Mrs. Amy Spano, all of Long Beach, were re-elected to the state society's board of directors.

'STEADY ON YOUR COURSE, MATE'

Artist's concept shows how beacon atop new Long Beach Harbor Administration Building will pierce the gloom when it is installed within a month. The 24-inch-diameter light will revolve twice a minute with candlepower of 3,300,000. This compares with 360,000 candlepower at Angels Gate lighthouse entrance to Los Angeles Harbor and 250,000 candlepower at Long Beach breakwater entrance to local port.

Master Shoreline Plan Deserves Public Support

FEW CITIES in the world are blessed with such an outstanding natural attraction as Long Beach possesses in its magnificent shoreline.

At the western end of that shoreline, harbor officials are in the process of developing "The World's Most Modern Port" in accordance with a carefully thought out 20-year master plan for harbor development.

At the eastern end, also following a master plan, the city is on the verge of completing the finest, most-modern publicly owned small boat harbor to be found anywhere in the world.

Only the area in between these two fine facilities is confronted with a relatively uncharted course ahead. The shoreline between the Los Angeles and San Gabriel rivers features a 5.4-mile, and man-made beach averaging 350 feet in width, and plans for specific improvement of this potential ocean-front wonderland still are the subject of debate.

For more than 15 years now citizens of Long Beach have engaged in discussion over how this shoreline area should be developed. It is generally agreed that this elongated park is best suited for development as a regional, landscaped beach-playground, but never has there been unanimous approval of all individual improvements proposed for the area.

SINCE 1945, 31 DIFFERENT complete studies of shoreline development have been made by the city planning department. In 1949 the City Council and City Planning Commission actually did adopt a master plan for shoreline development. However, constant agitation against some features of that plan, plus changing concepts, changing needs and demands for new facilities and features, prompted the city fathers to call for a new plan.

This new plan was recently completed by the city planning department. Last week the planning commission concluded public hearings on this plan, approved it, and now is sending it to the City Council for additional hearings, following which the Council either will reject it, change it or adopt it as the city's master plan.

The proposed master shoreline plan now coming up for Council consideration is a good compromise of the various points of view on beach-front improvement. It adheres to the basic concept of developing our beach as a magnificent regional park. It very definitely will upgrade the community, and it encourages broad public use of the area, which is vital in obtaining state approval of the project.

IT IS TRUE THERE still is opposition to some of the parking lots proposed in the plan, between Cherry and Redondo Aves., but even there the compromise seems reasonable. None of these lots is located southerly of private property. Besides, it seems neither realistic nor reasonable to plan for extensive beach development and deny easy access to that beach.

Port development and marina development have advanced smoothly to the benefit of Long Beach because master plans were adopted and followed. We believe it is equally important that the proposed master plan for shoreline development also be adopted.

Although all citizens cannot be expected to approve of all elements of the plan, we urge them to accept it as a basic goal toward which all future developments will be directed. In so doing, we will be providing for an orderly and coordinated development of perhaps our most precious asset.

Machines Catch Up With Tax Dodgers

By WALTER T. RIDDER, ROBERT E. LEE AND BILL BROOM

WASHINGTON—Budget makers were able to raise their estimates of tax revenues for next year after receiving Internal Revenue Service assurances that automation is catching up fast with tax dodgers.

The Revenue Service is installing automatic office equipment as rapidly as they can. Its chief value: frees tax agents from time-consuming manual chores allowing them to audit more returns closely.

Last year, with only 4 per cent increase in time spent on checks, the agents racked up a 10 per cent increase in offenders caught. This year, the effort will be stepped up even higher because more electronic computers and gadgets have gone into operation.

A CONGRESSIONAL SHOW that's definitely not rigged is beamed regularly in Pennsylvania. It matches Sen. Joe Clark, a Democrat, against Sen. Hugh Scott, Republican.

On a recent show, the senators discussed their success in slowing down Japanese imports of ready-made clothing. These had been putting many workers in their state out of jobs. Later, they discussed their travels in the Far East.

"I didn't get down to Hong Kong, but you did," Clark said. "Tell us what you saw." After Scott chatted about Hong Kong's relations with Red China, the Democrat senator remarked innocently, "Hong Kong's a nice place. That's also a nice suit you're wearing. Did you buy it there?"

"Yes, I did," blurted Scott, not sensing the trap. Then, realizing Pennsylvania garment workers would disapprove his buying foreign, he added lamely, "but I also buy U.S.A. Where did you get your suit?"

"Wanamaker's, Philadelphia," Clark replied snugly.

SEN. HUBERT H. HUMPHREY (D-Minn.), who hasn't been looking too good in the presidential public opinion polls, is about to be declared the winner in one. That's the word from those who have seen the results of a sampling of thousands of North Dakota voters taken by the state's Republican senior senator, Milton Young. The poll, whose complete results will be made public this week, shows that Humphrey would beat Vice President Nixon for the presidency in North Dakota, while Nixon would beat Sen. Jack Kennedy (D-Mass).

Enemy Benefits in Public Scrap Over Defense Status

WASHINGTON—Another general speaks up in dissent. He is a former member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Since he now is retired, he can talk freely. He has long held the view that there is a nuclear stalemate in the world and that the next war will be fought on the ground. So he wants to see more money spent for mobile ground forces.

These views, expressed by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, until recently head of the U. S. Army, serve to emphasize the kind of problem that now a days faces the President of the United States as the commander-in-chief of our armed forces.

LAWRENCE

General Taylor, like General Power of the Strategic Air Command, is sincerely dedicated to the defense of the United States. The ideas and advice of both generals have previously been laid before the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Secretary of Defense and the President. So they are not new. But what is new is the prodding of such generals by Democratic leaders in Congress who seek to publicize an impression that the defense of the United States is imperiled, even if it means telling the enemy more details of our defense preparations.

ONE WOULD think that in a matter of such vital concern to the nation the orderly way would be for the committees to receive testimony in private, and for the committee chairmen thereafter to express themselves to the Secretary of Defense or to lay their views in confidence before the President. But the trouble with that procedure is that it would not get the headlines so necessary to assist the Democrats in their efforts to discredit the administration.

What General Taylor says about the need for ground forces, on the theory that nuclear war will never be fought, is, of course, realistic. It is something the highest military advisers of the President took into account a few years ago when they favored the "new look." A decision had to be made as to how the available funds would be spent. The policy finally laid down by the President called for a massive retaliatory power, with manned bombers, missiles and nuclear weapons of all kinds, to deter any aggression by a potential enemy.

TRAVELING LOBSTERS

Lobsters, once thought to do little traveling, drift hundreds of miles as tiny spiderlike lobsterlings before settling to the sea bottom.

WHEN A man who has been Chief of Staff of the Army makes a declaration to Congress that our defense set-up is "inadequate," it naturally gives the members something to utilize in their assault on the administration's policies. This has always been a tough problem for democratic government. If the President feels that tensions have been relaxed for a while and that an airborne alert, for instance, isn't needed 24 hours a day every day in the week, he may be taking what is called a "calculated risk." But that's his responsibility. The generals, on the other hand, have no diplomatic duties or over-all responsibility for the economic welfare of the nation. The President gives reassuring statements constantly that, in the judgment of the highest military officers on the Joint Chiefs of Staff, America is safe and has sufficient deterrent power to prevent an enemy from attacking us. But all this is brushed aside while the criticism is aired.

Labor Plays Cagey With Demo Rivals

WASHINGTON—President Dave McDonald of the Steel Workers states firmly that he remains a true-born Democrat despite the help afforded him in the steel strike settlement by the Eisenhower administration and Vice President Richard Nixon.

FLEESON

He deposes further that he will be a well-behaved member of the Pennsylvania delegation to the National Convention which will be led by Gov. David Lawrence. Lawrence is one of the old pros who refuse to take sides in the presidential primaries.

McDonald's own choice among the candidates is Sen. John Kennedy. This is a decision which reflects his long friendship with the Senator's banker-industrialist father, Joseph Kennedy.

It is not unusual for McDonald to make political decisions which cut across the general preference of labor leaders. So far this year, however, there has been no question of cutting across any party line favored by labor's elder statesmen or principal spokesmen. They are being very cagey indeed as between the rival candidates on the Democratic side, both with respect to kind words and money.

THE ONLY ONE they definitely view with alarm is the Senate Majority Leader, Lyndon Johnson, but they have a sage reluctance to incur his hostility.

In general, the advice from AFL-CIO Headquarters here suggests benevolent neutrality among the rivals.

This is particularly frustrating to Sen. Hubert Humphrey who had expected more militant support from labor. He claims that on several occasions local leaders who promised him help were dissuaded by AFL-CIO President George Meany himself.

Humphrey feels that Sen. Kennedy's brother, Bob, formerly counsel for the McClellan inquiry into labor racketeering, has been largely influential in enforcing the neutrality policy on the unions. This is both possible and legal.

THE TRUTH is that the hazy labor situation reflects the view of the whole party that there is not too much to choose between the candidates and that anything can happen at Los Angeles. The primary risks being assumed by Kennedy may alter that view—some observers feel that there is an excellent chance that they will. But so far they have not done so.

Evidence has been accumulating in recent years that labor does not follow its leaders politically, anyway, as it did when times were lean.

Most labor leaders reassure Democrats that they will be on hand when the election struggle against the Republicans starts. But this represents not so much personal hostility to the Vice President as it does deep-dyed suspicion of the Republican Party.

BOB HOUSER

Demos Have Spares While GOP Hunts for 44th Entry

WHILE DEMOCRATS were seeking suitable pigeonholes for a presidential-like abundance of candidates for Long Beach area offices this weekend, Republicans were working from an empty cote and still looking for an acceptance from a select list of reluctant eagles to run against Democrat Joe Kennick in the 44th Assembly District.

"Forty-four shortly or flight" seemed to parody the desperation of their battle. But the GOP task force remained adamant in its disposition to pick only a blue-ribbon type for the West Long Beach sprint for the Assembly.

Meanwhile, across Orange Ave. to the East Long Beach 70th Assembly District and Bill Grant territory, Democrats wrestled with that aforementioned pigeon-holing trouble.

Even while the 70th A. D. Democratic Council was considering its Saturday night endorsement between Mrs. Ora Knudson and Bill Peake, there was a rumble of a non-CDC (California Democratic Council) entry in the race.

Dr. Francis C. Hertzog Sr., of 270 Argonne Ave., an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist and new appointee (last week) to the Long Beach State College Advisory Board, was poised on the verge.

Despite the CDC endorsement, Dr. Hertzog, as a second or third candidate in the race, would be a formidable opponent. He has lived in Long Beach for 32 years, is a Rotarian, and is engaged in professional practice with Francis Jr., a U. S. Naval Academy graduate.

The elder Hertzog served in WW I as a medical officer with a submarine. He left WW II service after three years as a lieutenant commander and was reappointed medical examiner for the Civil Aeronautics Board.

If he chooses to run, the 70th race would become to Long Beach Democrats what the 18th Congressional District race promises to be—a contest between the CDC-endorsed candidate and a free-lancer.

In the 18th, Dr. Wallace Moore asked for and got the CDC endorsement while his Democratic primary opponent, Councilman Pat Ahern, took the free-lance route.

TWO OTHER DEMOCRATS in the county are walking a tightrope trying to be nice to each other. They are State Sen. Richard Richards and Supervisors Chairman Frank Bonelli.

Their conflict lies outside their mutually professed friendship—whether or not the State Senate shall be reapportioned soon. Bonelli authored the plan to "do it now" by way of a current petition to have it placed on the November ballot, a plan to divide the Senate 20-20, North and South.

Senator Richards says his good friend's plan is "reactionary, retrogressive," and would kill expected northern cooperation with the big water bond issue of November.

Bonelli lauds Richards' ability but maintains the South will have to carry the water bond so might as well carry the reapportionment at the same swoop.

Petitions to qualify the reapportionment matter for the ballot need 420,000 valid signatures. They'll shoot for more than 600,000 actual names to assure enough good ones. Petitioners have more than 60,000 names on hand, estimate 100,000 more are signed but not yet returned to headquarters. They have a good 10 weeks more time to get the job done.

Some Bouquets for McCarthy

EDITOR:

I think that Robert McCarthy of the Motor Vehicle Bureau deserves bouquets and not the knocks that he has been getting because he has revoked licenses of drunken drivers. A first offense is no excuse; a man drunk for the first time can cause the deaths of many other innocent people. In fact, in recent notices of these kinds of accidents the drunk usually survives with nothing more than a few bruises while the innocent individuals are either killed or maimed and suffer horribly. I am amazed that judges would condone this kind of behavior even "for the first time."

Certainly a person old enough to have a driver's license is old enough to understand the dangers of a liquor while driving, and also the fact that if his license is revoked it may mean his job, because he will not have a means of transportation to earn his livelihood.

What is to prevent the driver who has caused all this commotion from driving under the influence of alcohol again? Since he has gotten off this easily, I'm sure he won't even think of it the next time.

EDITOR:

How gratifying it was to see the Court of Appeals uphold DMV Commissioner McCarthy's revocation of a license because of drunk driving. And it was twice as pleasing to see it quash Judge Smith's charge of contempt lodged against McCarthy.

Here is a ray of hope shining through the muck of jellyfish justice which has plagued law enforcement in California for a long time. This McCarthy is a man after our own hearts, realizing that the drunk driver is as great a menace to society as the armed robber or the dope peddler. He appears determined to do something about the auto death rate in California, and it looks as if he might win—in spite of the collectively tender-hearted bench.

The other day, while Senator Kefauver of Tennessee was exposing how consumers were being gouged by exorbitant prices of tranquilizers and other drugs, there appeared a guest editorial in the American Professional Pharmacist Magazine, sharply attacking the Kefauver inquiry.

The editorial said in part: "To seek the facts is laudable. But to prejudice or to err by depending in part on meaningless or questionable figures, which may project a confusing, even distorted, picture of a subject... is unfortunate."

The man who made that statement is the former editor of the AMA Journal—the same Dr. Austin E. Smith. The interesting fact is that he is now president of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Assn.

It's the Internal Revenue agents who are really bringing out the sweat. Disc jockeys who failed to report their payola profits are now facing the music.

WHY CASTRO HATES US—A lot of people want to know why Fidel Castro is so hostile toward the United States. The generally accepted theory is that his bitterness stems from the days when he was hiding out in Cuba's mountains, fighting a guerrilla campaign against President Batista who he claimed was getting arms from the U. S. Actually, the State Department clamped a tight embargo on arms to Batista, while arms continued flowing to Castro. This was what caused Batista's downfall.

Regardless of this, however, the real fact is that Castro's anti-American phobia dates back to his earliest childhood.

It centers around his father, Angel Castro y Agiz. Born in Spain, the elder Castro was brought to Cuba as an infant, just before the Spanish-American War. The family felt strongly about that conflict and raised their son on the version that it was deliberately provoked by the United States to take over the Philippines and Puerto Rico and get control of Cuba's rich sugar production. Angel Castro y Agiz later instilled that idea in his own children.

Then in 1931 Angel went to work for the United Fruit Co. After seven years on that job, he was abruptly fired and charged with systematic, wholesale theft of refined sugar throughout the time of his employment. The case was eventually dropped for lack of cooperative witnesses.

MIAMI BEACH, (UPI) — A 57-year-old cook, Mitsa Haru Ochiai, was jailed here Saturday and charged with speeding, hitting a fixed object, driving while intoxicated and a rare cout —improper emerging from a vehicle.

The cook drove his car across a Miami causeway at 100 miles an hour. He outdistanced pursuing officers until he hit a pole. He had been drinking. That took care of the first three charges.

And the final charge? That came when Ochiai disobeyed the police who ordered him to stay in his car. He disobeyed, swung the car door open and knocked a policeman off his motorcycle.

NEW DISCOVERY FOR HARD OF HEARING

To all readers of the Ind., P-T, the Diagnostic Offices will give the first treatment for only $3.

According to the Basic Diag- nostic Office it is now possible for many who are hard of hearing to regain all or part of their hearing loss.

So many have told us we have tried everything and we are so discouraged that we hesitate to try anything else. Once they try this new and proved method they are overjoyed. Just like magic, in many cases they are able to hear without their hearing aid after the first treatment.

The treatment is simple, it con- sists of three steps, and takes about 45 minutes. If the hearing loss is due to a nerve condition, a special treatment is given, if the loss is due to catarrh, a dif- ferent treatment is given, if it is a bone condition, the Tympanic Oscillations treatment is given.

According to Basic Diagnostic, 70% of all hard of hearing peo- ple will be helped by this method. We believe it is as great a dis- covery as insulin was for diabetes. We are so sure that we can help you that we will give you the first treatment for only $3.00. Please bring in this ad within 10 days from today.

OLD SALT RECALLS SQUARE-RIGGER DAYS

Crew Shanghaied, Cost Him $25 a Man

By LEE CRAIG

What was the roughest, toughest port on this side of the Pacific, around the turn of the century?

Not San Francisco, with its famed Barbary Coast, according to an 80-year-old former square-rigger captain who now lives in San Pedro.

"The Barbary Coast couldn't hold a candle to Portland," asserts Capt. Pierre Picherie, 2738 Peck Ave., who is still tough enough himself to take a daily dip in the ocean, the year around.

"At Portland," the stocky, French-born skipper says, "they not only shanghaied my crew, but they also had the infernal gall to sell them back to me at $25 a head."

Picherie is a native of Nantes, Brittany, which has supplied most of France's seamen for centuries. His father and grandfather as well as most of his boyhood friends followed the sea.

SALTY SEXTANT

Salted by square-rigger spray, his 60-year-old sextant is as good as those used today, sailing master Pierre Picherie says.—(Staff Photo)

A SHIPBOARD INJURY cut Picherie's career short back in 1904. However, the Frenchman felt another, more compelling reason to leave the calling.

The age of steam had begun to drive the proud sailing ships from the sea and Picherie could see the handwriting on the wall. He had no use for the "smelly iron kettles" called steamers or for the men who manned them.

"This was not in the tradition of my family, to sail in such vessels," he says.

Picherie built his home in the San Pedro hills, with a balcony where he can "walk the quarterdeck" and look out on the ships in Los Angeles Harbor. His den is designed as a replica of a master's cabin aboard ship.

On a wall hangs a painting of the three-masted bark Duchesse Olga, in which he was first mate in 1900 when the vessel's steel masts were snapped off in a hurricane near Cape Horn.

THE SHIP HAD BEEN on its way from San Francisco to Le Havre with a cargo of barley, but the jury rig with which it survived the blow permitted only sailing before the wind.

The Duchesse Olga drifted as much as she sailed before the southeast tradewinds all the way to the Tuamotu Archipelago, where the battered bark put in at Papeete, Tahiti.

There, they learned they would have to wait three months before new rigging could be delivered by British steamer from New Zealand. "We passed the time quite successfully," Picherie says, with a sidelong glance at his wife. "Of course, I was single then," he adds.

PICHÉRIE WENT BACK to Tahiti last fall, on the Matson liner Monterey, for the first time since those happy months 50 years ago. He found the island little changed, except for the presence of many more Europeans.

Traveling has become Picherie's hobby in recent years. He and his wife are planning a trip to Brittany, where the Frenchman will visit relatives he hasn't seen since 1939.

This time, though, they won't go by ship.

U.S. Expects 800,000 to Go Abroad

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Nearly 800,000 Americans are making overseas travel plans, the State Department passport office said Saturday.

The 800,000, 14 per cent more than last year, will be applying for passports during 1960. The office is preparing to process some 5,200 applications a day during March, April and May alone. Sometime early in this decade, predicts Miss Frances G. Knight, director of the office, the number of Americans deciding to see at least part of the world will reach a million.

Modernized Longshore Work to Be Tested by Engineers

Modernized longshore work methods will be tested this month by scientists and engineers of the Maritime Cargo Transportation Conference, a part of the National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council.

The tests, to be undertaken with the cooperation of the Navy at its Oakland Supply Center, are an attempt to find what can be done to improve production and reduce waterfront cargo handling costs.

The new work methods incorporate some of the latest types of powered handling equipment. They include an almost complete reorganization of present work patterns and job assignment of longshore occupations.

Besides reducing cargo handling costs, increasing production and reducing the arduousness of the work, economic gains through reduced ship time in port are expected.

The researchers plan to measure energy expenditure levels of the workmen to be certain that any production gains noted stem from the new systems rather than from increased physical exertions of the labor force.

The long shoremen themselves will be a big help in ensuring this.

WHEN THE DANCE floor of the Orient and Pacific liner Oronsay was redesigned recently, a British architect had an opportunity to demonstrate his originality.

He painted the floor a deep purple, to begin with. Then, he wanted a pale glow over the floor and the overhead electrical fittings he came up with were 25-pound World War II shell cases.

During the remodeling, he also used fluorescent paint similar to that used on Russian aircraft and Danish ice breakers, according to the company.

THE MORMACPRIDE, first cargo liner in Moore-McCormack Liners' $43,000,000 ship replacement program, was launched last week at Sunline.

This new cargo liner has a clipper bow and a cruiser stern, giving her almost a yachtlike appearance. A rounded bridge and a dummy smokestack streamlines the superstructure while two giant kingposts on the after-deck act as exhausts to carry off engine fumes.

Humphrey May Ask L.B. Man's Help

By BOB HOUSER
When Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey chats here next Thursday with Long Beach Democratic Luncheon Club President Dav Selcer, the Minnesota Democrat may be making a pitch for Selcer's aid in lining up a slate of delegates for an emergency entry into this state's primary.

Robert E. Lee, of The Independent Press - Telegram Washington Bureau, reports that Humphrey is considering forming a slate as insurance in the event he's forced to enter here by the entry of Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass). Humphrey is featured speaker at the local club's Thursday noon luncheon meeting in the Wilton Hotel Pageant Room. Selcer said reservations are going fast but still may be made by calling HE 2-7348 or JIE 15-0923.

SELGER, LONG A personal friend of Humphrey and a former Minnesotan, feels warmly toward Humphrey's candidacy and is a member of the Democratic State Central Committee. That they should discuss this "emergency" slate is indicated, since Humphrey's appearance here comes less than a month before the March 9 filing date for delegations.
Also, as Lee's report points out, Gov. Edmund G. Brown will expect to have his favorite son delegation packed with every big Democratic name in the state, thus pulling the pinch on Humphrey in the matter of naming a representative list of Democrats.

2 Freeway Injured on Critical List

Two Manhattan Beach youths remained in critical condition Saturday following an accident which claimed the life of a 51-year-old Orange man.

Doctors at Anaheim Memorial Hospital at a late hour Saturday said the conditions of Kenneth Elling and Raymond C. David, both 17, "were unchanged and the two remain on the critical list."

KILLED IN the accident was Dale McLeod, of 170 S. Pixley St., Orange, who reportedly crashed into the auto driven by Elling after crossing into the opposite lane of the Santa Ana Freeway in Buena Park early Saturday.

Russ Party Balks, Visits Steel Mill

CHICAGO (UPI)—A party of Russian officials Saturday threatened to break off a tour of Chicago unless they were shown steel mills, factories and "more of the economy."

Only a last-minute change in plans by harried tour officials stayed the threatened Russian departure to their hotel rooms.

The threat came from D. S. Polyanski, chairman of the council of ministers of the U.S.S.R., after the group had shown little interest in the hatching of baby chicks at a museum.

POLYANSKI, head of about 25 upper-echelon Communists, many of them roughly comparable to U.S. governors, called a halt to a tour of the Museum of Science and Industry and told tour officials:

"We want to see more of the economy. We want to see steel mills, factories at work."

Mrs. Frayn Utley, regional director of the Institute of International Education, which is managing the tour for the host U.S. Governor's Conference, said it was impossible to find a factory open on Saturday.

"You can't walk in with 31 people at 2 p.m. and make a request and expect to walk through a plant at 4 p.m.," she told Polyanski.

THE SOVIET official smiled, but waved his arms insistently and replied, "we will go straight to the hotel now." He began putting on his overcoat and signalled other Russians to do the same.

Mrs. Utley got a telephone call at that point and returned to say that U.S. Steel Corp. would permit a small number of the party to tour its South Works at South Chicago.

The offer apparently mollified the Russians, and Polyanski, along with three other officials, went to the steel plant while the rest of the party continued the scheduled tour.

Ex-Universe Contestant Weds Actor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Actor James Darren and Evy Nordlund, a former Miss Denmark, were married at St. Patrick's Cathedral Saturday.

Among those attending the ceremony was Negro actor Sidney Poitier, with whom Darren played in "All the Young Men."

Also attending the ceremony were the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Ercolani of Philadelphia. Miss Joyce Selznick, Columbia Pictures executive, was maid of honor.

70th District Demos Back Ora Knudson

Mrs. Ora G. Knudson, 47-year-old Lakewood housewife, was endorsed for State Assembly candidacy Saturday night by the 70th Assembly District Democratic Council and immediately issued a fight warning to the incumbent, William S. Grant.

Amid signs exhorting "don't be a fraidy—vote for a lady," the 71 convention delegates in the Pan American Park clubhouse voted, 49-22, for Mrs. Knudson. Then her opponent, William H. Peake, 31, of 246 Coronado Ave., moved successfully to have the endorsement made unanimous.

MRS. KNUDSON is president of the 18th Congressional District Democratic Council. She is a charter member of the Lakewood Co-ordinating Council and heads its symposium on juvenile delinquency; is president-elect of the Long Beach Camp Fire Girls Council; is a member of the boards of Lakewood YMCA and Long Beach YWCA; recipient of the 1959 Ruth Bach award for service by the Lakewood Women's Club; and is a member of St. Maria Goretti's Catholic Church.

MRS. KNUDSON listed the "Republican aspect of the local press" among the problems of a Democratic candidate, but added, "newspapers are never as strong a method of communication as word of mouth." She promised an active and aggressive campaign and warned her Republican opponent "prepare yourself, you're in for a fight."

Mrs. Knudson lives with her husband, Joseph, at 6102 Hendree St. They have a daughter, 11, and a married son, 22.

Demand Increases for Calif. Golf Tournaments

By JERRY WYNN

PALM SPRINGS—Next year's California golf gold rush will be the most spectacular ever, according to PGA czar Ed Carter.

"There's such a demand for tournaments in California," Carter explained Saturday, "that we could play here for three months. But we just have to fulfill commitments in other parts of the nation."

Lined up for 1961 in this order are $50,000 tournaments in Los Angeles, San Diego, Pebble Beach and San Francisco to be followed by another $100,000 Desert Classic here.

Carter said he had offers from six cities to fill a proposed four-week West Coast swing this fall. He named Costa Mesa, Yorba Linda, Hesperia, Tijuana, Bakersfield and San Jose as the bidders.

Hesperia and Tijuana, both for purses of $25,000 appear certain with either Costa Mesa (Orange County Open) or Yorba Linda filling a third spot, and either San Jose or Bakersfield the last.

"California definitely is the hot bed of the nation in golf," concluded Carter.

Long Beach?

Lack of interest is pathetic.

THUNDERBIRD COUNTRY CLUB, which is supposed to have more golf carts than any other course in the nation, was invaded by a new type vehicle this week. Two helicopters were used to fly reporters from press headquarters at Thunderbird to the other sites of action at Tamarisk, Bermuda Dunes and Indian Wells.

And, wowie, they're the greatest things since pogo sticks!

Pilot of my whirlbird was Jim Gavin, who is vice president of the Mercury Helicopter Service, Inc. of Torrance and Long Beach who attended high school at St. Anthony and Wilson.

The craft skips around the desert at a merry pace of about 90 mph and seldom flies higher than 600 feet. However, Gavin proudly informs that he can go as high as 16,000.

Could I buy one to take home to my five-year-old son?

Sure can, for $80,000!

SHORT HOPS:

Al Besselink, golf's most notorious gambler, slipped when asked what course he was playing Friday. Replied Al: "Bermuda Downs."

... Dave Marr of Houston, who has a 72-hole total of 280, will be married here tonight to Susan Davidson of New York. Jackie Burke, Marr's cousin, will be best man.

... Joe Campbell was a teammate of Lamar Lundy on the Purdue basketball team. Commented little Joe: "Big Lamar was my bodyguard. He's a tremendous defensive athlete."

... "Mike Ferentz, former National Public Links champion while playing from Meadowlark a decade ago and now a Palm Springs resident, plans to spend this summer in Long Beach and play in some tournaments.

... Bill Johnston, a Provo, Utah, pro, is a native of Danora, Pa., the town famous for producing such star athletes as Stan Musial. Deacon Dan Towler and Arnold Califfa.

... Jim (Maverick) Garner was a mean hombre Tuesday when he discovered that he was inadvertently left out of the tournament after accepting an invitation and paying the entry fee.

... Stock market reports are posted on a special board in the Thunderbird golf shop.

... George Bayer made two eagles on the back nine at Indian Wells Thursday, but shot only 70.

... Three was the lucky hole-in-one number for Joe Campbell. He used a 3-iron and a No. 3 ball on the par-three hole.

Wes Ellis was asked what he thought of Jose Becerra. He shook his head: "What course did he play?"

... Shadow Mountain Golf Club was opened Saturday, giving the Palm Springs area 13 courses. It's the golf paradise of the nation.

Bob Kelley Says---

Baseball and Golf Go Well Together

PALM SPRINGS—What chance does a man have to hit the pro golf tour at 40 years old and make the grade? Jerry Priddy, the former American League second baseman, aims to find out.

I forgot to bring my baseball record books along and neglected to ask Priddy his exact age, so perhaps I'm doing him an injustice by saying he is 40. But I'm close enough to suit the purpose of this column.

For years, Priddy has been one of the top golfers among the baseball set. Some, in the past, have claimed swinging a baseball bat hurts one's golf, and vice-versa.

Actually, I think the baseball skippers resent golf only because they're afraid it will tire their athletes. They would rather have them taking a snooze in their hotel room.

"I don't believe the two interfere with one another," Jerry told me. "A good athlete should be able to swing both a baseball bat and a golf stick; of course, I wouldn't recommend that you play a game of baseball and a game of golf every day of the year. It might be a little tough to groove a swing for one or the other."

JERRY PRIDDY
More Pressure in Golf

WHAT HE SAID about any good athlete being able to make a competent golfer was proved to me years ago when Waterfield took up the game and was shooting 73s six months later.

Tiny jockeys like Willie Shoemaker and Mitchell Shirota would make you and I look sick on a golf course. Not only do they have strong wrists, but also good coordination.

If I were ever good enough to go on the pro tour (and don't worry, Irving, it will never happen) the thing that would bother me most is the pressure. Good grief, every shot, every putt means money.

"If you've played major league baseball," Priddy claims, "you ought to know how to handle pressure."

"YEH," I ARGUED, "but the pressure in golf is like nothing in the world. Which would you rather do—try to hit Bob Feller's fast ball with two out in the bottom of the ninth, or attempt to sink a 12-foot putt on the final hole that could win you a big tournament?"

Priddy scratched his crew-cut head: "To tell the truth, I'd just as soon be home watching both events on TV."

"No, I mean it."

"Well," Jerry pondered, "if you pin me down to it, I guess I would rather take a crack at Feller."

Line Coach Ross Named Poly Boss

Maury Ross, who joined the Poly High grid staff last season as line coach, has been elevated to the head coaching position.

Ross, 28, replaces Dave Levy who resigned last week to join the staff at the University of Southern California.

With the Poly post filled, there were two head coaching vacancies in Long Beach high schools—at Millikan and at Jordan. School officials did not say when those positions would be filled.

ROSS IS a graduate of Western Illinois University, where he received a master's degree. He is a science teacher.

Ross says he will continue to use the T formation. "There may be a few changes, but nothing radical."

Any predictions about a third-in-a-row CIF championship?

"Let's win the first game ing," he says, "with four regulars back." They are halfback Harvey Crow, defensive back saying goes.

Rogers Nets 29 as Bills Breeze

Lockyers stormed into a commanding lead midway in the first quarter and breezed the first quarter and breezed a 95-75 victory over the Caballeros Friday night in an Azor-Glaze (8-2) and Kirby's AAU game played at East Los Angeles City College.

The victory was the sixth against three setbacks for the Bills and left them in third to the place behind Pasadena Mirador-Glaze (8-2) and Kirby's Shoes (7-2).

ELLIOTT RUNS 12TH MILE UNDER 4 MIN.

MELBOURNE (A)—World record holder Herb Elliott, still short of top form, ran his 12th sub-four-minute mile and came within 1.1 seconds of the Olympic 1,500-meter record on a remote grass track Saturday.

Despite being buffeted by a strong wind, and running without being pressed by a field of relative unknowns, the lean Aussie was timed in 3 minutes, 59.8 seconds for the mile.

He finished the 1,500 meters, the metric mile, in 3:42.3. The Olympic 1,500-meter record is 3:41.2, set in the 1956 Games here by Ireland's Ron Delany.

Greta Enters Argentine Marathon

Greta Andersen, world renowned woman distance swimmer, left Long Beach Saturday for South America where she will compete in Argentina's International Marathon swim Feb. 21.

The 31-year-old Danish-born mermaid took along a key to the city of Long Beach to be presented to the mayor of Mar del Plata in Argentina. The key was given to Greta Saturday by Mayor Raymond Kealer of Long Beach.

Greta will compete against some of the top swimmers in the world, including Argentina's Alfredo Camerero, who beat her in the English Channel race last year.

Others include Tontilva Guiterrez, winner of the 21-mile race from Capri to Naples, Italy, in 1959, Mexican champion Herman Willemse and Egypt's Abdul Reim.

The marathon race covers 30 miles of treacherous, shark-infested waters. Accompanying Greta is her husband and trainer John Sonnichsen.

No Definite Offer From AFL--Gunsel

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Austin Gunsel, re-elected National Football League treasurer after losing out for the commissioner of the AFL, telephoned him, expressing his regrets.

"If they don't want you, we do," Gunsel quoted Foss.

But Gunsel quickly added, "that was all that was said. There was nothing definite then and there is nothing definite now."

Gunsel, a former FBI agent who acted as interim commissioner after the death of Bert Bell last October, said he did not know how stories got started that he had received a definite offer from the AFL.

AFL to Televisize Nationally; Plan 2 Games Weekly

By JIM KENSIL

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Football League is slowly developing a television policy designed both to boost its own organization and serve as a weapon against the rival National Football League.

The TV plan of the AFL, as disclosed exclusively to the Associated Press, is briefly this:

The AFL will televise two, possible three, games weekly on a nationwide basis. There will be Sunday TV games, Friday or Saturday night games and maybe even Wednesday night games. On Sundays, in cities where the AFL has NFL competition, the new league will not pit its home games against the NFL.

INSTEAD, THE AFL will play away at the same time as the NFL is on the road, and match its TV against NFL TV.

When both are home the AFL will play on Friday or Saturday night, leaving the traditional Sunday date to the NFL.

In late season, when the colleges have finished the regular schedule, there also will be AFL TV games on Saturday afternoons, just as the NFL has had for several years.

The TV plan of the NFL has been traditionally a regional setup with only a smattering of nationwide games each year. As does the NFL, the AFL will black out cities in which home games are being played, but AFL fans will get a lot more pro football TV than under the NFL setup because of the large number of games on days other than Sunday.

THE AFL HAS THESE ADVANTAGES:

1. As already officially announced, the eight teams in the league will split the TV money equally and the televising network will deal with the league directly. This makes for better control and should eliminate bickering between clubs as has been the case in the NFL, where each club had dealt individually with the network for as much as it can get.

2. The AFL should gain the favor of the viewing public simply by giving them more TV than the NFL has been offering, and by doing the telecasts in a time slot not previously used by pro football.

3. With nationwide exposure, the AFL can command as much, and possibly more money per game as the NFL even with an improved product.

Top Harrier Field in L.B. Beach Run

The second Pacific Ocean cross country championships, along the Long Beach strand Saturday, Feb. 13, will boast one of the biggest and best fields of any harrier event in the nation.

This was assured Saturday with the entries of Jerry Smart, Pete Mundle, Mike Allen, Eric Clark and Tom Ryan.

Smart, a former champion at the University of Houston, now represents the Houston Track and Field Club; Mundle, a member of the Striders, is Pacific Coast cross country champ; Allen won the Western Hemisphere race in 1958; Clark, who hails from London, represents the British Channel AC, while Ryan, a Long Beach State runner, is a veteran of the Boston Marathon.

THEY'LL JOIN such other top-notchers as Leroy Neal of Fullerton College, Jim Schultz of L. B. State, and Bob Cons and Bob Drake of the Culver City AC. Drake ran second to Max Truex last year. Truex has tendered a tentative entry.

There will be four races on the hard-packed sand along the surf between Rainbow and Belmont Piers:

2 p.m., AAU Open 4.4 mile run.
2:30 p.m., Long Beach Century Club high school mile.
3 p.m., College four-mile relay.
3:30 p.m., Century Club's open mile race.

The unique competition is sponsored by Long Beach State and the Century Club. Entry information may be obtained from coaches Gene

Finsterwald Top Money Winner, Seeks Ryder Cup

DUNEDIN, Fla. (A)—Dow Finsterwald leads the Professional Golfers' Assn. 1960 winter tour in official money earned and seems bent on taking home the Ryder Cup and maybe the Vardon Trophy.

The 30-year-old winner of the 1960 Los Angeles Open has earned $6,487.50 in the first month of the tour.

Finsterwald, who plays out of Tequesta, Fla., also leads the top tourney performance standings with 241 points. Julius Boros of Southern Pines, N. C., has 231.50 and Bob Goalby of Crystal River, Fla., 218. Bill Casper Jr., of Apple Valley, Calif., is fourth with 214.

Jay Hebert of Sanford, Fla., leads the Ryder Cup standings with 178 1/6 points but Finsterwald is behind him with 177 1/4. Finsterwald ranks fifth in the Vardon Trophy competition with a 71.91 stroke average.

ILLINOIS TO VOTE TODAY

L.A. Cage Tourney Key to Big Ten Rose Bowl Renewal?

CHICAGO (UPI) — A holiday basketball tournament might be the key to bring about renewal of the Big Ten agreement to send a football team to the Rose Bowl each year.

Three Big Ten teams, Illinois, Michigan and Northwestern, played in the Los Angeles classic last December with the Big Five, which replaces the Pacific Coast Conference as the western Rose Bowl team beginning next year.

The appearance of the Big Ten teams was the first under an annual arrangement under which four Big Ten clubs will play in the tournament each year, and the success of the event was such that it might have a bearing on the vote by Illinois' faculty on whether to sign a new pact to send a football team to the Rose Bowl.

"We were very well treated out there," Illini cage coach Harry Combes said, "and it was a wonderful tournament. We're looking forward to going back there in two years."

Combes said he couldn't speculate that the success of the basketball event would affect Illinois' Rose Bowl vote, but he thought that "it might."

Illinois was one of five schools opposed to the Rose Bowl agreement in the last vote and it was regarded as the most likely to change

Western States Boxing Revolt Squashed by NBA

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A budding revolt among western members of the National Boxing Assn. was squashed Saturday, according to NBA President Anthony Macaroni.

He held a meeting with representatives from Washington, Oregon, Nevada, Idaho, Utah, Colorado and Hawaii. This group, which huddled Friday with California and New York representatives, voted to stick with the NBA, Macaroni said.

California withdrew recently from the NBA, charging it was a "do nothing" organization. The meeting Friday was called by California to discuss mutual problems, and possibility of a new prize-fighting association was brought up.

Several of the commissioners present contended the NBA is no longer representative.

2 Jockeys Hurt in Three-Horse Spill at Caliente

AGUA CALIENTE (UPI)—Three California jockeys were thrown to the turf Saturday in a chilling first turn spill in the 10th race at Caliente.

Ernest Supiran, 28, of Oakland, and Alan Dagg, 22, of Imperial Beach, were hospitalized in San Diego. Apprentice Basil Frazier, 22, of El Monte, was not hurt. Rosyth, ridden by Supiran, fell first. Then Preponderance, with Dagg in the saddle, and Casual Miss, with Frazier aboard, crashed to the ground.

Calumet Farm's On-And-On sprinted to a neck victory in the McLennan Handicap, beating 25,874 racing fans at Hialeah Saturday, beating the fast-closing Bald Eagle in an exciting finish.

On-And-On sped the mile and a furlong in 1:48 4/5, surprisingly fast time for a track labeled "poor" after overnight rain. Tudor Era was third and Talent Show fourth in the field of nine.

On-And-On, carrying 120 pounds with Steve Brooks riding, moved to the front at the clubhouse turn and never was headed. He paid $6.60, $3.40 and $2.80. Bald Eagle, the 3-2 favorite, returned $3.30 and $2.70. Tudor Era was $3.20 to show.

Fractional times were: 22 3/4, :46, 1:10 1/5 and 1:35 4/5.

TENACIOUS won the $12,525 Louisiana Handicap for the third straight year by storming up from sixth place to defeat Matinal by four lengths at the Fair Grounds.

The stewards gave the fans an anxious 10 minutes while they reviewed films of the race and then announced that Silver Spoon was in the clear when she drifted to the inside rail and that in their opinion no foul had been committed.

Hoof Injury Makes Warfare Doubtful Starter

Warfare, the champion two-year-old of 1959, was called a doubtful starter Saturday by his trainer in next Friday's Santa Anita $50,000 California Breeders' championship stakes because of a slight hoof injury.

Trainer Hack Ross said that Warfare's shoe on his left front foot spread accidentally earlier this week and the nails tore out, causing a slight injury to the outer wall of the hoof.

"He is sound now," Ross said, "but the accident slowed us up temporarily in his training routine and I do not think it would be advisable to run him a mile and a sixteenth at this time."

Wildcat Holds No Fear for 13-Year-Old

ROADS END, KERNVILLE—Ever try catching a wildcat bare-handed? Of course you haven't! But there are a few persons who have. Call such a person crazy if you like, but perhaps he has just enough of what great-grandpappy had that he will face the wilderness courageously and give no quarter.

Such a person is Ray, 13-year-old son of Guy and Joyce Marschner, who operate secluded Pascoe's Lodge on the Kern River 16 miles above Kernville.

RAY MARSCHNER

Ray has a snarling wildcat caged here and awaiting transfer to a zoo, provided any zoo keeper is goofy enough to want a pretty little kitty.

It all started three weeks ago when Ray was riding the bus down the Kern River Canyon to school. The wildcat darted across the road in front of the bus; the driver swerved in an attempt to hit the cat but missed. When he stopped, Ray jumped out and started chasing the wildcat up a mountain slope.

The wildcat changed his course and headed straight for the river with Ray in pursuit. When the cat jumped in a pool, Ray went in on top of him. Ray grabbed the cat by the back of the neck and hauled him out.

THE BUS DRIVER AND RAY got the cat in a box and went on to school. A teacher had to swab Ray's cuts and scratches with iodine, but otherwise Ray was unharmed. While Ray spent the day in school, the bus driver built a wooden cage for the growling cat. When school closed for the day, Ray took the cat home and transferred it to a more secure cage.

When Guy came home and learned about the incident, he flipped his 10-gallon Stetson and said: *** (Oh well, there are some words you don't dare print). Ray said: "Well you always said I could have a pet, didn't you?" Guy agreed to go along with the idea, provided the game warden granted permission.

Well, anyone who can catch a wildcat with his bare hands didn't have much trouble getting the warden's OK, but with the idea that the cat should eventually go to a zoo.

WE HAVE VISITED our friends, the Marschners, several times, and the domesticated and wild animals always produce some excitement. Some of you readers probably remember stories about Firecracker, Guy's white-faced jackass who is always shaking up some part of Kern River Valley with his own peculiar type of comedy. Well, Firecracker is at it again.

Guy, who is chairman of the upcoming fourth annual Whisky Flat Days (Feb. 18-21), took his horses down to the Hi-Ho Motel's corral in Kernville yesterday for a press rehearsal of the Flat Days celebration. That night, Firecracker—and this is not the first time he's done it—nuzzled around the corral gate and finally got it open. Out went all the horses and it took half the real cowboys of this valley all night to round 'em up. Came the dawn and some of the wranglers discussed shooting Firecracker, but after one look at the white-faced little donkey, they melted.

YOU WILL BE MISSING something if you don't get up this way for Whisky Flat Days. They've got everything—fast-draw contests, can-can girls, tours of the old-time mines and smelters, frontier dances and political rallies. Actually Kernville is missing a hot by not renaming itself Whisky Flat, but, perhaps, in saying that, I am sticking my head in the hangman's noose which the committee has erected near the Hi-Ho Motel.

Kernville, just 190 miles from Long Beach via Hwy. 99, Wheeler Ridge and Hwy. 178, is really dressed up for its celebration. There are a half-dozen candidates for mayor of Whisky Flat. Guy is one of them. I bought 10 tickets on him and stuffed 'em into the ballot box. I felt certain that he would appreciate it enough to chase out the squirrels that are building a nest in the attic of our cabin at Pascoe's. But he didn't; he's a red-hot chairman of this celebration and is devoting all his time to making it a success.

If you want to visit the community for Whisky Flat Days, write the Kernville Business Association for reservations. There are plenty of beautiful motels, and the air at 2,600 feet is superb.

OLYMPIC TUNEUP

U.S., Czech Puck Teams at Arena

By JEROME HALL

When the U.S. and Czechoslovakia Olympic ice hockey teams exchange bruised shins—bones Tuesday and Wednesday nights at the Sports Arena, two of the "Big Four" teams in the Winter Olympics will be getting in their final tuneup licks for the Squaw Valley competition.

The Czechs are twice world champions and nine-time European titlists. With veterans from both the '52 and '56 Olympics, the Czech team is considered one of the strongest ever organized for international competition.

U.S. coach Jack Riley calls his team "the strongest ever to represent the USA in Olympic ice hockey."

It is entirely likely that the two teams will battle it out for the Olympic gold medal. Czech and U.S. teams last met at the '56 Olympics where they divided two games. The U.S. team went on to finish second to Russia. Tickets are available at Mutual Agencies or the Sports Arena.

ATHLETES PRACTICE IN SQUAW SUNSHINE

15 Germans Refused Visas

SQUAW VALLEY (UPI)—Fifteen members of the East German Olympic Winter Games party were not able to obtain U.S. visas at the last minute, United Press International learned Saturday night. Only 45 persons were in the plane that landed in Reno—instead of 60.

Heinz Schoebel, East German Olympic committee president, told UPI that 10 of the official team members and five journalists were barred from making the trip.

Schoebel did not know why the 15 were not given visas. "Ten of our men did not get visas from the U.S. consulate in West Berlin, at the very last minute," said Schoebel. "They included four trainers, one team official for the Nordic cross country runners; two interpreters, one attache and two official journalists."

Schoebel said all 10 men were on the list agreed by both the West and East German Olympic Committee to go to Squaw Valley.

"We still hope these men will still get the visas but the fact remains that we paid for the tickets on the chartered plane" said Schoebel. "Not a single East German newspaper has received a U.S. visa so far," he added, recalling that East German athletes were refused U.S. visas.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

So What Happened In Covered Wagons?

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — "Cowboys Can Be Creeps" is positively not the subtitle of the TV show, "The American Cowboy," which Fred MacMurray, Max Liebman and other deep thinkers are presenting Wednesday—but Fred MacMurray admits it could have been.

"What was a cowboy's home-on-the-range life like? What was his take-home pay? When he paid his income tax, could he charge off deterioration on his horse, and were the oats deductible? What was the cowboy's favorite breakfast food? Bloody Marys? What was a cowboy doing when he wasn't cowboying? Cowgirling?"

"He must have gotten off his horse once in a while—otherwise there wouldn't have been all those little cowboys," MacMurray grinned when we talked about it the other day. Then he added:

"That's a line from the show."

ANOTHER THING—What really went on inside those covered wagons? Which, incidentally, must have smelled awful.

I mean, they were so crowded! And there were no breath-perfumes back then in the 80s and 90s. Carol Burnett, Edie Adams, Hans Konreid and Wally Cox intend to show that some of the cowpokes had to sleep hanging up on nails.

FRED MACMURRAY

"It may seem strange for me to be doing this show, since I've done a lot of westerns, but I guess it's sort of a satire," explained MacMurray.

"Then there's the cowboy as a method actor—gettin' himself emotionally prepared to deliver some long speech such as 'Yep' or 'Nope,'" said MacMurray.

"And there's something that isn't funny—well, maybe it is, at that. I sing.

"Western songs that never quite made the Hit Parade. Like 'Alfalfa Rose . . .'"

MacMURRAY and his wife, June Haver, have a ranch up near San Francisco where he raises Angus cattle. He comes from Kankakee, Ill., Beaver Dam, Wis., Waukesha, Wis., and other places—and knows cowboys well. When he comes to New York, he likes to stay at the Algonquin. He asks June Haver to come down to lunch and meet the press, but she declines.

"You're the one that's working. You go down and do your interview," she says.

Julie London Feels Alimony's No Fun

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Julie London, who could have retired on her alimony from actor Jack Webb, has given it up to marry the man who brought her back from theatrical oblivion.

She gave up $1,500 a month alimony last New Year's Eve to marry pianist-composer Bobby Troup, who made her a singing star when she could not get a job after her divorce from Webb.

"After the divorce," she said, "Jack arranged for things to be comfortable for me, and it could have been the kind of life where you just sit back and collect."

"I DON'T MEAN to sound smug, but even then I couldn't just sit back and collect a check I hadn't earned. I tried hard to pay my own way. I think there's a great creative demand within each of us to know we foot our bills—and a great satisfaction."

Miss London, who is blonde, smoky-voiced and intensely honest, said in her home that Troup restored her confidence, which had been shattered after the divorce—partly, she said, because Webb had been more obsessed with his work than with her.

"Also," she said, "I think any woman who goes through a divorce has a period when she lacks confidence in herself. Her ego is dragging on the floor. If you've been married, you don't know what to do with yourself if your guy doesn't show up at 7 o'clock. Suddenly your routine is lost. It's a crushing, frightening and challenging experience. Right after the divorce, I actually wondered, 'If someone asks me out, what am I going to talk about?'"

"WELL, I GAINED a lot and lost something too. I lost my special little world, my blind faith and naivete. Everything used to be pink clouds. When I got married, it never occurred to me it wouldn't work. Everyone in my family had been married for at least 40 years."

Miss London, who was born in Santa Rosa, and whose cousin, Tell Taylor, wrote "Down by the Old Mill Stream," was discovered 16 years ago as an elevator operator in a department store by agent Sue Carol—later Mrs. Alan Ladd.

But although she has made nearly 20 films, her career never had solid direction until Troup talked her into auditioning for a club as a singer.

Screen Farces Hurt Because Stars Fear Funny Characters

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—One of the screen's finest farceurs is making his first movie in 11 years.

Charlie Ruggles, not the least bit bitter about his long absence from the screen, explains:

"I just got too busy in television and the stage."

But that's not the real reason. And the real reason may help to explain why modern movie comedies aren't as good as those pre-war farces you see on television.

In the 30s, the studios controlled the movies. And comedies were always loaded with masters like Ruggles, Jack Oakie, Frank McHugh and the late Frank Morgan. More often than not a fan came away from a picture remembering Ruggles or Oakie more than the listed stars of the picture. The comedians were masters of scene-stealing, too.

AFTER THE WAR came the big Hollywood revolution where the big stars got script, director and cast control. It's a short-sighted attitude, but few big stars want a Ruggles in a scene with them. They can't help but come off second best.

"The few stars who do surround themselves with good people," says Ruggles, "are the ones who last the longest. Look at Bing Crosby. And Jack Benny on television. He's been big for years because he lets the gags bounce off him."

"The comics who want all the laughs for themselves are the ones whose careers are short-lived."

Charlie is doing "Pleasure of His Company," re-creating the stage role that won him a Tony award from the American Theater Wing. "Paramount still looks the same," Charlie beams. "They gave me my old dressing room. Still has the same old two couches in it."

ON HIS FIRST DAY of shooting, Fred Astaire played a scene with Charlie. Astaire told Ruggles: "I know what a magnificent job Cyril Ritchard did with this part on Broadway—and I only hope I can be half as good. But, Charlie, if you see anything I can do to improve it, tell me. I respect your advice."

Astaire is another big star who knows the value of surrounding himself with good people.

MOVIE BANKER

Belmont Shore Actor Kidnaped in Gang Film

John McNamara, Belmont Shore actor, plays the part of a banker kidnaped by the Barker gang and held for ransom in "Ma Barker's Killer Brood," film feature now playing in Long Beach. Lurene Tuttle plays Ma.

McNamara has finished three other assignments, still unreleased: a minister in Lana Turner's new film "Portrait in Black," an Air Force general in a segment of William Lundigan's TV series "Men Into Space" and an English rancher in a pilot film for a new series on Billy the Kid. The latter two are leading roles.

The Billy the Kid series is one of the few TV westerns in color, and McNamara says his is a "running part."

Lloyd Film Scheduled for Reissue

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—One of Harold Lloyd's best movies will be re-released sometime this year.

Composer Walter Scharf has completed an original score for "The Freshman," first shown in 1924.

"It was the most challenging job I've had," said Scharf, nominated 19 times for musical Oscars. "There's no talking on that screen and the score has to supplant it."

Scharf and Ned Washington wrote an original song, "There Was a Boy, There Was a Girl," which will be sung over the titles.

It cost Lloyd $100,000 to score the hour-and-16-minute film.

"But I think he'll make millions off it," says Scharf. "Lloyd's comedy is so great that his picture looks as if it was made yesterday."

Scharf said Lloyd, who owns all his films, will re-release "Grandma's Boy," "Safety Last!" and other favorites.

How to Ski and Stay Safe

By MARY NEISWENDER

"Skiing isn't dangerous," they told me as I brushed the snow from my slightly dampened ski pants. "One out of every 3,500 skiers breaks a bone—and you can't get better odds than that in your bathroom."

As a member in good standing of this exclusive "One-in-3500 Club," and as someone who's always found brushing teeth a safe sport, I thought the statistics had been stretched.

"Not so," says Mt. Baldy Ski Lifts Manager Herb C. Leffler, as he cited more statistics.

"One out of every 400 skiers will suffer a cut or bruise, but skiing isn't as dangerous as most people think. It's in their minds."

"My problem," I maintained, uncrossing my skis as I recalled my seven weeks in a cast "is that I never had a lesson."

"That's the problem with most people," the ski expert maintained. "Lessons and release bindings have cut the accident rate in half."

RELEASE BINDINGS, I learned as my skis started to go their separate ways, are the bindings that unsnap before your leg does.

But most of the thousands of skiers who currently jam Southern California mountain areas during this, the first early snow season in eight years, are safety-equipped, and resort operators at Mt. Baldy are making sure they stay that way.

"We cater to the beginning and intermediate skier," Leffler says. "We like the guy in the blue jeans—he's our future business—and we mean to keep him skiing."

This, according to Leffler and Jack Stewart, chief of the area's Ski Patrol, can be done by keeping him safe.

Stewart, who left Friday for Ski Patrol work at the Winter Olympics in Squaw Valley, skis the area's 16 runs every morning to make sure the runs are safe. He again traverses the entire 10 miles of cleared slopes at day's end to check for possible skiers in trouble. Meanwhile some 35 volunteer ski patrolers keep constant watch over the area.

"Skiers get in trouble mainly," Stewart says, "because they tackle an advanced ski slope without proper training."

THE TRAINING, given free to potential skiers renting equipment at the resort, can put a novice on skis and on the "bunny slopes" within 15 minutes. After an additional hour-long lesson, the skier can safely handle himself on most of the slopes—including a mile-long run which dips gradually down the mountainside.

The ski schools, held throughout the day, teach novices how to stand, turn, walk and fall—the most important point.

"They've got to know to fall to the back and side," Stewart says.

Other than that the novice also has to remember to keep the skis together, keep his knees bent, keep his eyes ahead, keep his weight evenly distributed, keep his poles and trees to the side, etc.

"The more novices we have on skis, the better we like it," Leffler claims. "We cater to them here—and let the advanced skiers fend for themselves."

AND THEY FEND—on the Thunder Mountain slopes, which echo with the language of Europeans. The mountain has turned into a cosmopolitan playground and hosts more European skiers than any other area.

"We try to stop this snobish bit that some expert skiers put on," Leffler said. "At Mt. Baldy you can't tell who's what—even by the clothing. Some of the best skiers are the blue-jeaned type—the kind in the early stages of transformation—own some of the equipment—but not all."

"The Notch," Mt. Baldy's lodge, will rent skiing equipment, Leffler claims, but the shop "isn't fitted for the skier—just for the forgetter." It carries items most forgotten by skiers—shoe laces, wax, sun lotion, goggles and gloves.

But it's a booming business, in that 3,000 persons ride the lift to the Notch, and 1,500 are skiers—the others are sightseers. Out of the 1,500 sightseers, Leffler says, 250 will rent skis and eventually take up the sport.

And from one who in one day traveled almost every slope at Mt. Baldy—it's quite a sport.

Planning Parley for AFS

Looking ahead to the fall school semester, committee members of American Field Service gathered last weekend in Santa Barbara for a regional conference led by Stephen Galatti, director general of the New York headquarters of AFS.

In attendance were a group of prominent Long Beach residents, Mrs. Rexford Welch, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sleeper, Mrs. E. Ray Webb, Miss Vivian Wehrli and Mrs. Harry Cossareck.

OBJECT of AFS is an exchange program of foreign and American students who participate in a living experience in any one of 47 countries of the world to promote world peace, friendship and understanding.

Miss Sue Brubaker of the New York office followed her attendance at the Santa Barbara conference with a visit to Long Beach to confer with each of the 10 foreign high school students currently studying and living in Long Beach.

Plans currently are under way in Long Beach to find housing for students who will arrive for the fall term, and families interested in sharing their homes are invited to contact any AFS member.

AFS LEADERS LOOK AHEAD

Enthusiastic exponents of American Field Service motto, "Walk together, talk together, o ye peoples of the earth, for then and only then shall ye have peace," are Long Beach AFS officers planning for fall organization and home placement of foreign

She will spend two weeks touring the Hawaiian Islands, then will fly to the Philippines, Saigon, India, Thailand, Singapore, Ceylon, Hong Kong and Japan. She will spend a month in India, Kashmir and Nepal and two months in Japan, arriving there for the cherry festival season.

THE TRAVELER is a teacher in Business Education Dept., City College, LTD. She has her master's degree from Harvard University and has worked on her doctorate at USC.

In 1935 Mrs. Himmelbauer was sent by the Business Education Dept. of the National Education Assn. to the International Congress of Business Education which met in Prague, Czechoslovakia. As a delegate, assigned by the United States State Dept., she spoke at one of the sessions on "Business Education Teach-

SAME OLD SENTIMENT

Cupid Busier This Season

By MARY LOU ZEHMS
L. P. T. Women's Editor

That sly cherub, Dan Cupid, more active than ever with bow and arrow this 1960 Leap Year, is fast approaching his busiest season. The Feb. 14 feast of St. Valentine still is the most romantic day of the year.

In proof, an estimated 90 million Americans will exchange Valentines this year and a half-million women will dispatch Leap Year sentiments, so say the designers of greeting cards. It's no wonder then that the Valentine publishers have seen to it that whether you like puns and gimmicks or lavender and old lace, there are countless Valentines waiting to please your particular taste.

THE ORIGINAL Valentines, a fact almost forgotten today, were strictly tokens of friendship—for more than 1,000 years! They were sent to commemorate the kindly spirit of St. Valentine, a young Roman priest executed Feb. 14, 270 A.D., for refusing to renounce Christianity.

Medieval sweethearts began exchanging romantic Valentines around 1400. These early creations were designed with quill pen, paste pot and great expectations. Cupid's more talented victims peppered their Valentines with amorous scenes neatly drawn in black and white. Later they were made by folding paper and cutting it into very intricate and lacy patterns, which were carefully hand-colored.

By the 17th Century, the Valentine custom had spread throughout Europe. The style shifted to elaborate ornamentation. Rich noblemen bedecked their Valentines with expensive jewels, and hired ghost writers to pen impassioned rhymes.

In the lower income brackets, love-plagued swains spent weary hours decorating Valentines with turtle doves, pressed flowers, silk ribbons and cut-out hearts. England solved verse-writing problems for a six-pence by publishing the first "Valentine Writer" in 1640.

AS THE 19th Century began, English publishers already were selling elegantly printed Valentines. They reached a peak of perfection and beauty that has been equaled only in recent years. About 1840 American publishers began competing with the English imports and by 1857 more than three million Valentines were sold in the United States, retailing from three cents to $30 apiece.

Today, there's about an even draw between the humorous Valentines and those created in the lace-and-ribbon tradition.

Modern guys and gals, however, value the verses most of all. Those in love still are seeking some special way to say, "Let's Be Sweethearts!"

PLAN PARTY AT SHRINE HOSPITAL

The Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

THIS is war! Whether with the Park Dept. in general or Don Oberg, manager, in particular, I don't know yet. An old friend died this week and some one in this city's chain of command gave the order.

The old friend was a queenly figure of a what they're doing? eucalyptus tree who lived alone, in dignity and beauty, on the East shore of Colorado Lagoon. For two or three decades, maybe longer, she has flourished there providing a tranquil vision from afar, pleasant shade for the visitor at her doorstep.

What wind, rain or blazing sun couldn't do over the years—destroy her—an impersonal ax and bulldozer did in a couple of hours Wednesday. The reason isn't clear now but some hot Sunday next summer it may be. Where she stood so long may provide parking place for one more car, its occupants casual picknickers from some inland town, finding convenience on a level sea of asphalt.

AN OWN your own apartment with panoramic view of sea and horizon will soon become home for Peg and Lee Leatart. They will sell their house on Myrtle Ave. and move into their new place on E. Ocean as soon as finishing touches are applied.

GLAMOROUS loop trip for Carlene and Norm Jaques ended last weekend. Excuse? Business. Result? Wonderful trip. They flew first to Miami, then Trinidad and on to Venezuela, back to Panama and finally, last stop, Mexico City.

FLORIDA is a current paradise, we understand, for boat buyers, especially for those interested in larger craft. Wealthy easterners, their Cuban cruising playground no longer a healthy place to go, apparently have been dropping their boats on a what-ever-they'll-bring basis.

We presume that's why Jay Eastern went boat-shopping amidst the everglades. At any rate, he did and found a '54-foot Chris-Craft he liked. Next he wired wife, Betty, to fly down and add her seal of approval. She parked the cats with good friends, Kay and Art Rudd, and was on her way.

her way. Soon another wire arrived for Rhea and Judy Pigott to come quick, too, and serve as crew while they sailed their new possession to a shipping point for West Coast delivery. They planned to cruise the Inter-Coastal waterways to Baltimore or the other way to Ft. Worth, Texas. Localites ought to know any minute because they're due home now, by plane, to await the later arrival of the new floating home.

THE CRISP, clean flowers of springtime will be used as decorations by Sylvia Sherwood and Dorothy Wise when they entertain at a luncheon and baby shower Wednesday in honor of Nadine Vander Lans who expects to add the fourth blossom to her kindergarten about the end of this month.

LONG, loud accolades have been ringing in the ears of Marge and Al Davis for their work in making last week's California-Nevada-Hawaii Kiwanis District convention such a brilliant success. In particular we heard raves for the major women's luncheon last Saturday in the Grand Ballroom of the Lafayette, which was Marge's responsibility. Assisting her were such localities as Jetta Jacobs, Joyce Holton, George Hayter and Mrs. Clarence Bergland. Basking in the attention of the several hundred women present were Ted (Who's He?) Krec and Bud Holton who were among the only men present, Ted modelling men's fashions during the style parade and Bud just living it up.

GAYLE (Andrews) Clock was in town from Berkeley for a midweek visit with her parents then was met here by her husband, Lt. (i.g.) Philip (note the new rank) Clock who whisked her on down to Palm Springs for a last weekend vacation in the, you'll pardon the expression, warm sun.

HERE'S hearty advice. Be selfish and give a buck or two this month to the annual Heart Drive, aimed at aiding you through research, to keep a pump going more valuable than anything Signal Hill has ever produced. June Dilday is general chairman of the women's division. Tess Heusel is chairman of the traditional Heart Tea which will take place at Geneva Weiss' home on Feb. 18 and Hortense Wyatt is chairman of the Heart Sunday brunch scheduled for Feb. 21 at the Reef. It won't hurt your pocketbook to be big hearted half as much as it would you!

SANDWICHES and cake enough to satisfy a household of teenagers were provided by members of Nautical Club when they sailed through a housewarming party for Louise and Roy Proudfoot in their new Rossmoor home. Instigators Helen Geis and Noreen Davis engineered the production of gallons of coffee, too.

AT ONE time or another winter Olympic games will be watched, in person, by Artie and Al Stevenson, Ethel Severson, Luba and Dr. Alex Kadvan and Mary and Bob Lintz. Completing the Olympic circle, the Stevensons and Ethel and Corky will be in Rome for the summer games, sailing over in July on the maiden voyage of the Leonardo de Vinci.

THIS HAS been official welcome home week for the Bakken and Gebb families with the return of Barbara (Bakken) and Sheldon Gebb following his Army duty in Washington, D. C. They're currently staying with his mother, La Vona, at 650 Santiago Ave. The returnees stopped in Aspen, Colo., enroute home to leave a few fancy ski trails.

DO YOU generally come home swathed in splints and bandages, from skiing adventures? Then you owe it to yourself to query Mary and Wendell Wilson and Katherine and Irving Smith Jr. about their secrets of survival. They spent three days at Green Valley last weekend and developed not a bruise among 'em; at least any that show.

HOWEVER, if you really want tips from the top of the ski jump, schuss on over to Anne and Dick Renfink's. They have a sterling reputation on the snow boards! Stories have trickled back from Aspen where they spent 10 days with about 40 SC alum friends, crisscrossing the slopes by day and playing in the snug confines of the lodge by night.

"WESTWARD, HO," they cried, and went East to Phoenix. Betty and Gordon Wilkinson and Mae and Cliff Eldred returned Monday from a five day jaunt to Arizona's famous hostelry where they attended a beauty equipment manufacturers' show. Wonder what they said on departure? "Further Westward, Ho, Ho?"

'Miss Welcome' Is Bride

Karen Krancus, pert Miss Welcome to Long Beach, assumed a new title Jan. 30—that of Mrs. John Harris Patterson Jr.—in a double-ring marriage ceremony performed in St. Bartholomew's Church.

The Rev. Fr. Herbert Patterson, uncle of the bridegroom, officiated at the morning service witnessed by 500 guests. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Krancus, 350 Claremont Ave., the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Enhancing her blond loveliness was a princess-style gown of white peau de soie ending in chapel train. A pearl crown held her fingertip-length veil and she carried a spray of white orchids.

Identical bell-skirted gowns of champagne peau de soie were selected for her attendants, George Ann Rhoades, maid of honor, and Barbara Lundell and Veronica Krancus, a sister, bridesmaids.

THE BRIDEGROOM, son of Mrs. Ruth Patterson and John H. Patterson of Phoenix, Ariz., asked his brother, Larry, to attend as best man. Ushering duties were assigned to his other brothers, Douglas, Donald and Edward Patterson. Gary Krancus, brother of the bride, assisted as altar boy.

A reception followed in the church social hall with family members and close friends bidden to a party later in the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. Patterson was graduated from Wilson High School and continued studies at Long Beach City and State Colleges. Her husband received early schooling in Phoenix and is a graduate of Arizona State University.

Party Timing Almost Too Perfect at Surprise Affair

Expressions of stunned delight—the "wake us up, we're dreaming" variety—reflected on the faces of Lee and Sid Ellis last Saturday night. It happened when close to 40 friends began pouring through the front door of their new home in Alamitos Heights, carrying ample amounts of solids and liquids.

The Ellises, back in Long Beach after a sojourn in Garden Grove, were in the middle of a well-planned surprise housewarming. Dorothy Wiltse and Louise Voigt engineered the potluck dinner party. Outsiders joining the local citizenry were Helen and Dan Budnick, now of Balboa, and Opal and Andy Anderson and Joan Twitchell, who vote in West Covina.

The party-makers' timing was almost too perfect. The honorees, thinking they were invited to dinner at the Voigts, were actually in the act of driving away when the gang arrived.

Young Pair Recites Vows in Woodland Hills Church

In Woodland Hills Community Church, Glenn Benson Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack R. Miller, Long Beach, claimed as his bride Sandra Marie Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Smith, Woodland Hills. Given in marriage by her father, Miss Smith wore a chiffon taffeta gown. The Chantilly lace bodice was designed with a Sabrina neckline, and the skirt's bustle detail swept to a chapel train. A matching lace cap with fingertip veil completed her ensemble; she carried a cascade of gardenias, carnations and stephanotis.

GOWNED ALIKE in candlelight satin sheaths with back panels of chiffon were Mrs. Lloyd Hiller, matron of honor; Mrs. Ronald Candall, Loretta McKinney, Patricia Lancaster and Grace Lancaster, bridesmaids.

The bridegroom's brother, Ronald Miller, served as best man; Karl Foss, Jack Paulson, Stuart Sommerville and Thomas Miller, another brother, ushered.

After a church reception the bridal pair left for a honeymoon in New York and Bermuda; on their return they will reside in Sherman Oaks.

The bride received her education at Canoga Park High School and Brigham Young University. Her husband attended San Jose High School and UCLA, where he affiliated with Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

MOLLY MAYFIELD

Guest Has Bad Manners

DEAR MOLLY:

I have a friend who is the least considerate female I've ever known. She comes over once a week to play bridge, and has an abominable habit of chewing on the edges of the cards when she is trying to make up her mind what to bid.

Naturally, you can easily spot a jack of hearts with a chewed-up corner.

Then, regardless of how many ash trays I have around, she'll drop her ashes on the rug and say, "Ashes keep the moths out." Perhaps worst of all, she chews gum and pops it, which interferes with anybody's train of thought — and when I play cards I do try to concentrate.

My husband simply refuses to play with her despite the fact that her husband is a fine, courteous man and a good card player.

How would you suggest I handle this situation?
E. E. C.

DEAR E. E. C.:

One, I'd ask her, please, not to chew the cards. And every time she started to, I'd tell her again.

Two, I'd ask her not to flick ashes on the rug. If she persists, place two or three ash trays on the floor around her.

Three, if she pops gum, tell her politely it makes you nervous and offer her some bubble gum (which, I'm told, won't pop).

Four, cancel the bridge games.
M. M.

where he stays until it is time to go to bed.

"What can I do, Mrs. Mayfield, to make him love me again?"

So you see, Jenny, there's the age-old problem that has plagued womankind from the time of Eve. How can I answer it? How would you — or your class?

All I can say is that this couple somewhere has let romance fly out of the window. They have let the bloom of early love turn to dust. They have come to take each other for granted and, instead of living, are merely killing time down the years.

And no Aunt Molly in the world can help them if they don't try to help each other.
M. M.

Assisting the hostess, Mrs. Howard Pufu, will be Mmes. Daniel Kimball, Orval Kerr, Wellington Rogers, Richard Carlson and William Hutton.

An auction will follow the business session with proceeds to be used for a scholarship to be presented to an outstanding girl student at Lakewood High School.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My class in social studies often uses your column for research material. And I would like to know what problem is put to you most often.
JENNY

DEAR JENNY:

I've answered that before. But here it is again: "My husband doesn't love me any more. What can I do to make him love me again?" Here's a typical letter of that kind that came in today's mail:

"Dear Mrs. Mayfield: My husband is as cold as an iceberg to me, and has been for the past three years. Gone are those wonderful days when he used to hold me till I lost my breath. His kisses are gone and so are his little tendernesses. "He hasn't taken me out for dinner for months, and the last flower he brought me was the dandelion he snapped from our lawn on his way into the house."

"I have tried to keep a neat house and to give our two children the best of care. But all I get from my husband is a grunt, a groan and a march to the TV set

Speech Can Brand You as Rube, Snob

By TED KREC

The teaching of foreign languages to children (and adults) is being emphasized today by our educators, and Ol' Ted feels that this is a mighty fine program. The Jet Age has shrunk our international boundaries and sooner or later we are going to have to be multi-lingual. But I think it would be mighty nice if many persons took the trouble to learn good English first!

You hear a lot about how beautiful foreign languages are, but let me tell you, friends, English can be as beautiful as any other language if it is used correctly.

I find two basic faults with English usage today. The first is "rube" or stupid usage—the second is affected speech. Both are equally bad.

My main concern is men's fashion, true, but harmonious, tasteful apparel alone does not give one a passport into the realm of intelligent society. A picture of sartorial splendor can be spoiled by stupid or "put-on" conversation.

LET'S TAKE a look at the "rube" category first. You can take the boy out of the country, but you can't take the country out of the boy—at least not without a conscious effort on his part. There may be some who think it is amusing to use such bucolic expressions as "Wal, I swow!" or "Boy, howdy!" or "I wouldn't be knowin'; not knowin' couldn't say!" I find them quite dated and boring. There's no reason outside of mental laziness for people to talk this way. Yes, Will Rogers did very well for himself with this kind of talk—but how many Will Rogers come by in a lifetime? Besides, he was an entertainer.

But all the rubes aren't in the country. They have city cousins, too. These city cousins are experts at redundancy—using two or more words which mean the same thing, such as: "enormous in size," "blue in color," "fox terrier dog." There are a million of them. Once I drove past a theater as a lad was putting up a marquee sign one foot high. It read: "Huge Giant Perils Earth!" How many of you ever have seen a small giant?

And the city rubes always misuse the little word "unique." They'll say: "I saw the most unique hat in the store today," and it's a physical impossibility. Unique means the only one of its kind. If it is truly unique, it cannot be compared with anything else, because there is no other like it.

AND NOW let's have a few words about affected speech. I've been working with words for 25 years now, and the biggest lesson I've learned is to keep the language simple. Plain, simple English is wonderful. Yet, day after day, I encounter people who use big words to make an impression. Nine times out of ten, they use them incorrectly or they have chosen the wrong words.

If you are reading a book or watching a TV show and someone uses a word with which you are unfamiliar but which you must know in order to make sense out of the story, the writer has taken a big step toward losing you as part of his audience. Why? Because you must break your train of thought and go look up the meaning of the word. By the time you get back, if it's a TV show, you have missed a lot of dialogue.

If you must use jaw-breaker words—and I've never found the need for them in my years of writing—then, for goodness' sake, look them up and be sure of them before you use them. Don't be ashamed to consult the dictionary—the finest writers in the country do it every day.

People constantly are using incorrect expressions such as "more importantly" because they think they sound good. Why? I guess it's a form of intellectual snobbery. Persons who use remote words to make others feel inferior. After all, all the "right people" talk this way!

It takes only a few minutes to be sure of yourself, but the memory of inane speech can make a lasting impression!

Military Wedding Joins Peterson-Badger Names

The pomp and pageantry of a military wedding attended the ceremony in St. Bartholomew Catholic Church which united Sue Carole Peterson and M.Sgt. Charles Henry Badger,

Mrs. Charles Henry Badger

USMC. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Peterson, Long Beach; his parents are Mr. and Mrs. Carl Badger of Atlanta, Ga.

A Marine Corps honor guard preceded the bride as she was escorted down the aisle by her father. Seed pearls and iridescent sequins edged the neck line of her bouffant Chantilly lace and tulle gown; a crown of tiny pearls and brilliants held her fingertip-length veil. A white orchid was nestled amid white roses in her cascade bouquet.

FOR HER role as matron of honor, Mrs. John Eek wore ice pink nylon chiffon and carried a colonial arrangement of pink and white carnations. Her headpiece was a coronet of iridescent sequins and brilliants. The bridegroom asked A/Sgt. Buddy J. Scott to perform best man duties.

As they left the church at the conclusion of the religious ceremony, the bridal couple passed under an arch of swords, and at a reception in the church hall, they cut their wedding cake with a sword. Later they left for a honeymoon in Palm Springs.

The bride is a graduate of Immaculate Heart High School and Cornish School of Fine Arts in Seattle, Wash. The bridegroom was graduated from Sacred Heart High School in New York and from Tennessee Military Institute.

Dear Abby

It's for a Long Hitch!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a GI in Korea. I have been here five months and have fallen in love with a Korean girl. (A guy can get very lonesome here.) I went to my first sergeant to make application for a marriage certificate. He sent me to my commanding officer who in turn sent me to the division psychiatrist. Now, Abby, I am far from being crazy.

ABBY

I love this girl and she loves me. I am 21 and old enough to know my own mind. The girl's past is questionable but she has reformed and I can overlook her past. I was no angel, either. Am I wrong?

PVT. PAUL

DEAR PVT.: Slow down, soldier: If this is the kind of love that will last forever (and that's the only kind worth marrying for) it will last until you finish your hitch. If the girl has "reformed" and loves you, she won't object to your "sending for her" after you've returned home and had a chance to think about it objectively.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a dedicated business man and works late at least three nights a week. Am I being unfair to object to his taking his very young and pretty secretary out to eat after she works overtime with him? It usually involves a delay which keeps him out until 1:30 a.m.

This is not a new situation. Unfortunately I am prejudiced because I married this divorced man as a result of working for him under exactly the same conditions. EX-SECRETARY

DEAR EX: You won't teach this old dog any new tricks as long as the old ones work. Bring your feelings out into the open. He might interpret your silence as ignorance, indifference or approval.

DEAR ABBY: How affectionate should a couple (going steady) act in broad daylight in the company of parents, brothers, sisters, cousins and so forth?

A relative of mine and her boyfriend are always mushing up a storm in front of everybody. We are embarrassed to look at them. They say there is nothing wrong with it as long as they love each other. She is 17 and he is 19.

A RELATIVE: "Mushing up a storm" in public is in extremely bad taste and entirely out of place.

Student activities are betwixt and between at Long Beach City College this week, with fall semester finals just over and the spring session just one week old.

Already underway, however, are rushing teas for Lakewood campus women's social clubs and pledging activities by the men's clubs. The semiannual Associated Men Students Stag Night will be held Thursday evening in the Student Lounge. First general meeting of the Associated Women Students is scheduled for 11 a.m. Wednesday.

On the LBCC auditorium calendar this month is the Schola Cantorum's presentation of the great Bach Mass in B Minor, with orchestra and noted soloists, Feb. 20.

EIGHT LONG BEACH City College students joined the select list of Viking Award winners, highest honor of the Liberal Arts Division student body, during the recent semester-ending Sweetheart Prom.

Recipients were Camellia Bauer, Beverly Glover, Susan Koeller, Linda Larson, Judith Reagan, Dennis Bauer, Jim Hanchett and Garth Purkett—variously honored for outstanding participation in student government, publications, drama, athletics, music and club activities.

The Viking Award, dating back to 1928, is limited to a maximum of 10 students each semester, chosen by a joint student-faculty committee on the basis of scholarship and campus leadership.

Former winners include many persons now prominent in the Long Beach area. One of these, the only Viking Award holder who was not an LBCC student or staff member, is honorary awardee George Vermillion, former mayor of Long Beach and Board of Education president.

NEW OFFICERS of the Student Forum, Lakewood campus discussion group, are president Douglas Polly, moderator Buck Michaels and secretary Mary Jane Braddock. Committee chairmen are Nina Wolff, Jan Breshears, Jim Olson and Ike Torre.

This group, together with faculty advisers Dr. Donald Scott and Dr. Ashley Lundin, will plan the bi-weekly programs featuring both faculty members and outside speakers on topics of current interest to the student body.

Major & Minor Notes

By RACHEL MORTON

The other afternoon I had the rare privilege of spending the afternoon with the greatest living conductor in the world today, Dr. Bruno Walter. So humble do I feel after such an exalting experience, that I doubt I shall do justice to this article. It is a kind of benediction to be in the presence of the very great. It was like being in the presence of nobility—nobility of the soul.

Bruno Walter, like all great men, is a gentle, soft-spoken man. He made us feel so at home, so comfortable. As I talked with him I remembered how many times I have seen whole audiences stand as he came upon the stage. I thought of all the honors which have been bestowed upon him, all that could be bestowed, including the Legion d'Honneur of France. I was present when thousands in the Hollywood Bowl stood as he was given a silver loving cup and a plaque honoring him. I recalled that every great orchestra of the world has responded to his marvelous conducting. And he is beloved of all who know him and who have come under his spell.

holds to this day. Later Mahler brought Bruno Walter to assist him at the Vienna Opera House and when Mahler quit the opera there, he became the permanent conductor for many years.

"MY LIFE," explained Dr. Walter, "has been dedicated to the performing of the music of Gustav Mahler. Although I am 83 years old and retired, still next summer I will journey to Vienna to conduct performances of his works at the opera, commemorating the 100th anniversary of his birth. In April I will go to New York and conduct another concert of his works with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra in Carnegie Hall."

Although born in Berlin, Dr. Walter declared that Vienna was the "city of his soul." He was a child piano prodigy and his musical parents encouraged and provided his musical education at the Stern Conservatory in Berlin.

"Music from the very beginning," writes Dr. Walter, "was the mistress of my soul."

Oriental Art Talks Scheduled

J. Gregory Conway, internationally known authority on flower arrangements, will open a series of four public lectures on "Oriental Art" Thursday at 7:30 p. m. in Rogers Junior High School auditorium, Monrovia Ave. and Appian Way.

The admission-free series is sponsored by the Long Beach City College General Adult Division.

First topic will be "The Use of Flowers in Oriental Art." Additional illustrated lectures will cover "Oriental Design in Flowers," "Color—East and West" and "Period Arranging."

Conway has studied floral art around the world, and especially in Japan, for more than 20 years and has lectured and written extensively about his specialty. Among his many books are "Conway's Treasury of Flower Arrangements" and "Conway's Encyclopedia of Flower Arrangements."

MORE FUN TO KNOW!

The more you know about a musical composition, the more you enjoy hearing it decide (from left), Kim MacIntyre, Camilla Hanna and Claire McLeish, students in Miss Thelma Russell's fifth grade at Edison Elementary School. With puppets they enact scene as they listen to recording of Overture to "Hansel and Gretel," (Humperdinck), which Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra will play Thursday at Polytechnic High School auditorium. Concerts for elementary and secondary students will culminate weeks of music appreciation classroom work in Long Beach schools.—(Jasper Nutter photo.)

Students to Hear Two Youth Concerts Thursday

Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra will come to Polytechnic High School auditorium Thursday to play two concerts, conducted by H. Arthur Brown, for students in the Long Beach Unified School District.

At 10 a. m., 1,700 fifth and sixth grade children in the Poly area will hear Overture to "Hansel and Gretel," Humperdinck; Comedians' Gallop from "The Comedians," Kabalevsky; Prelude to "Irmelin," Delius; The Squeeze Box from "Acadian Songs and Dances," Thomson; Scherzo: Pizzicato ostinato from "Symphony No. 4," Tchaikovsky; and Pines of the Apennine Way from "Pines of Rome," Respighi.

At 11 A.M. the same number of secondary students will hear the Respighi number and Prelude to "Die Meistersinger, Wagner; "Symphony No. 2," Rachmaninoff; and "Adagio for Strings," Barber.

Many additional young music lovers will hear a live broadcast of the concerts over the school radio station, KLON.

Under direction of Alice Gallup, assistant supervisor of music, and Fred Ohlendorf, acting supervisor of music, a district-wide program of instruction is being conducted to prepare young listeners to understand the music they will hear.

THROUGH recordings, films and other audio-visual aids, they have learned the stories of the compositions, identified musical themes, and become familiar with lives of the composers.

The Long Beach Auxiliary of the Southern California Symphony Assn. assists the schools in making the concerts possible.

Tickets Now on Sale for Marian Anderson Concert

An outstanding musical treat is in store for Long Beach concert-goers March 12 when the great American contralto, Marian Anderson, will sing in Municipal Auditorium at 8:30 p. m.

Her appearance is co-sponsored by the American Association for the United Nations and the Unitarian Church. Many civic and professional leaders of the city are on the concert committee, which is headed by Mrs. Alexis Jacobowsky and Mrs. Arthur Loy.

"This concert is not scheduled as a money-making scheme, but as a community service, an enriching experience for the hundreds who attend. For this reason, tickets are exceptionally low-priced," said Dr. Ralph K. Allen, president of the AAUN and member of Long Beach State College faculty.

Tickets may be obtained by telephoning the Unitarian Church, 5450 Atherton St., or from Mrs. Harry Serex, 2441 Linden Ave.

Marian Anderson

ian Church, 5450 Atherton St., or from Mrs. Harry Serex, 2441 Linden Ave.

Rarely does an artist, in her own lifetime, become surrounded by an aura of legend, as has Marian Anderson. Her remarkable voice, which has brought her world-wide tribute, has an indefinable spiritual quality that communicates a deep faith. Her brilliant career began in Europe and has led to triumphant tours there and throughout the western hemisphere. More than 75,000 persons gathered to hear her sing from the steps of the Lincoln Memorial when Washington's Constitution Hall was denied her.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Norman Dickson Is Man of Variety

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
L. P. T. Food Editor

He learned to cook while doing a summer stint at Yellowstone Park. It was there that he met his wife, too. But the real vocation of today's Chef of the Week is helping YOU save your money so HE can loan it. He's vice president and manager of Pioneer Savings and Loan Assn.

Born in Amity, Ark., Dickson was orphaned early in life. He was taken to Shreveport, La., and remained there until he had finished high school.

In search of greener pastures, he took the tip, "Go West, Young Man, On West," seriously, coming in Los Angeles in 1939. He enrolled in a business college and put himself through by means of a medley of occupations—a service station attendant, a hotel clerk and a factory worker.

JOINING the Air Force in 1941 for World War II duty, he was assigned to the technical training command and orientation program. It involved the acquainting of pilots with the mechanics of the plane to which they were assigned.

Leaving the service, he went to Chicago and joined a commercial bank. A wife and son, and crowded housing conditions there, made him think longingly of California.

He returned to Los Angeles in 1946. He became affiliated with the Pioneer Savings and Loan in 1948, after serving two years with the Bank of America. Since then, his rise has been steady and varied... teller, savings department and office manager. Two years later he opened the Huntington Park branch and remained there until 1953 when he was sent to Long Beach. In 1956 he was promoted to his present position.

A Kiwanian with five years perfect attendance, he serves as chairman of the Support of Churches Committee for that club, and as chairman of Operations of Additional Offices Committee of the California Savings and Loan League. A member of the board of directors, Los Angeles Chapter, American Savings and Loan, he also serves as chairman of education for that body. He's treasurer and a director of the Long Beach Camp Fire Girls.

That our "chef's" recipe for Meat Sauce will add interest to a batch of spaghetti, there's little doubt. Try it, and you'll agree.

Days of Forty-Niners

LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS

by FLAVIA MINER

The academic pace may slow at Long Beach State, but not the doings of Sigma Alpha Iota during the quiet between semesters.

Last Sunday the group welcomed Kathleen Ferguson, Marilyn Johnson, Julie Clay and Beverly Gower in initiation ceremonies at the Soroptimist House; the four brought membership rolls to '22.

Saturday several members were in Pasadena for the Southern California Inter-Chapter Council fashion show and musicale where LBSC's Isla Anna performed with the Southern California SAI string ensemble. Proceeds from the philanthropic event went to the Sigma Alpha Iota Foundation.

At the same time members Jean Hockney, Shirley Stearns and Martha Smith represented the group at the "Today's Concert for Tomorrow—Music in Long Beach" meeting of the Long Beach Music Council right here on our own campus.

Mary Gayle Breuer is president and Mrs. Nadyne Gibson, adviser of the organization which is busy making plans for spring rushing.

STILL WITH the LBSC feminine contingent: 30 AWS (Associated Women Students) members who went to Palm Springs last weekend for their fourth annual retreat wound up in the newsreel.

Seems the girls—AWS board officers and incoming and outgoing committee chairmen—got up early to go to the airport to wave goodbye to President Eisenhower, another Palm Springs weekend visitor, and were in focus for the newsreel cameras covering Ike's departure.

On the more prosaic side the girls, when they were not cycling or enjoying the pool at El Pueblo (their headquarters), straightened some kinks in organizational framework and made plans to assimilate even greater numbers of freshmen.

AWS President Roberta Hawthorne led the delegation which had Miss Jill Quinn, activities coordinator, as adviser.

NOW TO the present: Newman Club, LBSC Catholic students group, has its monthly business meeting tonight at 7:30 in the Soroptimist House. On the agenda are plans for the mid-February Mardi Gras, the trip to the Russian Byzantine Church in El Segundo three weeks from today, and the forthcoming Newman Province meeting at Orange Coast College, Feb. 20-21.

After that business has been disposed of, there will be a social hour with refreshments and dancing and a showing of pictures from the recent snow trip where, we hear among other things, "It was cold."

Stayman Bid for Experts

The Stayman two-club convention is one of the finest in bridge and is used by every expert in America.

Basically, you respond with two clubs to your partner's opening no-trump, whereupon he will show a four-card major suit if he holds one.

Like any good thing the Stayman convention can be abused and there is no point in using it when you don't have to.

North has 11 high card points and after his partner opens with one no-trump North surely intends to get to game. He can simply raise to three no-trump or he can use the Stayman two-club to see if his partner holds four hearts.

THE BEST MAN to know when to use a convention is the inventor and when Sam Stayman sat North in the national championships at Coronado he chose to raise to three no-trump. As Sam pointed out he did hold four hearts, but even if South held four hearts also Sam wanted to be in no-trump.

Needless to say, Sam's decision was correct. With the heart opening South managed to make five no-trump, but four no-trump was there against any lead.

Four hearts could be made also, but those declarers who bid it went down.

Seal Beach Office for Hodges Realty

The Rex L. Hodges Realty Co. opened its 13th neighborhood office Saturday at 333 Main St. in Seal Beach.

Robert Westmyer, vice-president of the 31 year old firm, stated: "The increased volume of residential home sales being made by the Hodges Co. throughout the Seal Beach and Rossmore area."

Westmyer added, "Many home owners in the area are taking advantage of the exclusive short-term loan program, which puts needed money in the home owner's hands immediately, instead of having to wait for their property to be sold, refinanced, and closed before they would ordinarily receive their money."

Over 132 Long Beach homeowners used this exclusive lending service of the Hodges Co. during 1959 for a total of $703,584.

B. C. "Jimmy" Phelan, long-term realtor and resident of Seal Beach, heads the new office. Assisting are Marge Sutton, Roger Clarkson, and Hazel McCormick.

Long-Haired Beauties to Vie in Home-O-Rama Queen Contest

The big secret behind the long-haired beauty contest is out in the open.

Donald E. Sullivan, Long Beach businessman who is chairman of the queen contest of the Long Beach Home-O-Rama, explained a novel rule of the contest which stipulated that all entries must have hair at least 14 inches long.

The queen candidates will make all official appearances between now and Feb. 24 (opening night of the big home show) wearing "little girl" costumes and long pigtail braids in their hair. The "little girl" outfit points up the fact that life-sized playhouses will be featured at the show and at least one will be given away each day of the five-day event.

GENERAL contractors who are members of the Builders Exchange of Long Beach, sponsor of the Home-O-Rama, have volunteered to build the playhouses. Each one is of original design and is being constructed with materials donated to the project.

Houses planned for the show will follow various designs ranging from Cape Cod to a Dutch Colonial, Early American, Swiss Chalet, Japanese Teahouse and other designs.

The miniature houses will be on display in front of Municipal Auditorium for the five days of the show in a "Playhouse Village."

THE FOLLOWING builders have agreed to construct playhouses and donate them to the show:

John Halas, Bob Firth, Paul McKenzie, Jr., Marco Palom-bo, Noel Guertin, John Craig and John Dodd.

The Playhouse Village is only one of several special features planned for the first home show ever presented in Long Beach under sponsorship of the Builders Exchange. The Queen contest is set for opening night. A dozen entries will vie for the title of queen of the show.

Huntington Village Becomes Popular Community Near Sea

Huntington Village Offers Homes Like This

A significant trend during recent months in the mushrooming growth of residential construction in Orange County is the increasing popularity of the Huntington Beach area. Alert to the trend, several major home developers now have under construction or are planning new home developments in the area.

Largest of these is the multimillion dollar Huntington Village residential community being built in the northern outskirts of the city by Doyle & Shields. When completed, the community will include several thousand attractive homes as well as its own shopping center.

PLANNED FOR families

who enjoy outdoor recreational activities, Huntington Village is adjacent to the popular Meadowlark Golf Club and close to the beaches, boating centers and many other recreational attractions in the area.

The homes are designed for comfortable informal family living with every modern convenience and numerous built-in features.

Both 3 and 4-bedroom plans are available with 2 baths, large living room overlooking the patio, a generous size family room or dining area, and an adjoining kitchen featuring a built-in range and oven.

AMONG THE other luxury features included in the homes are wall-to-wall wool carpeting in the living room, entry and halls; tile-enclosed bath and shower areas; sliding glass doors to the patio.

McFarland & Mattocks, sales agents, advise that the first group of homes are moderately priced at $13,350 to $13,850 with liberal financing available, including down payments as low as $195 plus $90 costs. Monthly payments are keyed to the budget of average income families.

Pending the completion of a group of model homes in Huntington Village, several furnished models and a sales office are open to the public daily on Westminster Ave., near Edwards St., a short distance north of the community site. To visit them from the Long Beach area, drive east on 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Golden West St., then right to Westminster Ave., and right on Westminster to Edwards.

Benefits of Classified Advertising Are Stressed

Six hundred California Realtors attended a two-day real estate administrative seminar being held on two campuses, University of California at Los Angeles and San Jose State College, according to Edward L. Callahan of Los Angeles, president of the 31,500-member California Real Estate Assn., sponsor of the meetings.

The seminar began Friday with lectures on supervision of real estate offices, structure of successful real estate organizations, personnel evaluation and hiring, and developing sales training programs. Saturday the Realtors on both campuses attended sessions on personnel relations, advertising and promotion, advance planning, and improvement of real estate services to the public. Callahan said that top authorities in the real estate business as well as university instructors from throughout the nation participated in the seminar.

ONE OF THE NATION'S best known Realtors and home builders, Robert G. Gerholtz of Flint, Michigan, appeared at both campuses—in San Jose on Friday, and in Los Angeles Saturday. Ger-

Prompt Occupancy for Lincoln Park

CHOICE OF FIREPLACE

A selection of beautiful fireplaces is included in the final unit of Lincoln Park homes being offered this week in West Anaheim. The three and four-bedroom plans have built-in kitchens, convertible dens, and family rooms. Offered on $595 "move-in" terms, Lincoln Park is off Carson (Lincoln) on Euclid in Anaheim, about 20 minutes from Long Beach.

Near immediate occupancy is promised this week at Lincoln Park homes in West Anaheim where the final unit of the three and four-bedroom homes are offering a $595 "move-in" plan to both veteran and non-veteran buyers.

Builders George M. Holstein and Sons stressed that when the remaining homes in the final unit were sold there would be no more as the final group complete the neighborhood of established fine homes, schools, churches and shopping. "Everything," Holstein said, "is within walking distance to this choice area."

ALONG WITH the outstanding location, the Lincoln Park homes offer a score of "most wanted" features. Included in every plan is built-in range and oven, vent hood, abundant tile, lath and plaster construction, hard wood floor, sliding glass doors to patio, real fireplace, pullman baths, and decorator wall-papers. Several family room plans with eating bar are also available.

The $595 move-in price is the lowest ever offered at the site where completed homes are priced well above the final Lincoln Park units, sales head Tom Key stressed.

To reach Lincoln Park from Long Beach area go out Carson (Lincoln) on past Hwy. 39 into Anaheim. Turn right at Euclid signal and stay on Euclid just past Orange to the model. The model is off Euclid at Beacon.

Many Tax Cut Bills in Hopper

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Assemblyman Frank Luckel (R-San Diego) introduced a resolution asking congress to repeal the 20 per cent entertainment tax in night clubs.

Luckel said the tax, known as the "Cabaret Tax," is a "wartime tax and it's unreasonable. It cuts business and it's about time we took it off."

Luckel said the musicians, culinary and waiters and bartenders unions had adopted resolutions asking for the removal of the tax.

AT THE SAME TIME, another series of tax cut bills were put over the desk in the assembly by assemblyman John Buserud (R-San Francisco). They would:

—Cut personal income taxes by 10 per cent across the board at a savings of $26,150,000 to taxpayers;

—Eliminate sales taxes on prescription drugs, eye glasses and orthopedic devices, saving $8,500,000;

—Cut the minimum tax on small corporations from $100 to $50 a year, saving them $1,870,000;

—Cut the minimum fee on the issuance of corporate stock from $50 to $30, saving corporations $24,500.

ANOTHER TAX BILL was introduced by assemblyman Milton Marks (R-San Francisco) to make the state cigarette tax considered a direct tax on the consumer. As a consumer tax, taxpayers would then be permitted to deduct the amount of cigarette taxes they pay from their federal income tax returns. He said this would save the taxpayers almost $9,000,000.

Another tax bill introduced by assemblyman Ernest R. Geddes (R-Claremont) would exempt credit unions from the bank and corporation tax.

Assemblyman Jack Schrade (R-San Diego) introduced a resolution recommending that any statewide elected officer of California resign from his job or return state funds paid to him when campaigning for some other elective office.

NO PORT AT HOME

Abdul Haye Khan, deputy secretary of the home department of Pakistan, and Alexander R. Tobin check the map showing no seacoast for Pakistan. Khan was amazed at the Port of Long Beach. In the U. S. to study legislation and public utilities, Khan spent much time with Tobin, former legislative and public utility counsel for San Bernardino County.

Although his homeland has no sea port, Abdul Haye Khan of Lahore, Pakistan found the Port of Long Beach one of the most interesting places visited during an 8-week visit in Southern California.

One of the high-ranking Pakistan officials attending the U.S.C. special project sponsored jointly by the U.S. and Pakistan, Khan spent much of his time in Anaheim to study local governmental and administrative procedures.

HIS HOST much of the time was Alexander R. Tobin, former legislative and utility counsel for the county of San Bernardino and now with the Anaheim city attorney's office.

KHAN IS DEPUTY SECRETARY of the home department in Pakistan, a position similar to the secretary of interior.

Tobin explained the legislative system and public utility procedures of California and took him on a tour of the courts. On a visit to Long

Ease Coop Housing Sales Requirements

Director Norman M. Lyon of the Los Angeles FHA office has received an announcement from FHA Commissioner Julian H. Zimmerman regarding two administrative changes affecting the sales type cooperative housing program under Section 213 of the National Housing Act. The changes concern the 3 per cent minimum equity requirement and the removal of the former 51 per cent pre-sale requirement for builder-sponsor cooperatives.

The 51 per cent pre-sale requirement has been supplanted by a requirement that builder-sponsored projects must contain community facilities satisfactory to FHA which will insure the continuing cooperative character of the project.

WITH RESPECT to the 3 per cent down payment involved in the cost of acquisition, this is a minimum requirement and may only be paid by the individual members of the cooperative corporation. This requirement complements the new statute providing for an insured mortgage of 97 per cent of the Commissioner's estimated replacement cost.

The sales type housing eligible for benefits under Zimmerman's administrative changes must be constructed by a corporation or trust, the organization of which is by the ultimate consumers or consumer-cooperative sponsoring organizations; or must include community facilities satisfactory to FHA in the project and owned by a cooperative corporation whose members are the owners of the individual homes.

Commissioner Zimmerman said, "I believe these changes are in keeping with the basic concept of cooperative housing and will aid FHA in achieving the objectives of the overall program. Furthermore, I believe the removal of the 51 per cent pre-sale requirement will be welcome news to participants in the 213 sales type program. The change removes the need to sell from plans as well as overcoming difficulties of maintaining a qualified membership list during the course of construction of a project."

Another State Bond Sale Set in March

State Treasurer Bert A. Betts will sell another $100,000 in state bonds—$50,000 veterans farm and home loans and $50,000,000 state construction—next month. The tentative sale date is March 9.

Bids will be received in the office of the treasurer in the State Capitol.

A $100,000,000 state bond issue was sold Jan. 13 at an interest rate of 4.01 per cent. A syndicate headed by the Bank of America bought this issue. It was over-subscribed in the retail bond market three times within two days of the sale, Betts said he had been told, thus reflecting the strong demand for tax-exempt state of California bonds.

WHILE THE OVERALL picture for the economy looks very optimistic for 1960, the year will be a mixed one for stocks, according to Spear & Staff, investment advisory firm.

Roger E. Spear, president, explains that much of the business optimism for 1960 was reflected in 1959 stock prices, "and this year we can expect a substantial number of poor performances in addition to many good showings."

He forecast a possible low of 600-620 for the Dow Jones industrial average in the first quarter, and a potential high of 750, which should come in the third quarter.

BRUNS, NORDEMAN & CO. says Armstrong Cork holds prime attraction for conservative growth portfolios. "Full participation in any increased economic activity appears quite assured for this 'A-plus' rated organization and the company's earnings outlook for 1960 is bright."

PACED BY THE new compact cars, auto output is expected to soar to a record level in the first quarter of 1960, according to the Value Line investment survey. "But inventories are building up rapidly, and a steep curtailment of production is expected later this year." It points out that the key to 1960 for the auto industry will be the trend in retail sales in the next few months, and the ability of the new compact cars to spark a resumption of 1959's forward momentum.

WALSTON & CO. notes that volume in the stock market is drying up the current "correction." There are a good number of favorable factors which could spark a new rally, it adds.

Sets New Records

The winner — and still champion!
Sounds like an old cry. But for the seventh consecutive year, the Trailer Coach Association has done it again. Its Los Angeles Trailer Life Show has established another set of new records.

The 1960 exposition again staged at the Great Western Exhibit Center contained 227 units—92 mobile homes and 135 travel trailers.

Just to give you an idea of the tremendous size of the Show, the exhibits alone covered approximately 17 acres of ground, and if strung out end-to-end would have measured 1 1/4 miles. 7,515 lineal feet.

Producer H. Werner Buck announced that the 1960 Trailer Life Show was 26 percent larger in exhibit space than the 1959 edition.

That delightful aroma of roast venison you may have caught came from the Caravan Trailer Lodge, 13782 Hoover St., Westminster. Compliments for the most delicious roast go to Irene Barrier the cook and Tom Barrier the mighty hunter.

Following the dinner the master of the Hammond organ, George Newell, played and his wife, Bobbie, beat the drums.

Caravan welcomes the following new residents, Robert and Peggie Reed and their daughter, Billie Jo, and Archie and Ethel Hubbell.

The sample solution to the right shows you how to collect $3,250 worth of animals—quite a bag—but see if you can do better! Read how to solve basic Official Puzzle #1 (above, right)—work out your own solution—then use one of the Free Entry Coupons to mail in your solution. Have a friend or relative use the other coupon and you may win an extra $1,000.00 Cash—see "Bonus Prize" to the right.

SAMPLE SOLUTION

This sample solution shows you how to collect $3,250 worth of animals by visiting 6 "clearings". Now see if you can collect a larger sum yourself!

When judging of the five basic Official Puzzles has been completed, the solution with the largest total dollar value of animals collected in each of these puzzles will be selected to compete for the Grand Total Prize. This contest will be judged on the basis of the highest total score (Grand Total Value of Animals collected) submitted for all Contest Puzzles in accordance with the rules. Whoever achieves the highest Grand Total Score will receive First Prize. Whoever achieves the second highest Grand Total Score will receive Second Prize and so on until all prizes have been awarded. There is only one First Prize, one Second Prize, one Third Prize, etc., for a total of 100 prizes.

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA... FEBRUARY 7, 1960

OUR COVER

Gone are the fiesta days of Long Beach but a roll back of the years to the tranquil period of the Spanish dons is still possible within the grounds and walls of the old hacienda of Rancho Los Cerritos, 4600 Virginia Road, depicted on Southland's cover today by Clyde Winslow, Independent, Press-Telegram staff artist. Purchased by the city from the Llewellyn Bixby family, the historic home is now under development as a museum. The atmosphere and relics of a pastoral era in the city's history are being preserved. There the visitor may realize what life was like when gay caballeros twirled dark mustaches and eyed lovely señoritas whose own eyes sparkled flirtatiously above the tops of coyly maneuvered fans. Today they remain only in memory but the museum assures that this memory will live on. (More about the rancho on Page 7.)

NEXT WEEK

After more than 1,000 years of creating forest beauty, nature is fighting a losing battle with man deep in the heart of the redwoods in Humboldt County. Man set aside a section of the big trees and declared it a park. Man also bought a watershed and denuded it. What is happening now is told in Southland next Sunday in "The Tragedy of Bull Flat Creek."

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze the German name STURM.—L.S.A., Compton.

L.A.: STURM, an ancient Teutonic-German warrior name, means "storm." The source is ambiguous, indicating either a brave soldier in battle named for his "stormy" temper or storm tactics in bombarding enemies, or it may be a baptismal name for a son born during a wild winter tempest. The Sturm family coat-of-arms, granted in East German Silesia, has two arms in silver armor facing each other on a red shield, symbolic of two fighting warriors.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on French—A.F., Long Beach.

A.F.: The English surname FRENCH meant "Incomer from France." When a man migrated to another country in the Middle Ages, he occasionally was renamed after his former native land. We still nickname people Swede, Dutch and French. French is on royal British records as far back as 1273 and in Ireland during the 1300s. The French coat-of-arms has two gold dolphins on a black shield. Edward French of Salisbury, England, settled in Ipswich, Mass., in 1630.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like history on FINLEY, FINDLAYS and FINLAYSONS are a division or sept of the Clan Farquharson. These clan families were founded by a man called Fhionn-Laogh or "Fair-hero." Fhionn-Laogh was a medieval chief of Clan Farquharson and held the title of royal standard bearer at the Battle of Pinkie where he died in 1547. In his memory and honor, many Farquharson descendants assumed the surname Fhionnlaigh (descendants of Finlay). The clan coat-of-arms has a red lion below a blue stripe on which is a gold boar head between two silver stars. These emblems are on a silver shield. There are also Irish Finleys, part of the O'Fionngalaigh clan whose name meant "Fair-valorous." John Finley of County Armagh, north Ireland, settled in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania in 1734.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like the origin of LOONEY.—K.L., Anaheim; R.L., Long Beach.

K.L., R.L.: The LOONEY ancestors were the clan O'Luanaigh of Ireland, all hereditary descendants of Luanac. This chieftain, who excelled in battle, was deliberately entitled Luanac by acquaintances because his name meant "Champion." The O'Luanaighs were natives of Cork and Clare. Their name was Anglicized in the 1300s to O'Lowney, then to Looney. The Looney coat-of-arms is not available.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please print the origin of POSGATE.—D.J., Eureka, Calif.

D.J.: POSGATE or POSTGATE was an appellation for an early English "dweller at the postern gate." This was old English for the back gate of a town. Such gates were not only a regular entrance to the town, but were used for the escape of citizens and soldiers when a large army attacked the main front town gate without surrounding the settlement.

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy for reply only in this column.

Art Focuses on Ceramics

ARTS OF Southern California, a series of traveling art exhibitions which have highlighted Southland architecture, painting, films, prehistoric and indigenous Indian art, and printmaking, now focuses on ceramics.

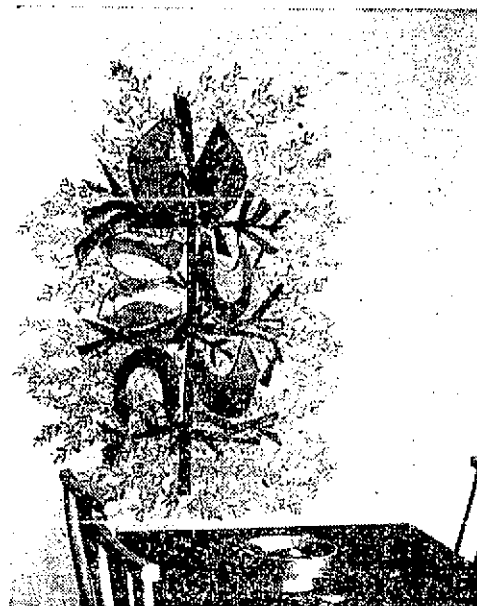

This new exhibition, "Arts of Southern California—VI: Ceramics"—which illustrates the changing pursuits of today's ceramists—opens today in the Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. It will remain through Feb. 28 and then begin a national tour of leading museums and institutions in the United States.

Sponsored by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors, the series of Southern California art is organized twice each year by the Long Beach Museum. Its circulation reaches from Honolulu to New York, from Maine to Florida, presenting work of Southland artists.

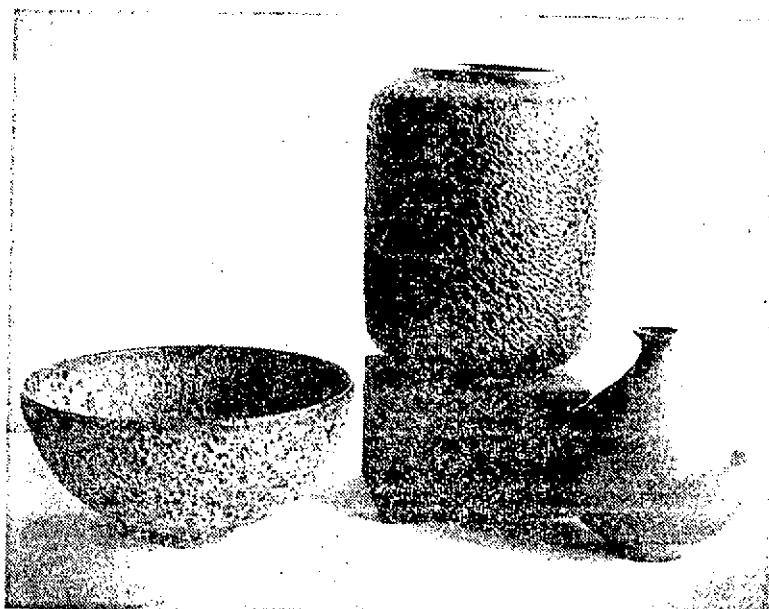

Forty-two ceramists were selected, and two works from each were chosen for the current exhibition.

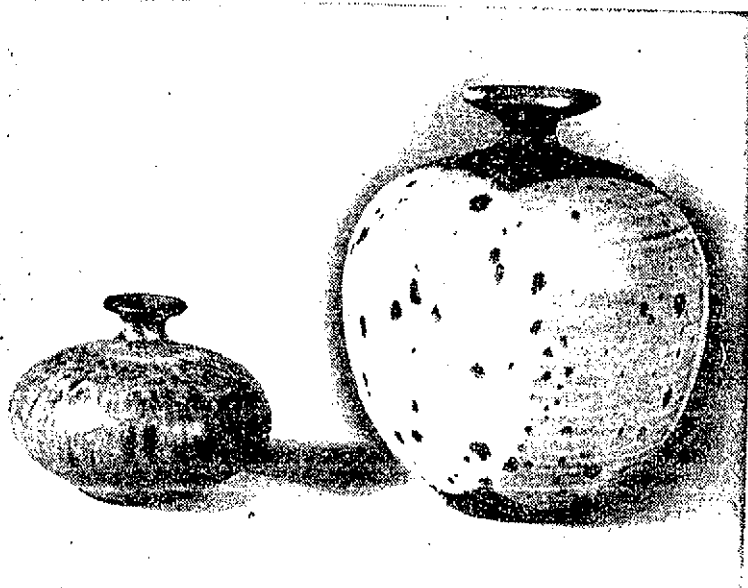

The complete potter is both technician and artist, in view of Robert W. Ramsey, above.

Raul Angelo Coronel's "Partridge Tree" is combined ceramics, silk screen processing.

Gertrud and Otto Natzler are showing these glazed ceramics: L-r, bowl with brown crater glaze; red-glazed vase, bottle with steel blue glaze.

An Old Rancho Recalls a Proud Past

By Vera Williams

La Casa de Rancho Los Cerritos still serves mankind after many years of usefulness as a family dwelling. It is now a municipal-sponsored museum.

IN THE 1880s, at the end of the great ranch period, and before the building boom, life in California was simple and rural.

Houses were big, and hospitality was endless. Furniture was sturdy and utilitarian; women's clothes were pretty, and many of them were home-designed and homemade.

Fireplaces glowed with great log fires; windmills creaked as they brought up water. Anvils rang as horses were shod in home blacksmith shops.

There were not many books, but those available were good.

A GENUINE DESIRE to recreate this pleasant period for a people grown weary of rush and racket is the thought behind the historical museum, La Casa de Rancho Los Cerritos, 4600 Virginia Rd., the Bixby adobe now owned by the city.

A typical family of early days could be seated at the old-fashioned dining table, set with white ironstone dishware. Nearby are woodenware and tinware, plus kitchen utensils of the period.

In the living room are an 1870 folding rocker and a "Lincoln rocker." These are arranged with a group of costumes and Paisley shawls of the 1880s. One of the prettiest dresses is a white with purple print, a gauze weave, worn by Francis Ann Bixby, sister of Jotham and Llewellyn Bixby. The date is about 1850.

THE ORIGINAL Bixby family book case and some of the original books are in the living room.

A bedroom has been completely refurnished.

In a rear room, called the "foreman's room," is a collection of patchwork quilts of 1880-1890.

The original manuscript of "Prairie Schooner Lady," the journal of Harriet Sherrill Ward, is on view in the parlor. This was the gift of Dr. and Mrs. Ward G. DeWitt, who edited the journal.

"There still are many things we need," explains City Librarian Edwin Castagna, in charge of the project. "We seek a blacksmith shop or at least blacksmithing tools of the period. We need plain utilitarian furniture for the living room and parlor. We want a windmill and we need a kitchen range, woodburning, of the late 1860s."

William S. Evans Jr., historical curator at La Casa de Rancho Los Cerritos, acquires materials and prepares exhibits. Research involves correspondence, interviews, archaeological exploration. He corresponds with Ann Bixby Chamberlin (Mrs. Theodore) of Concord, Mass., a daughter of Llewellyn Bixby, early owner of the ranch. She remembers the building as it originally was, and has supplied floor plans and much information on the layout of branch buildings and a list of the plants she remembers.

REGARDING THE archaeological phase of his work, Evans has dug two test pits and discovered much household dishware. The dish fragments are generally white, indicating that the tableware was white. Two kinds have shown up: a fine porcelain and the regular white ironware. There are also pieces of glassware, vases, bottles, etc. One pale green bottle fragment carries the date 1868.

One fascinating item he uncovered is a small lead book. In "Adobe Days," Sarah Bixby Smith, also a daughter of Llewellyn Bixby and sister of Mrs. Chamberlin, describes making these lead books:

"Next to the store room was a double-sized room. . . . Here was a great chimney with a bellows and forge, and on the other side a long bench well-supplied with carpenter tools."

Sheep and cattle were a mainstay of life in the early days. Above, Jotham Bixby (foreground, in vest) directs crew of sheep shearers. Time: 1870.

Much restoration work, aiming at returning rooms of the old ranch house to their original appearance, has been done. Much remains to be achieved.

Scaled to seat the typical family of the early days is this dining table which stands ready-set with white ironstone tableware for visitors to see.

Paradise Found

EVERY MAN has his own paradise. It varies with his individual idea of the meaning of life. Following in the footsteps of Marco Polo—who brought back stories of fantasy and wonder that no one believed for centuries — Lowell Thomas thinks he found his Shangri-La in the Himalayas, before whose majesty man stands in stammering awe and praise.

Marco Polo brought back from his travels to this strange country a bride for a Persian Khan, and rubies, diamonds, emeralds and other jewels of fabulous worth. Thomas returned with a powerful widescreen Cinerama production, "Search for Adventure," fifth spectacular in the exclusive audience participation technique, which will be premiered Thursday in the Warner Hollywood Theater.

So, unlike Marco Polo, Thomas brought back proof of what he saw in an odyssey that ventures deep into the forbidden kingdoms of the "roof of the world" in central Asia, into hidden valleys surrounded by the snowy peaks of the Himalayas and Karakorums, highest mountains on earth. He recorded, among other strange and affecting sights, the coronation durbhar of King Mahendra in Katmandu, and a perilous ride down the treacherous rapids of the Indus River under the shadow of Nanga Parbat, the "killer" mountain.

Those who have seen the rushes of the picture pronounce it to be one of the most powerful filmed anywhere.

Happy valley of Hunza, under the protection of the "Goddess of the Snows," the 25,300-foot-high Rakaposhi, is Thomas' Shangri-La in his "Search for Paradise."

Cinerama audiences will get a tremendous thrill when they accompany the camera in shooting rapids of the Indus, world's most treacherous river.

Amazing display of oriental pomp and splendor is recorded by Cinerama in the coronation durbhar of King Mahendra in Katmandu, the capital of Nepal.

Day When Hearts Are Trumps

By
G. Russell Shaw

NO ONE SEEMS to be quite sure just how and when the lovers custom of exchanging valentines got started. Many believe a modest man in the personality of St. Valentine was responsible. However, the early martyrologies mention three Saints Valentine, each noted for his benevolent spirit, and each associated in some small measure with the day.

The one to whom perhaps most credit belongs, was a humble saint who was kind and generous to the poor. He taught love as a cardinal virtue and often met opposition from the baser minds of his time. While on one of his missions of mercy, he fell into the hands of a ruthless band of robbers. They beat him with clubs into unconsciousness, took all the gifts he was carrying to the poor, and finally beheaded him.

There are many theories as to how Feb. 14 with its custom of exchanging valentines came into being. Perhaps the most logical one is, that it is a survival of a Christianized form of a pagan practice in the Roman feast of the Lupercalia. It was actually a festival celebrated during February, in honor of a rustic deity, Lupercus.

THE CELEBRATION consisted of gay festivities, during which, names of young men and women were placed in a box, and drawn by chance. By common consent, a young man thus became the gallant of a young woman for the next year. She was obligated to shower him with love and favors of his liking; (Continued on Page 16)

Take this little bouquet,
 So brilliant and gay,
 And think of the giver
 When he is away.

May such flowers in your pathway
 Ever shed their perfume,
 And chase far away
 All sorrow and gloom.

Valentine (circa 1855), property of Stephen Farndell, Long Beach collector, shows improvement over earlier printing.

Design With an Accent on Youth

Gracious and comfortable, the living room of the B. G. Hollands' home is furnished in contemporary simplicity. The unadorned fireplace of stone has sturdy beauty.

By Stella George

COMBINING LUXURY living for adults with ample play and entertainment area for four small youngsters and an older daughter were the requirements considered when Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Holland built their beautiful home at 6430 El Jardin about a year ago. Meticulous planning went into the construction of the home, the patio and pool, and even the exact location of the home on the lot. Result: a perfect home for a large family, with every feature designed for the ultimate in enjoyment of everyday living.

The entrance hall of the Holland home is gracious, inviting and practical. Blue walls, with a lovely mural on one area, give but a hint of the attractively subdued tones used throughout the house. The floor of the entrance hall is of durable black slate, a striking contrast to the carved beige carpeting which adjoins and leads to other rooms beyond.

The elegant and expertly furnished out-sized living room gives a clue to the square footage of the entire home which contains a large kitchen, rumpus room, four bedrooms, three baths, powder room, washroom, and countless closets for every purpose.

THE LIVING ROOM is contemporary — smooth and sophisticated. A semi-circular white couch encompasses a large marble-topped coffee table. Tall, graceful lamps, unusual in proportion, adorn two tables. The fireplace is made of fine stone, unadorned in simple, expensive beauty. A handsome mural decorates the wall opposite from the fireplace, the area of the room which can be used for dining. A unit which at first appears to be a long chest of drawers with cupboards at either end is, in reality, a dining room table in disguise which collapses into minimum space. Above the table is a high wrought iron grate which extends above head level. The entire room is luxuriously comfortable.

Perhaps the most used rooms in the home are the kitchen and rumpus room, separated by a breakfast bar which accommodates chairs instead of stools. The kitchen is decorated in aqua and yellow, with built-in conveniences designed to make cooking an enjoyable task. A walk-in pantry provides storage space for a large variety of canned goods and vegetables, with everything within easy reach and accessibility. Colorful aqua used on the appliances and floor of the kitchen complement the rich light brown formica and wood on sink and cupboards.

CAREFULLY CHOSEN pieces went into the furnishings of the rumpus room. An aqua leather couch faces the stone fireplace, flanked on either side by sand leather chairs and marble-topped tables. A television set, placed at the far end of the rumpus room can be seen from any angle in the kitchen. There is ample room left for play pens, toys and games. Aqua drapes cover the walls and windows.

Conveniently adjoining the rumpus room is a wash room and completely equipped bathroom, handy for the swimmers when they come in from the pool. Outstanding features of both the rumpus room and living room are glass doors which slide open to the patio and swimming pool, a large area of functional beauty.

The master bedroom is handsomely furnished with a king-size bed and quilted headboard. The headboard, upholstered in aqua to match the bed cover, extends beyond the bed, serving as a background for two end tables. Hanging lamps above both tables are both unusual and highly practical. Adjoining the bedroom is the bathroom with built-in dressing table and glass enclosed tub. Next to the bathroom is a powder room for guests, which, in turn, opens into the front entrance hall.

A GIRL'S BEDROOM is delightful in tones of aqua, pink and white. There is a place for everything in the extra large closet. Bedrooms for two of the younger children are separated only by a sliding door which, when opened, provides a large playroom area. Built-in shelves keep toys and dolls neatly put away, and the rooms are simply but finely furnished in an easy-to-care-for arrangement for young people. A door from the bedrooms to the patio gives access to indoor-outdoor play without disturbing the rest of the house.

No area in the Holland home is waste space designed for "show" only. With abundant space for everyday family enjoyment and beautiful facilities for entertaining both adult and young guests, this home is truly a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

A Rancho and Its Past

ter's tools. One of our favorite occupations was to hunt up odd pieces of lead pipe, cut them into bits, beat them flat on the anvil and fold over into book-like shapes which we decorated with nail-prick design."

BECAUSE THE BOOK came from a pit, Castagna comments: "We really 'dig' books."

Evans says that soon Archaeological Research Associates plan to dig a number of test pits at the rancho.

"We are looking forward to the time when we can tell what kind of liniments, what kind of condiments, etc., were used by the Bixbys in those early days," says Evans.

A good solid research collection of books suitable for graduate students working toward their Master's degrees is being built up in the library. The collection contains a number of volumes giving information about New England trade when clippers left New England for Hawaii and the Orient and stopped along the California coast on their way home.

La Casa de Rancho Los Cerritos is open to the public from 1 to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday. About 12,000 persons a year visit the ranch house.

THE BEAUTIFUL grounds are maintained by the Long Beach Park Department. Many of the old trees still stand—pomegranates, locusts, cypress. An old jasmine plant still exists and there are fine old olive trees.

A trip to Rancho Los Cerritos is a trip back to Southern California's yesterday, a period that was tranquil and serene and has much to give the present.

As the Romans Saw Abraham Lincoln

Abraham Lincoln as he seemed to famous sculptor, Gutzon Borglum; a bust presenting Lincoln in the Roman manner.

578 B. C., as a part of the Servian wall around the seven hills of Rome.

Servius Tullius, Etruscan slave who became the sixth legendary King of Rome, built the wall. He had endeared himself to the citizenry by raising the plebian class to the status of acknowledged and useful citizens, with the privilege of paying taxes and serving in the military forces.

So it happened, 2,400 years later, when patriotic Romans were following the career of the American Emancipator, they were greatly interested, and began to compare him to this ancient legendary hero. In looking for a token of their esteem, they hit upon a block from this old Servian wall, part of which was still standing. They sent the block to Abraham Lincoln as a testimonial of the honor in which they held him.

IT IS BELIEVED that Lincoln, with characteristic humility, simply placed the block in the basement of the White House and said nothing of it. When it was found, a year after his death, there was no one who remembered having seen or heard of it. It was later sent to Springfield, and remained for many years in the custodian's cottage at the tomb.

Since 1936, however, anyone visiting the tomb may pause before this stone in the outer front wall. The inscription is in Italian; but an English translation is carved in granite beneath the stone itself, which reads:

"To Abraham Lincoln, President for the second time of the American Republic, citizens of Rome present this stone, from the wall of Servius Tullius, by which the memory of each of these brave assertors of liberty may be associated."

By Olive Breed

A JOINT resolution of the United States Congress was required to rescue from oblivion a remarkable block of stone and, in 1936, incorporate it into the front wall of the Lincoln tomb in Springfield, Ill. This block of stone had begun its public career in

Valentines

usually she became his wife.

The Christian clergy objected to this pagan custom of free love by chance. After considerable discussion, they decided to substitute the names of saints in the boxes, in place of the names of young men and women. The enthusiasm waned and this custom was short lived. (Whoever expected to marry a saint anyway?)

Although the attempt by the clergy to stifle the immorality in the custom failed along with the custom itself, there still emerged much good. The younger set began to exchange gifts with verses of love attached. These were mainly "the sweet nothings" which lovers of all generations have whispered at one time or another. Soon the girls stopped giving gifts, but continued sending verses of love. The young men finally stopped sending their gifts, but began sending valentines freely between mere acquaintances; some carried messages of love, others were of a comic nature.

WHEN THE POST offices were established and rates were low, a deluge of the sweet messages were sent each year. Companies began to manufacture them in wholesale quantities, stores offered them for sale in many designs and sizes. The comic valentines began to appear in larger numbers; some were coarse and vulgar and could be purchased for one cent.

In the early part of the present century the so-called comic valentines became so vulgar and even lewd, that the post office called for a check. The Chicago office rejected 25,000 on the ground they were unfit to be sent through the mail. However, there always seems to be enough good in the world to overshadow the evil. This same post office did accept 1,250,000 valentines and Philadelphia, Pa., (another surveyed post office) accepted 750,000.

Whether St. Valentine had anything to do with the give-away program of hearts in by-gone days or not, he undoubtedly would smile his approval of today's custom of furthering love among lovers everywhere.

Here's a Buffet of Snacks

By Mildred K. Flanary
Independent Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

IF YOUR HOME is small and your crowd is large, you'll find a buffet of snacks just right for indoor entertaining. Winter entertaining means for most of us indoor entertaining; and with the size of today's average home, this means either limit the number of guests for dinner or invite everyone for an evening of fun and frolic with food that can be served without an elaborate table setup.

A table of attractive, but easy to assemble hors d'oeuvres, dips, crackers, cheese and party meats plus the favorite beverages of your guests can keep a crowd happy throughout the evening.

First off, here are three dips that are different. The first is a Mexican recipe—Guacamole—a blend of avocado, chopped pimiento, grated onion, vinegar and Worcestershire sauce. Serve it with frioles, potato chips, corn-puffs or shredded wheat wafers.

THE OTHER TWO dips come right from the bottle.
One is Mustard Sauce, a sweet-sour sauce borrowed from "down under" in Australia where it is a popular accompaniment to meats and fish. Try it as a dip for Swiss and Muenster cheese; tiny, hot Vienna sausages; cauliflower flowerettes and cucumber sticks.

The final suggestion is barbecue sauce, a zippy blend of tomato and spice that goes well with cheese, pepperoni, cubes of ham or the sausages.

Guacamole

- 1 medium-sized ripe
avocado
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped pimiento
- 2 teaspoons apple cider vinegar
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 teaspoon grated onion
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Peel avocado; put through potato ricer or sieve. Add remaining ingredients. Chill.
Serve as a dip. Makes 3/4 to 1 cup.

If you have a tiered plate or tray, fill it with an assortment of these party-looking canapés.

Curried Coconut Balls

- 2 packages (3 ounces)
cream cheese, softened
- 2 tablespoons well-drained
India relish or sweet relish
- 3/4 teaspoon curry powder
- Salt to taste
- Coconut

Blend first 4 ingredients.
Drop from teaspoon into coconut. Roll to form balls.
Serve well chilled. Makes 30-
35 balls.

Cinnamon Nut Balls

- 2 packages (3 ounces)
cream cheese
- 1/2 cup minced Candied Dill

Here's for a buffet of snacks, some of them described in the accompanying article. These are excellent for indoor parties.

- Strips or Kink 1-Chips
1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
Salt to taste

Finely chopped pecans

Blend first 4 ingredients.
Chill. Drop from teaspoon into pecans. Roll to form balls. Serve well chilled.
Makes 30-35 balls.

Dill Caraway Balls

- 2 packages (3 ounces)
cream cheese
- 1/4 cup minced dill pickles
- 1/4-1/2 tsp. caraway seeds
- Salt to taste
- 2 hard-cooked eggs, sieved
- 3 tablespoons minced parsley

Blend first 4 ingredients.
Chill. Drop from teaspoon into mixture of eggs and parsley. Roll to form balls.
Serve well chilled. Makes 30-
35 balls.

NOTE: These may be prepared ahead of time and frozen. Carefully wrap in foil or freezer paper. Thaw at room temperature but serve well chilled. Dill Caraway Balls can be frozen but they must be coated with egg and parsley mixture after thawing.

Stuffed Celery

- 1 package (3 ounces)
cream cheese, softened
- 3 tablespoons hamburger relish or barbecue relish
- Celery

Combine cream cheese and relish. Stuff crisp celery with mixture. Chill. Makes approximately 1/2 cup cheese filling.

Bacon and Egg Boats

- 6 hard-cooked eggs
- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- 1 teaspoon mustard
- 3 slices cooked, crumbled bacon

Cut eggs in half lengthwise.
Remove yolks; mash until fine. Blend in remaining ingredients. Refill whites.
Makes 12 halves.

Woman's Best Friend

Walking, respectively, an Afghan, English setter, Newfoundland are Mrs. Edward Mudd, Mrs. Don Haggerty, Mrs. Alan Ross.

By Eleanor Avery Price

TIME WAS when a woman's place was in the home and the family dog stayed home to protect her. But today many women pursue outside activities and go shopping, and the dog very frequently goes along with her.

A check of fashionable stores shows that some dogs are steady customers, with toy and miniature poodles being the dogs seen most often. Chihuahuas rate next as companions to women shoppers, while dachshunds waddle along in third place. Large dogs do not frequent many stores, but they are seen guarding women's cars or ambling along the boulevard with their feminine owners.

As a rule, dogs are well behaved on shopping trips. Some poodles settle down and wait patiently even in beauty salons. Occasionally one pads out of the salon with nail polish adorning his toes. And many, many dogs are outfitted to match their owners' clothes.

SO FAR we haven't seen clerks in any stores other than pet shops and dog-grooming establishments hand out doggy treats from behind the counter, and we haven't uncovered any "dog bars," water troughs, or canine restrooms, but in New York things are quite different. There shopping, really is a dog's life. Stores that cater to canine customers include Bonwit Teller, Bergdorf Goodman, Wallach's, and Saks Fifth Avenue.

In New York, too, as well as in other cities where snow falls, dogs that accompany their owners in winter often wear doggy galoshes. This is not silly nonsense, for salt or chemicals are often used to melt snow and ice on streets and sidewalks, and these substances can be very irritating to a dog's feet, causing severe itching between the toes.

At least 75 per cent of the families that own dogs rely on the housewife to take care of the dog, it isn't so unusual that women are finding the dog to be their "best friend." If "mother" is willing to house-train the pet, raise it properly, nurse it when it is ailing, and look after it lovingly in its old age, then there is no reason why she shouldn't enjoy its companionship when out walking or shopping. In fact, to do so seems to keep her young and beautiful, whatever her years!

THEIR LOVE for dogs has brought thousands of women into various dog activities such as dog breeding, dog shows, obedience training, field trials, even hunting. There is nothing sad in the life of a dog who lives closely with his owner and has a role in the limelight.

ENTRIES CLOSE Feb. 15 for the Bellflower Cat Fanciers Show to be held Mar. 19 and 20 at Long Beach Municipal Auditorium. Entry clerk is Mrs. Barbara Woods, 1502 Cartagena St., Long Beach 7, telephone GA 4-7580.

Paradise Isle

Bird of Paradise Island, tiny tropical sanctuary a mile off the coast of Tobago in the West Indies, will soon be more comfortable for tourist excursions, according to the Trinidad and Tobago Tourist Board, which supervises the island. The only place outside their native New Guinea where the gorgeous tropical birds of paradise have become acclimated, the island also is a sanctuary for many other varieties of tropical birds and is a paradise of lush greenery and flowers.

At present, visitors may make arrangements for transportation in a private outboard motorboat through their local hotel managers, and may spend several hours trying to get glimpses of the elusive birds along well-marked but hilly paths and enjoying a picnic lunch on the little beach or at the caretaker's cottage. Within a few months it is planned to have improved amenities on the island for sightseers.

Serious ornithologists may occasionally obtain permission from the Tourist Board to stay overnight on the island for purposes of studying or photographing the feathered rarities.

BENEFITS: APPLICATION OF ALCO ALUMINUM SIDING TO MY HOUSE AND REPORT OF BUILDINGSHIP, ALSO INSTALLATION OF SIDING AND SCREEN DOORS.

I FIND ALCO ALUMINUM SIDING A FAR SUPERIOR TYPE OF SIDING MATERIAL, THEN ANY OTHER TYPE ON THE MARKET TODAY, AND WITH THE TYPE OF INSTALLATION MATERIAL USED, I AM SURE THAT IT WILL LAST FOR THE COST OF MAINTENANCE AND COOKING MY HOUSE.

I LEARN FROM THE TEST REPORTS SHOWING ME OF THE PAINTING PROCESS USED AND THE DIFFERENT CHEMICAL SOLUTIONS USED TO INCREASE THE PAINTED SURFACE THAT MY HOUSE WILL NEVER NEED PAINTING FOR MANY YEARS TO COME.

THE USE OF ALCO ALUMINUM SIDING HAS INCREASED THE VALUE OF MY HOUSE. I AM SURE THAT MY HOUSE WILL BE ASHAMED OF ITS APPEARANCE AFTER INSTALLATION.

I AM THAT I SAY THAT I AM VERY PLEASED AND COMFORTABLE WITH THE INSTALLATION OF ALCO ALUMINUM SIDING BY INSTALLER MR. FRANK MARTIN, HIS BUILDERSHIP WAS THE ACCURATE.

INSTALLATION OF SCREENS AND SCREEN DOORS HAS I AM SURE THAT THEY WILL GIVE ME MANY YEARS OF WITHOUT ADDITIONAL MAINTENANCE.

I AM SATISFIED WITH THE INSTALLATION OF THE MATERIAL THERE BEING SOME THEORETICAL EXPLANATIONS THE INSTALLER, THE TWO WERE DIFFERENTIAL, EXACTLY AS AN INCLUSION.

Jewell Linn, NBC-TV actress, shows sewing cabinet that is easy to make with a pattern.

Cabinet Helps With Sewing

By Steve Ellingson

BLESSED IS the man who has a wife who likes to sew. The things she creates with her needle and thread give pleasure to the whole family. The savings she effects with her handiwork assists her husband in times of adversity. By filling her hours with this creative and wholesome pastime she automatically cultivates a disposition which makes the cares of the world sit easy for each member of the household.

The man is lucky enough to have a wife who sews, should provide her with the equipment she needs to carry on this worthwhile pursuit. Next to a sewing machine, the most important piece of equipment is a sewing cabinet. The one pictured with this article is designed to hold all of the supplies which mother needs when she sews. There's space for patterns, fabrics, yarn and things of that kind along with a removable tray for the different threads, scissors, pins, needles and so forth. It's just as handy as it can be and when mother isn't sewing, it doubles as a comfortable stool.

THE CABINET is good looking and certainly easy to build when you use the full-size pattern. Just trace the full size pattern on wood, then saw out the parts and finally put them together. It may be stained or painted to harmonize with your other furniture pieces. The cost, when you do-it-yourself, is slight. A list of needed materials along with easy to read directions and lots of pictures are printed on each pattern to make the project easy.

To obtain the full-size sewing cabinet pattern No. 195 send $1 in currency, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Long Beach Independent Press-Telegram, 15155 Saticoy St., Van Nuys, Calif.

WHAT'S THE POINT in living if you can't be of service to your fellow men? So says 73-year-old Pop (J. Barney) O'Hagan, and he should know because Pop and his wife Mom (DeLorys), vaudeville troupers for the past 50 years, have raised 15 foster children along with four of their own.

"We used to make the Strand Theater on the Pike regularly until they discontinued vaudeville," said 66-year-old Mom.

"Once we played there with Joe Yule, Mickey Rooney's father," chimed in Pop.

"It isn't our dancing and singing we try to sell now-a-days," continued Mom, "but the fact that after 50 there can be love and light and happiness."

rendition of rock and roll brought down the house, "but we'd much rather talk about the children."

"We had a ranch near San Diego and much of the time we left the children there with hired help while we traveled the circuit. During the depression we had a medicine show. Pop played the part of the doctor. We took 12 of the children with us and by working hard we made $100 a week."

"WE'VE PLAYED with most of the greats such as Red Skelton, Bob Hope and Jack Benny," said Mom, who along with Pop filled a recent engagement at a night club in Desert Hot Springs, where her them in care of the personnel while we filled a three-day engagement in the next town. The school teacher would stop by in the morning to take the children to school."

THERE ARE 14 of the O'Hagan children alive today, and 11 of them are in show business as singers, dancers and musicians. Two of the O'Hagans own sons lost their lives in World War II.

A few years ago the O'Hagans tried to work for USO but were turned down because they were too old. "So in 1955 we went to Japan on our own," said Pop, "got a job with special services and stayed two years. We ended up by being the only American troupe to play all the radar sites in the Far East. In one 12-week period we covered 100 bases."

"We have flown on everything from a small DeHavilland to a C124 (a large cargo plane). Some of the sites in Korea and Okinawa are on the top of mountain peaks and can be reached only by helicopters and jeeps. These boys see a show only once a year so we gave several performances in the day or so we were there. Our daughter Diane, who is a singer, was with us and special services gave up an accordionist."

The O'Hagans are returning to Japan as soon as passage can be arranged. The Latin Quarter, Tokyo's largest night club, wants them.

DURING THEIR two years in the Far East they played the Raffles Hotel in Singapore, shopped in Hong Kong, toured the Philippines, and visited Malaya.

"We were astonished at Japan's modern cities," said Pop. "My age counted there, I couldn't walk along the streets of Tokyo without someone offering to carry my bundles. We learned to speak some Japanese and of course we made many friends."

Pop and Mom met when Mom wangled an introduction after she had heard Pop singing at a theater in San Francisco.

"I ran away from home in Michigan when I was 11," Pop said. "I always wanted to be a singer, started out as a soprano, and ended up as a tenor. Mom had just finished a picture with Mary Pickford at Universal Studios when we met. I guess it was love at first sight because we got married seven days after that first meeting. I can't remember what life was like before I married her."

How to Woo

ing her she's beautiful isn't always the right approach. An 18th century connoisseur, Lord Chesterfield, in a letter to his son, pointed out that the "starry eyes, pearly teeth" gambit won't work on girls who are pretty or homely in the extreme. The real beauty knows how she looks, said Chesterfield, and the homely one will know that you're lying. Both should be complimented on their intellect.

2. Know who to woo. William G. Mennen Jr., of a large toiletry firm and an amateur psychologist, pointed out, at a stag luncheon, another classic concept: "Pretty single girls know you're interested, homely single ones imagine that you are, and wives—pretty or not—are never completely sure. So don't worry about paying attention until after you're married; then 'steal' admiring glances at her when she knows you're looking."

3. Advertise your aching heart. Get crowds of people to tell the gal how deeply you adore her.

4. Use dollars and sense. The dollars are yours—use them, at unexpected times, to buy her one-dollar gifts, for no reason at all. The sense is hers—her sense of song—use it by dubbing a tune "our song." Music not only soothes the savage beast, but wisely used may get you a home cooked feast.

5. Put words in her mouth. To you, it's expensive cake and coffee. To her, it's a visit to a smart restaurant she can brag about to all her girl friends.

6. Be scent-sational. Anoint thy head: not just the top, but the front part, too. It may make her lose her head. When Mark Anthony called on Cleo, his hair was perfumed with marjoram, his arms with mint, his jaws with palm oil, his neck with ground ivy essence. Result: one of history's spiciest love affairs. Napoleon, in wooing Josephine, doused his head in cologne. But he lacked modern skin bracer and still another advantage: the "psychological scenting" said to be given to all of Mennen's products for men.

7. Woo with a "wow." Be excited at everything about her—and surprised at nothing. This is the difficult part, as the Roman poet, Vergil (70 to 19 B.C.) wrote 2,000 years ago: Varium et mutabile semper femina. (A fickle and changeable thing is a woman ever). Did Vergil ever marry? No. He lived in an age before man realized that though women may not be much, they are the best opposite sex we have!

When a Shadow Casts Its Spell

THE TIME, 1926; the place, Vienna. And now, years later in Paris, Milli de Kailern — born of aristocracy — is conjuring up memories of the summer of that year. There is a strangeness in the air, an omen of great change to come in her life and in the lives of her younger brother, her parents, and an aunt and uncle who live together in the great house. Already Hitler has begun to cast his evil shadow over Europe.

That's the way it is in "THE HOUSE IN VIENNA" (Knopf, $3.95) by Edith de Born, and while no calamity descends upon the household, the shadow deepens to touch each life in a strangely different way: The young become restless; the old, refusing to accept the inevitable, cling doggedly to tradition.

Echoes from the privileged past and the umbra of political and social chaos in the offing, how these affect each member of the family, and the nostalgia of the past are painted with consummate skill and great understanding.

Miss de Born is a native of Vienna who now lives in Brussels, Belgium. "The House in Vienna" follows her "Fielding Castle," published last year as the beginning of a trilogy tracing the fortunes of this Austrian family from the dawn of the 20th century through World War II. It is a highly polished novel that is a sheer delight to sit down with.

"HEIRESSSES AND CORONETS: The Story of Lovely Ladies and Noble Men" by Elizabeth Eliot (McDowell, Obolensky, $5): In the decade following the close of the War Between the States, New York City became the center of the nation's wealth and the mecca of socially ambitious families. It was hardly enough for a beauty of the famous "400" to marry into wealth of her own set: Mothers, making the rules, set their daughters' caps for the pick of European nobility. A Viscount was considered a fair catch, an Earl a much better one, a Duke the ultimate in desirability. The practice continued for half a century, resulting too often in unhappy unions, or marriage to an aristocrat later discovered to be quite threadbare. Although she signs her book as Elizabeth Eliot, the author in reality is Lady Elizabeth Kinnaird, whose mother, Lady St. Germain, is the granddaughter of Civil War Gen. Samuel Wadsworth and who knew intimately many of the heiresses discussed here. She was thus able to draw on family letters and diaries, and the result is a "social history" that is consistently readable and amusing, and often very funny.

ROY DOLINER

Buzzing along at a nice pace, "YOUNG MAN WILLING" (Scribners, $3.50), by Roy Doliner, is a thoroughly readable first novel of New York and the theater world. A mistress named Maggi practically steals the show, but she's the type you'd probably duck at a party. See for yourself!

"FROM WHERE THE SUN NOW STANDS" by Will Henry (Random House, $3.95): The author of "Who Rides With Wyatt?" and other books dealing in western American history bases this latest effort on the 113-day retreat of Chief Joseph and his people from the Nez Perce Indian reservation in Oregon through an untracked wilderness to Montana in 1877, fighting against his will but for his life as he went. While preserving historical fact, Henry tells his story through the eyes of an aging member of the band who fought beside Joseph on that trek, bringing out differences in Nez Perce and white points of view which give the novel a sad but eloquent touch.

"THE FIGHTING PARSON: Biography of Col. John M. Chivington" by Reginald S. Craig (Westernlore Press, Box 41073, Los Angeles 14, $7.50): A frontier preacher turned soldier, Col. Chivington is the officer credited with defeating a numerically superior Texas force in the Battle of Glorieta Pass (New Mexico) in 1862, thus saving California and the rest of the Far West to the Union. Chivington later led troops against hostile Cheyennes in Colorado, attacking one of their villages

AMONG THE FIRST of many books which are expected to appear this year (the centenary) of the Civil War, and one of the most absorbing to be published any time, is "GRANT MOVES SOUTH" (Little, Brown, $6.50), by Bruce Catton, Pulitzer Prize winning author of a previous three-volume history of the Army of the Potomac. Beginning with Grant's first assignment, Catton ably traces the general's relentless push down the Mississippi—lifeline of the South. There are detailed accounts of many important battles including Fort Donelson, Shiloh and Vicksburg, and Catton, at the same time, unfolds a picture of Grant's dependability, competence, determination, and leadership. Illustration above showing Grant reconnoitering the Confederate position at Spotsylvania Court House serves as the book's jacket design. It is by C. W. Reed, after a sketch made at the time.

NO, THAT'S NOT KHRUSHCHEV with the broom, it's some other Russian found working by Irving R. Levine who has written "TRAVEL GUIDE TO RUSSIA" (Doubleday, $4.95) after spending four years in the USSR as radio and television correspondent for NBC. For armchair travelers, as well as the estimated 20,000 Americans who will visit USSR in 1960, this detailed guidebook includes information on how to prepare for the trip, what to see and what to skip, and how to see the Kremlin's leaders. It's all thoroughly interesting because it's different.

and killing 250 of the Indians. Some of the dead were squaws and children and Chivington became known as the officer who directed the "massacre." Craig, a Los Angeles resident, digging deep into official records, lifts the stigma from Chivington's name and restores this fearless officer to his proper place in history.

"THE CIGARETTE HABIT: A Scientific Cure" by Arthur King (Doubleday, $2): If the nicotine habit is getting you down, this book could help you. King offers a 32-day ritual which begins 21 days before you smoke your last cigarette, and appears to be based on sound psychological principals. If you've faithfully followed King's plan, he promises that "you've been denicotinized, delarred and de-everything else in the cigarette lexicon. Furthermore, your habits have been broken for once and for all..."

"TED KAUTZKY: MASTER OF PENCIL AND WATER-COLOR" by Charles R. Kingan (Reinhold, $12.50): Designed as a memorial to the late Hungarian-born artist whose untimely death in 1953 shocked the art and architectural world, this volume includes hitherto unpublished paintings, together with sketches, notebook studies and a summary of his working philosophy and methods. Kautzky loved the seashore, the countryside, the small villages of New England. The book contains many pictures of these, plus the Carolinas, New Orleans, and Colorado. As a "bonus," in an envelope are seven Kautzky color prints ready for framing.

PAPERBACK originals (first time published in book form) just issued:

"JIMMY HOFFA'S HOT," the inside story of the struggle to "get" the Teamster Union president, by John Barlow Martin (Crest, 25c).

"THE NIGHT HAMBURG DIED," the story of the bomber raids that reduced a German city of 2,000,000 to a shambles of 70,000 (Ballantine, 50c).

Is it better to buy a car to drive around Europe? Or is it better to rent?

I SUPPOSE YOU mean buy and sell it back? The American Automobile Association thinks renting is best for a visit less than two months. For more than that, buy it under the "guaranteed repurchase" plan.

You can arrange this through an AAA office.

In any case, don't plan to buy a car by just walking into a dealer's on arrival. There are lots of documents needed. And some of the most popular cars simply aren't available on the floor.

"I would like to get a case for my passport. Do you know where they sell them?"

Mark Cross on 5th avenue in New York has a good looking case with compartment for foreign money and other things.

But I think packaging passports AND all your other documents AND your money in one package is quite a risk. If you lost it, you lose everything. I leave my passport in my hotel room.

Spain makes a beautiful passport case. The best place to buy it is at Loewe's on the Gran Via in Madrid. (They have a shop in the Madrid Hilton, too.) About $4.

Pretty good-looking ones in Morocco leather in Italy.

You might consider, though, that the State Department is putting out a smaller, plastic-covered passport in 1960.

... where to buy books in Mexico?

YOU WON'T have any trouble with it. The new franc runs 4.93 to the U.S. $1 instead of the old 493 to the $1. They simply have knocked off two zeros.

So the old 5,000 franc is now 50; 100 old francs is now 1 franc.

The smaller subdivisions are centimes—like our cents. If you have old-style francs, they are still spendable.

... where to buy books in Mexico?

Current books at the American Book Store on Madero. Old books on the streets in back of the cathedral.

Owens is known to millions of TV viewers and radio listeners over the years as "Mr. Hawaii Himself." His sweet music and rollicking programs draw true authentic backgrounds from long island association and his tour party will benefit from special pageantry as the islanders greet them. Islands of Oahu, Hawaii, Maui, Kauai will be visited.

Owens also plans other Hawaiian air cruises June 6, August 13 and October 15. He is personally taking reservations at the Jack Dempsey Travel Agency Service, 6707 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood.

GOING PLACES

With the Slogans

A TRANS WORLD Airlines 707 jet, taking off from New York the other morning, landed in Las Vegas before the last of the big-time spenders had gone to bed.

The hour—11:40 a.m.—was presumptive, as there are no clocks on public display in that disoriented land of the midnight sun; if you don't have a watch the only way to tell time is to buy one.

This dry run—there is yet no scheduled jet service into Las Vegas—was portentous. When the big buses start dropping in regularly they will bring the East within five hours and a long weekend of the City of 1,001 Saturday Nights, almost as near or nearer than the competing gambling spas of Havana and Puerto Rico.

Suddenly the world's most incredible concentration of dazzling hotels looms up from the sand. A vista of long low pastel buildings sprawls off into the distance from the highway, broken by an angular monolith cutting into the sky here and there. At road's edge drive-in movie type signs emblazon the names of top entertainers.

DOWNTOWN the array of gaudy gambling casinos appears even more improbable. But by night it all seems to make sense as the colored lights turn the city into a brilliant fairyland full of the promise of excitement.

Having achieved finally the ideal of all resorts, the year-round season, Las Vegas is vigorously pursuing the next steps in its development: convention business, casual tourist trade and non-gamblers.

There should be ample money for tourist promotion. In 1958 nearly $85,000,000 was collected from both good and poor losers in the Las Vegas area, of which the county (of 120,000 population) cut itself in for nearly $4,000,000 in fees plus "penalties, race wire and table fees," whatever they are.

THE CONTRIBUTION business is being wooed assiduously by a $6,000,000 convention air-conditioned hall, seemingly large enough for the Republican National Convention.

For its casual tourist trade possibilities, Las Vegas must thank its fortuitous location. In the heart of a rectangle formed by Reno, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles and Phoenix—all of which have their attractions but may conceivably be abandoned periodically for those of Las Vegas—it is in a tempting spot.

Shirley and Bob Sloane will be happy to help readers with their travel problems. Address them in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

Getting Your Fingers in the Poi

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Independent Press-Telegram Travel Editor

YOU'LL STILL get your finger in the poi, literally, when you go to Hawaii—even two or three fingers, gauged by the thickness, or thinness, of this island staple. But you can forget about watching a professional poi-taster in action.

The last of a long line of full-time poi nibblers and appraisers has just retired, his duties assumed by the prosaic but more efficient board of health.

For the uninitiated, poi is a doughy, gooey dish prepared from taro root. The Polynesi-ans love it. It's a feature of every feast or luau, along with pit-barbecued pig, baked yams and red bananas, chicken stewed in coconut liquor and fresh coconut pudding. You eat it with your fingers.

(Also, a menu for such an occasion probably will include seaweed relish, raw kneaded salmon and other dishes you never heard of over here on the mainland—plus Hawaiian music and hulas).

Of course you'll go to a luau. They happen every week of the year in Hawaii, and so do hundreds of other special events. Such as, this spring, Ka Palapala beauty pageant March 5 held by Waikiki Beach, with a racial mixture of beauty to match an international show. University of Hawaii coeds present this spectacular.

Honolulu's Cherry Blossom Festival is another big event, under Japanese direction. A cultural show of Japanese arts and sports is scheduled March 21-27. An all-girl stage show from Osaka—April 8-17—follows Victor Borge's show March 4-6—at Waikiki outdoor shell.

Kuhio Day, March 26, honors a prince who was also a United States congressman. All Honolulu turns out for this one.

Buddha's birthday is the theme of a celebration April 3.

Easter sunrise services also are on the calendar, as usual, at the extinct volcano above Honolulu.

TURNING BACKWARD from the 50th to the 49th state: Largest and finest field of dog sled teams and drivers ever to take part in a major race anywhere will be on hand for the $6,500 world championship in Anchorage during the last three days of the annual week-long Fur Rendezvous, Feb. 16-22. Eskimo sports, dances and blanket toss, parades, carnivals, sports car races and jade and fur auctions also await visitors. Your travel agent can give all details.

CALIFORNIA wines are getting around these days. Long noted for the excellence of the imported wines served on its Ambassador flights, Trans World Airlines is introducing selected California and New York state wines to enhance its domestic Ambassador in-flight food service. That's because more and more wine tasters and connoisseurs are rating American wines to be "at least the equal of imported wines," better to American tastes.

SIERRA CLUB members plan a camping trip Feb. 12-14 in the Mojave area east of Barstow and south of Baker, exploring Mitchell's Caverns, Kelso Dunes, Essex back country and mystic Banshee Canyon. The drive will cover about 600 miles.

WITH THE appointment of Joseph Everston as executive director and vice president, Bob Taliaferro, well known in the Southland for his long association with the Desert Inn in Palm Springs, becomes resident manager of the elegant new $2 million Palm Springs Spa. The Spa utilizes the centuries-old famous hot mineral springs of the Agua Caliente Indians and boasts what many travelers acclaim as the most beautiful bathhouse in the world.

LOIS GAINES, well known in Southland circles, has been named publicity manager, western division, of Scandinavian Airlines System. With the airline for four years as assistant department member, Mrs. Gaines is a member of the Los Angeles Press Club, Los Angeles Advertising Women, Publicity Club and the Aviation Writers' Association.

CAMERA ANGLES

Thousand Photo Problems Solved

By The Shutterbug

CAMERA FANS are full of questions from the moment they first get interested in photography. Often, the most urgent questions come when experts aren't around to answer them.

Take the typical photo amateur buying a camera or equipment. He may ask a few general questions and think he understands it all. But doesn't he wish he had the salesman handy later when he is actually loading film or trying to focus with the split-image rangefinder!

Editors of Popular Photography have been saving the most commonly asked questions for 15 years. These were turned over to Robert L. McIntyre, Chicago camera editor, who selected the choice ones and the correct answers to make "1,000 Photo Questions Answered by Experts" (Ziff-Davis). This can take the place of the salesman who isn't handy or the friend who knows everything or the instruction sheet which was tossed away.

JUST ABOUT every possible category you might have a question about is covered—cameras, lenses and shutters, films, filters and exposures, portraiture, printing and enlarging, movie making, outdoor and indoor picture taking. There are also chapters on shooting stereo and travel photography, camera trickery, slide shows and the legal side.

Here are a few questions picked at random from the book. 1. Are the taking and viewfinding lenses of a twin-lens reflex camera exactly alike? 2. What can I do if I want to take pictures when the light is too dim to shoot with my box-type camera? 3. What is an f/number? 4. Should silicone-treated cloth or paper, used in cleaning eye-glasses, be used in cleaning lenses? 5. What is the difference between the three types of flash synchronization in use today?

HERE ARE the answers:

1. The taking and viewfinding lenses of a twin-lens reflex are not necessarily exactly alike. The viewfinding lens sometimes has a wider aperture in order to give a brighter image and it need not be as fully corrected as the taking lens. However, both must have exactly the same focal length.

2. There are three things you can do to shoot pictures in dim light with a box-type camera: (a) increase the light by using flash or setting up floodlamps; (b) use extremely fast film and give more than normal development time in processing; (c) make a time exposure with the camera mounted on a firm support.

3. An f/number is used to calibrate the aperture settings of most lenses. Theoretically, any two lenses will form equally bright images at the same f/number. The number is derived by dividing the focal length of the lens by the diameter of the aperture. Thus a 4-inch lens with a 1-inch aperture would be rated as f/4.

4. SILICONE-TREATED cloth or paper should never be used on coated lenses. The surface coating of a lens is porous and will take up silicone, changing its optical properties and making it less effective.

5. The three types of flash synchronization are: a) Class X, for electronic flash, with a delay so small it is considered as zero. Contact is made as soon as the shutter is fully open. b) Class F, for gas-filled flashbulbs, provides a 5-millisecond delay since these bulbs reach their peak 5 milliseconds after contact is made. c) Class M, for most other lamps, has a delay of 20 milliseconds.

IF YOU HAVE $500 and eager ears as well as eyes you may take and show home movies with sound when a new Fairchild camera and projector become available about April 25.

The big feature of the new Fairchild Cinephonic Eight camera is its ability to record sound at the same time it takes pictures, putting both on the same film so that sound and scene are perfectly synchronized.

The camera will use a new color film, made by Ansco, with narrow magnetic oxide striping along the edge to record the sound. Motor drive is by permanent, re-chargable electric battery capable of exposing eight or nine 50-foot rolls of double-8mm film.

A microphone and cord and headphones for sound monitoring are included in the camera price of $239.50. The companion projector at $249.50 includes another mic-

Creating Outdoor Tropic Effects

Tropical effects can be created in outdoor planters if the planting items are carefully chosen for location, exposure.

By Joe Littlefield

YOU CAN CREATE just as pleasing a tropical landscape effect in outdoor planters as you can with ornamental shrubs but tropicals' exposure tolerance must be considered.

For instance, Podocarpus marcophylla, the yew pine, and Fatsia japonica, with shiny fig-like leaves, form a tropical-effect combination. The yew pine stands lots of heat and sun (unless it is taken from a lath house and planted during the hottest part of summer, where reflected heat from a west or south wall may burn the leaves). When planted in early spring or late fall, plants have time to become gradually acclimatized to such exposures.

Fatsia on the other hand isn't happy where there's lots of sun and reflected heat. Leaves stay in stunted form and are yellow-green color.

Yet, when these two plants are placed in an outdoor planter with east exposure, Fatsia thrives because it doesn't get all sun and Podocarpus stands partial shade.

THERE'S A plant with tropical effect that has somewhat similar shape of foliage as the Fatsia, excepting that the leaves are huge, dull green color, and stand lots of sun. It is "rice paper plant" or Tetrapanax. One factor against it is the spreading habit of its roots which can grow into lawn areas, even into neighbors' yards.

The plant is excellent, however, for screening purposes deep in the back yard where 10 to 12-foot growth is desirable.

Planter gardening requires special attention to watering and fertilizing; not too much water and enough fertilizer to support plants with confined roots.

Consult your nurseryman for advice on outdoor planters.

By Dorothy Jonson

Many people call and write to me all the year around about their peach trees, and more than half of the time their troubles come from having planted a fruit tree in the middle of a lawn or among other shrubs or plants that require a very different irrigation program.

Fruit trees require long, slow, deep irrigation every three or four weeks and the frequency with which you have to water adjacent plants is not good for them. Keep this in mind whenever you are planting fruit trees or shade trees this spring.

All established fruit trees should, of course, be sprayed now with a lime-sulphur-oil emulsion to check infestation and fungus diseases. And the same is true of shade trees, especially elm trees since this is the only time of year you can spray effectively to prevent elm scale. Sycamore blight can also be prevented by spraying at this time.

Tips on Gardening

Gladiolus—of all bulbs in California—gives the longest blooming period. If you plant glads now and repeat the process every two or three weeks until July, you will get a correspondingly long season of bloom, lasting almost until it's time to make the first plantings again for next year.

When planting glads this year, don't overlook the two new All-America winners, Landmark and Little Pansy.

Much has been written about how you should or shouldn't prune camellias. Some have recommended against pruning them at all, but the California Association of Nurserymen says moderate pruning helps keep camellia plants in good shape.

Often you can do all the pruning you'll want to by simply taking a little stem with you when you cut blooms for the table.

Dahlias can be left in the ground to winter over, but any dahlia lover would frown on such practice. Clumps become crowded and size and quality of blooms the following year are diminished.

Lift dahlias when tops dry off, using a spade or fork and taking plenty of soil so as not to injure the tubers. Wash off the dirt, dry and store the tubers in a cool dry place. Don't divide them until planting time next spring.

HOW TO Remove a Door, Close Opening

1. REMOVE DOOR and hinges first. Then pry off molding. Work with wide chisel or pry bar not to damage wall. Nails that hold jamb and header come out next. If you can't pull them, cut with hacksaw blade between jamb, studs.

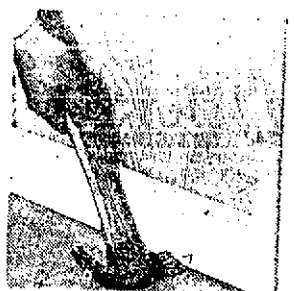

2. REMOVE THE DOOR saddle (threshold) next; then lift out jamb and header. If this unit is stuck, tap it at the top and bottom with hammer. If it still refuses to give, check to see all nails have been pulled. Be careful while you work so you can salvage jamb, header, and threshold for possible use on other projects.

3. AT TOP AND bottom of opening, position and nail 2x4, face side down. This gives flat surface for nailing 2x4 studs at each side of opening and in center. These studs must be flush with other wall studs exposed at each side.

4. COVER OPENING with material that matches old. If wall is lath and plaster and you don't want to fill opening with it, use gypsum wallboard. Fasten material (in photo here it's plywood) to studs with finishing nails, driven below surface. If you use wallboard, use special wallboard nails.

5. BASEBOARD and quarter round (if needed to match) are fastened on last. Fill holes and cracks with wood plastic to match, or use water-mixed putty, if the base is to be painted the room color. Other side of the opening should be finished same way, matching trim, color, and so on.

6. FILL CRACKS and nail holes around opening with spackling compound. If using gypsum wallboard, buy special joint tape and cement to apply to exposed joints, nails. When cement dries, sand surfaces smooth, seal with wall primer. Sand again before painting room. Matching colors should be applied last. (Copyright, Beller, Haines and Gardens)

OPEN DAILY

HE'S YOUNG and of medium height. He has curly hair, flashing Irish eyes and wears executive suits and ties of immaculate taste. With the skill of a surgeon, he can quickly carve a flaming duckling and never spill even a pin-point-sized drop of succulent sauce.

His name is Robert Emmett Boyle and he's the new owner and host at Francois' Manhattan restaurant, 1909 E. 4th St. Formerly associated with restaurants in Manhattan Beach, Inglewood and Riverside, he has continued all of former owner Jimmie Richmond's gourmet policies at the Manhattan, maintaining its reputation as one of the best continental dining places in this area.

The Manhattan is a perfect place for a dinner for two—or a banquet for three dozen. The table d'hôte dinner, prepared by top professional chefs, ranges in price from $2.75 to $4.95 and includes such unusually tempting entrees as crab meat pancakes with madras rice, broiled steaks, veal picatta with rigatone, stuffed fresh mushrooms, delightful lobster thermidor, baked oysters en shell, beef stroganoff and breast of capon, Jerusalem. All entrees include elaborate relish tray, soup tureen large salad or spaghetti, vegetables, coffee and dessert.

Perhaps the most famous of the Manhattan's dinners are whole flaming duckling and flaming pheasant ($10 for two persons) and flaming chicken ($6.50 for two.) These exotic affairs, served with wild rice and remarkable sauces, are epicurean blendings of continental cooking at its best.

A lesson I learned from life

SLOW DOWN AND WIN

by CONNIE FRANCIS

Editor's note: Connie Francis, born Connie Francera in Newark, N.J., 21 years ago, last year was voted America's No. 1 female vocalist in national music polls. She also placed first on European music charts and her fans, mostly teenagers, have bought more than eight million copies of her recordings in the last two years. Music men point out she is the first female vocalist or "thrush" in many years to break the male monopoly in the pop recording field.

TWO YEARS AGO, a hit record I made called Who's Sorry Now? suddenly threw me into a "big career." And if it hadn't been for Perry Como, I might have been tossed into a nervous breakdown.

My family and friends realized what was happening and began to tell me to slow down and take it easy. At 19, though, I firmly believed that I had to whip the whole world in two weeks. I really thought that no one who was ambitious achieved anything with only eight hours' work. So I worked 19 hours a day, hopping from one appearance to another.

Soon I broke out with a nervous rash. I developed hypertension. My dressing room had so many pill bottles, it looked like a drug store. But the pills weren't funny to me. I took 24 of them a day, and sedatives, too, to keep me going without anything slipping by.

One day the sound of laughter over a public address system during a rehearsal for the Perry Como show helped check my konky race for fame.

"Who's laughing?" I asked. "That's Perry," I was told. "He always breaks up over a comic's routine."

During the rehearsal I watched Mr. Como, quietly calming nerves and leisurely talking with guests and regular members of the cast. I wondered how he could be so relaxed. He would sit down and iron out problems when everyone else was ready to explode.

Daring Young Girl

Finally I got up enough courage to ask him how he did it. I told him the woes of sudden success. He listened in silence, then said to me:

"Connie, why don't you follow my motto? 'Slow down and win.' You know I was on the road many years as a band singer. It was a hectic life. Eventually, I realized that I didn't agree with those in show business who argue that life and living are just interruptions to their careers.

"I felt life was rushing by—without me. I was ready to go back to barbering, but my wife, Roselle, convinced me that I could settle down and enjoy life—and have a career, too. I set out to make my motto work, and it has."

Now, whenever I find three thousand things on my mind, I recall Perry Como's motto and try to slow down. I've made five records that have sold more than a million each. So you see I've been busy. Maybe I still don't practice Perry's motto 100 per cent of the time, as he does. But I did throw away the pills and sedatives. And I keep trying to "slow down and win." ■

Petite author awaits cue during recent recording session. Accordion lessons at 4 started her on a career in music.

On Parade

The heat is on big-time racketeers. This is revealed to PARADE readers today by U.S. Attorney General William P. Rogers in his article, The new war on organized crime (p. 6). Mr. Rogers tells about the work of the Department of Justice, also lists 10 ways in which you as an ordinary citizen can help stamp out crime.

But chasing crooks is not the Department's only job. It does many other things, as Mr. Rogers explains:

"It would be a mistake to think that the Department of Justice is concerned only with prosecuting offenses against the criminal laws. Criminal cases attract the most attention. But, in fact, the majority of the actions with which the Department of Justice is concerned involves matters other than criminal. For example, it represented the United States in court in the recent steel strike case. Many of the cases the Department of Justice institutes in other fields of law are of equal importance to the national interest."

February has been designated American History Month by the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution. Two great symbols of our national heritage are Abraham Lincoln and Gettysburg, site of a famous battlefield and of an historic address. On page 20, Carl Sandburg touches on a little-known side of our 16th President in What made Abe Lincoln laugh. And Save Gettysburg (p. 4), by PARADE Editor Jess Gorkin, tells you how you can help save this threatened historic shrine.

Speaking of national institutions, let's not forget the Boy Scouts of America, which this week celebrates the 50th anniversary of its founding.

SAVE GETTYSBURG

by JESS GORKIN Editor, Parade

WHILE THE NATION honors Abraham Lincoln this week, a tawdry commercial war continues to rage over the site of his famous Gettysburg Address. For profiteers are still invading the historic battlefield to the musical accompaniment of the cash register. Their monuments are beer parlors, souvenir stands, service stations, and drive-ins, which stand alongside the sacred shrines honoring the Civil War dead. Where cannon once flashed, neon signs now blink.

PARADE helped to create public interest in these commercial encroachments with a series of articles, beginning December 14, 1958, with The New Battle of Gettysburg. Congress responded by voting $750,000 to buy up the worst eyesores and restore the battlefield. Public response was enormous. Thousands of readers asked how they could help, with contributions and otherwise. But red tape and local politics prevented the acquisition of land around Barlow's Knoll, scene of the Confederate breakthrough during the first day's fighting. Real estate dealers now are dickering to buy it for commercial development.

The Adams County Commissioners are holding up the sale, however, to give the public a chance to save this historic corner of the battlefield. A patriotic group, stirred by the PARADE articles, has offered to collect voluntary contributions. The National Park Service has given the project its official blessing and agreed to accept the contributions to buy land to complete the battlefield.

Whether the site of the first day's big battle will become a shopping center or remain a national shrine now depends upon you. Mail your donations to Battlefield, Box 1863, Gettysburg, Pa.

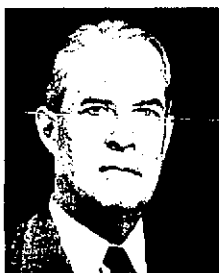

The drive to preserve the battlefield is headed by Maj. William M. Haller, a member of the 19th Engineer Battalion at Fort Meade, Md. (which was named for Gen. George G. Meade, who commanded the Union army at Gettysburg). He will be assisted by prominent Gettysburg citizens, all of whom are volunteering their time to this patriotic cause.

Serving as honorary advisory board members are Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant III, long associated with historical causes, and Robert E. Lee IV, both direct descendants of their Civil War namesakes. The governors of some states that lost men at Gettysburg and many congressmen will also be honorary directors.

The idea of preserving the Gettysburg battlefield originally came from a forgotten attorney, David McConaughy, while 1,500 survivors still lay in Gettysburg hospitals. He wrote on August 14, 1863: "Immediately after the Battle of Gettysburg, the thought occurred to me that there could be no more fitting and expressive memorial of the heroic valor and signal triumphs of our Army on the first, second, and third days of July, 1863, than the battlefield itself."

Now that dream of 97 years is in danger. It is up to us, the American people, to save that dream. Send your Battlefield contributions to the address above—now.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY
WASHINGTON 25, D. C.

DEAR MR. GORKIN:

Parade Magazine is to be commended most highly for the work which it is doing in the cause of preservation of important historical sites. Your articles on land needs at Gettysburg National Military Park, Manassas, Antietam, and other areas are helping make a vast reading public throughout the Nation aware of the necessity of prompt conservation action.

The threat of the continued encroachment of urban development on private lands, which are a part of the areas on which such battles were fought, is obviously a menace to the integrity of these great shrines. Public interest and support are needed now to preserve for the future these important segments of our heritage.

Please convey to your staff my appreciation.

Sincerely yours,

THE NEW WAR ON ORGANIZED CRIME

A special article by U.S. Attorney General WILLIAM P. ROGERS

WASHINGTON, D.C.

THERE HAVE BEEN few times in history when the battle lines between law and lawbreakers have been so sharply drawn, the opposing forces so powerful, and the outcome so important to the nation as today. The challenge to our whole system of law enforcement is so menacing that it has become a major concern.

Law violators have amassed huge fortunes from gambling, narcotics, illicit liquor, and other lawless activities, and from their ruthless invasion of legitimate business. The total cost of crime, direct and indirect, is estimated at more than 20 billion dollars.

The modern organizational racketeer is far removed from John Dillinger, Dion O'Banion, George "Machine Gun" Kelly, Basil Banghart, and others who dominated the crime scene in the prohibition era. Violence is employed only as a last resort, and then by hired underlings. The ringleaders hide behind a facade of legitimate business, using the economic power they have gained from a vast and increasing reserve of illicit and untaxed capital to control profitable forms of crime and to burrow deep into our society.

Law-abiding Americans are rightly disturbed. They have a right to ask what their government is doing about it.

It is gratifying to be able to report substantial and continuing success.

The federal government has a number of powerful weapons that it can use in this battle against syndicated crime. And today the criminal is faced by a formidable alliance of state and federal officers.

Properly, the primary responsibility to fight crime lies with state and local law enforcement agencies. No matter how serious a crime may be or how many people may have been involved in it, the U.S. government cannot proceed unless a federal law has been violated. Only about 10 per cent of all crimes in this country violate federal laws.

This does not mean, however, that state and federal authorities are powerless to assist each other.

Twenty men who attended the meeting in the home of Joseph Barbara at Apalachin, N.Y., in November 1957 can attest to the effectiveness of this cooperation. Their conviction recently was a landmark in the fight against crime and racketeers.

Partners Against Crime

After these men had been convicted in a federal court of conspiracy to obstruct justice in lying about the purposes and activities of that meeting, I telegraphed congratulations to the director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the commissioner of the Narcotics Bureau, the commissioner of the Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division, the superintendent of State Police of New York, and the commissioner of police of New York City. For the contribution made by each was a wonderful example of how voluntary cooperative action among law enforcement agencies can deal telling blows against syndicated criminals.

Two years prior to the convictions, an Organized Crime Section was established in the Criminal Division of the Department of Justice. In New York City, Chicago, Los Angeles, and Miami, 18 lawyers sifted the records of the country's most notorious racketeers. All enforcement agencies made available their files. Investigative agencies were instructed to gather every scrap of evidence in every case where successful prosecution appeared likely.

The United States Attorneys' offices were reinforced to render maximum assistance to the great federal investigative agencies. In the larger cities special units were formed to combat the crime syndicate.

The result is that we now have a body of specialists who are giving the criminal element little sleep. They are under fire from all directions.

A primary target in our overall drive on organized crime has been what might loosely be called "commercial crimes"—the investment of illicit capital, illegal business monopolies, labor payoffs, and collusion with corrupt management. This fertile field for racketeers has been largely neglected in the past.

Here's how you can help the U.S. fight on crime

With the spread of organized crime into legitimate enterprises, honest citizens are more likely to come in contact with the underworld than in past years. Their wholehearted cooperation with law enforcement officers can be one of the most powerful assets in the war against crime. All citizens have an obligation to help reduce the appalling increase in crime, which costs them a staggering $20 billion every year. Here are 10 ways you can help to combat crime:

- 1) DO NOT CONTRIBUTE TO ORGANIZED CRIME. Obey the law yourself. The crime syndicate draws its principal revenue from the wagers of otherwise honest citizens on policy numbers and sporting events. These dimes and dollars add up to a terrifying economic power that the racketeers use to finance other criminal operations.
- 2) NEVER KNUCKLE UNDER TO CRIMINALS. If you are threatened by racketeers trying to move into your business, labor union, or community, quietly notify the nearest FBI office or the local United States Attorney. It never pays to make a deal with criminals.
- 3) PROMPTLY REPORT ANY VIOLATION OF THE LAW. If a citizen has knowledge of a crime, he should report it immediately to the proper authorities (the local police or the FBI). Too often crime thrives because citizens simply do not care. Community apathy is crime's strongest ally.
- 4) BE WILLING TO TESTIFY. A citizen must be willing to testify in court if he has pertinent information. Many times citizens will report incriminating information but are not willing to testify in court. When this occurs, justice suffers.

5) DO NOT CLOSE YOUR EYES TO MINOR CRIMES. Citizens should not overlook so-called minor crimes. To do so only abets the crime problem because today's minor criminal may become tomorrow's major criminal.

6) KEEP YOURSELF INFORMED OF LOCAL CRIME PROBLEMS. You cannot fight crime in your community unless you are acquainted with the local conditions. Read your local newspapers, listen to television and radio news programs, attend public forums.

7) TAKE AN ACTIVE INTEREST IN YOUR LOCAL POLICE DEPARTMENT. Know the location of police headquarters. Become acquainted, if possible, with the local officers. Help them solve their many problems.

8) REGARD THE LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICER AS A FRIEND, NOT A FOE. Too often citizens view the officer as an "enemy" who will cause trouble. Actually the police officer is a friend, standing guard 24 hours a day to protect you. If you criticize the police, take time to commend them, too, when they deserve it. Write your local press, city council, mayor, police chief, or the deserving officer himself.

9) SUPPORT AGENCIES IN THE COMMUNITY WORKING FOR CRIME PREVENTION. Effective law enforcement, to a large degree, is crime prevention. Support those agencies working with young people.

10) BE ACTIVE YOURSELF IN CIVIC AFFAIRS. Vote in elections for honest government, concern yourself with local problems, support community groups. A healthy community spirit, alert to the importance of integrity in a democracy, is an effective weapon against crime.

Since 1953, over 145 convictions have been obtained for labor racketeering as compared with three indictments during the previous six-year period.

For example, Ebasco Services won a contract to build an electric power plant at Joppa, Ill., for the Atomic Energy Commission. A labor racketeer named Evan Dale, aware that the company could not make a profit unless it could maintain building schedules, tried to extort money for guaranteeing labor peace. Dale, who boasted of an "empire" of 28,000 laborers, demanded his "usual commission" of 1 per cent of the contract price. This would have given him a million dollars, which he suggested could be hidden in the company's payroll or charged off as an expense.

They Spoke Up

But because the contractors, instead of paying tribute, courageously gave their evidence to the FBI and to a federal grand jury, Dale was indicted, convicted, and sentenced to 15 years in jail. An added sentence of 10 years was imposed upon him for tax evasion.

In another case, three corrupt union officials—Carl Bianchi, William Poster, and L. A. Thompson—compelled a contractor to pay them 3 cents for every foot of a 90-mile pipeline that was laid in the St. Louis area. They threatened work stoppages, slowdowns, and even a final shutdown of the job unless their price was paid. The Department of Justice was able to convict all three.

Two waterfront racketeers, Henry Varlack and Samuel Kavalauskas, attempted to extort $2,500 apiece, an automobile, and their names on the payroll for assuring the American Sugar Refining Co. that a strike would not delay the unloading of raw bulk sugar before it spoiled. When the company resisted, the longshoremen's union struck. Not until the company paid $7,500 to David Roche, who showed up with credentials from the union president, Joseph Ryan, was the strike called off. Varlack and Kavalauskas and Roche were convicted and received five years in the penitentiary.

Subsequently, our prosecutors found enough evidence to bring Ryan himself to trial on charges that certain stevedoring companies had given him Christmas presents of $1,000 each year since 1946. The purpose of these payments was to insure the companies from work stoppages by Ryan's waterfront union. Ryan, like his henchmen, was convicted.

An obvious fact to keep in mind in this field is that there can be no bribe-taker without a bribe-giver. For an extortionist to succeed, someone must succumb to his threats. Labor racketeers could not exist if some segments of management were not weak or corrupt.

The biggest source of money feeding organized crime is that most tolerated of all crimes—gambling. The syndicated bosses extract millions daily from bets placed with bookmakers and numbers operators. As with most other crimes, gambling is controlled chiefly on the local level.

In 1951, however, Congress amended the tax laws to require a wagering occupational tax of $50 a year. Wagers themselves were also made subject to a 10 per cent gross excise tax. This gave the federal government an opening to deal with the gambling fraternity.

Two men were arrested in Winnipeg, Canada, in 1956 on charges of violating Canadian gambling laws. Both were known to be Chicago professional gamblers, but one of them, Jules Horwick, strangely gave an address in Terre Haute, Ind. This odd fact was communicated to U.S. law enforcement officials.

Football-poli Headquarters

Horwick and his partner, Leo Shaffer, were believed to set the gambling odds on football games for bookmakers in both the U.S. and Canada. Shortly before the 1958 football season, an Internal Revenue Service agent visited Terre Haute.

The agent found Horwick and Shaffer in the company of Irwin Gurdon, James Tamer, and Philip Share, all notorious bookmakers from various parts of the country. The gamblers had established themselves over a restaurant on the main street. Eight telephones were installed in their quarters and 5,000 collect toll calls were received in 10 weeks. In the time the syndicate operated, it booked a minimum of $3,263,000 worth of bets. The Department of Justice prosecuted the members of the conspiracy and they were tried and found guilty this past summer. Each was sentenced to five years' imprisonment and fined $50,000.

Crime 'business' must be shown the penalties for 'success'

Reputed racketeers Michael Miranda (l.), Vito Genovese (center) sit silent before Senate Rackets Committee. Genovese is alleged to be U.S. narcotics boss.

The tax laws have been used successfully by the federal government against other gamblers and racketeers. Among those successfully prosecuted were Frank Costello of New York, reputed head of a national crime syndicate; Frank Erickson of New York, one of the country's largest bookmakers; Umberto Anastasio of New Jersey, reportedly former executioner for Murder, Inc.; Paul "The Waiter" DeLuca, one of the alleged successors of Al Capone in Chicago; Peter Licavoli, reputed leader of the Detroit "Purple Gang"; Edward Curd of Kentucky and Sidney Brodson of Wisconsin, linked with the sensational basketball scandals; L. B. "Benny" Binion of Texas and Nevada, operator of large gambling ventures.

"Moonshining" probably ranks next to gambling as a lucrative source of revenue for the crime syndicate. Despite the popular conception of a five-gallon still operated by a mountaineer, the recent conviction of six men in the Philadelphia area shows what big business moonshining is.

The Dangers of Bootlegging

To erect their still and remodel the premises must have cost the syndicate about $250,000 in cash. It operated from December 1956 until they were raided by the Alcohol Tax Division of the Treasury Department. On the known production, the estimated tax loss to the government was nearly $4 million.

Such operations not only reduce tax revenue and introduce unfair competition for legitimate distillers but present an obvious danger to public health and a threat to the social and moral standards of the community. The law enforcement agencies of the federal government are making the commission of this type of crime as difficult and unrewarding as possible.

In conclusion it must be recognized that organized crime is a business, lawless to be sure, but still a business run for profit. Law enforcement agencies already are well on the way to establishing a record that should convince underworld figures that success in their chosen profession produces a trip to the federal penitentiary for a long stay. For the ambitious hoodlum, it must be made clear that rising to the top brings him a passport to jail—an uninspiring reward for misguided ambition.

It is sometimes suggested, because a number of known criminals have escaped prosecution or have had their convictions set aside on appeal, that there are too many procedural safeguards in our system of justice. The point to remember is this—our job is not merely to win cases; it is to obtain justice. The legal rights of all men, good or bad, must be observed or all will suffer in the end. The drive against organized crime must be conducted within the framework of our legal safeguards designed to protect the innocent as well as to convict the guilty.

This is the basic philosophy of law enforcement in our system of government. It is summed up in an inscription outside my office that reads: "The United States wins its point whenever justice is done its citizens in the courts."

FOR THE LOVE OF MOKE

by SID ROSS

MIAMI, FLA.

One of the strangest child custody cases on record is being played out in the courts here. On one side is Robert Tomarchin, a shy, introverted bachelor of 27. On the other is the St. Louis zoo. In the middle is a 3½-year-old, 35-pound talking chimpanzee named Moke.

For three years, until last fall, Tomarchin diapered and fed Moke and treated him as his own son. Then in a weak moment, he sold Moke to the zoo. Like a parent who has placed his child for adoption, he was heartsick almost immediately. First he tried to buy Moke back. The zoo refused. In his desperation, Tomarchin saw only one course open: he stole him.

It was probably the first chimp-napping in history. For four days a multi-state manand-chimp hunt went on until Tomarchin finally gave himself up to the FBI.

At this writing, charges arrayed against him are burglary and interstate flight to avoid prosecution. The zoo wants him extradited to Missouri for trial. Tomarchin could face as much as five years in jail.

None of this bothers him so much, however, as the zoo's demand that he give the chimp back. Tomarchin has offered $3,000 for him—twice the original purchase price—only to be refused. Zoo officials regard Moke as stolen property, even though Tomarchin left behind $1,000 and a $2,000 IOU when he broke into the cage.

The idea that Moke is "property" shakes Tomarchin. "Anyone who has ever really loved an animal can understand how I feel," he says. "When you become really close to one, it's almost like love for a child.

Together again, Robert Tomarchin and Moke the chimp hug while awaiting custody ruling.

Amused bystanders stare as Moke and Tomarchin stroll down Miami street. Generally, Moke prefers to ride in car.

Their mutual hope: to live together on their own little island

Moke and I belong together. He needs me and I need him. I couldn't give him up after all we've been through."

Some of the things Moke and his master have been through, as Tomarchin tells them, have the ring of a cheap movie. There was the time, for instance, when the two lived 40 days on an uninhabited South Sea island, on a diet of fish, leaves, and coconut milk, because Moke had no re-entry papers for the U.S. When help came, Tomarchin refused to be rescued unless the rescuers took the chimp too. Later, when Moke was in international quarantine, Tomarchin stowed away on a steamer in an attempt to rescue him.

The Beginning of Love

Tomarchin grew up in a Philadelphia orphanage—"maybe," he says, "that's why I need Moke's love and affection. I never had any." He ran away at 16, worked in chemical labs and on animal farms and then knocked around for several years as a merchant seaman. For a while he smuggled pearls. He used the proceeds to speculate in Florida real estate.

Originally, he bought Moke for a friend in Tahiti. With Tomarchin, however, it was a case of love at first sight. "When I saw him sleeping in the animal farm with his diaper on and that cute expression—well, that was it," says Tomarchin. By the time he reached Tahiti three months later, he couldn't bear to give Moke up.

Because he had planned to leave Moke in Tahiti, however, he had no re-entry permit for him. For a year he ranged from Samoa to Fiji to New Zealand. In the end, it took a public uproar in New Zealand to cut the international red tape and send the pair back to Miami.

They settled down, like father and son, in a trailer. "We were happy then," Tomarchin says. He dressed his chimp in little-boy clothes (Moke wears a toddler size 2 or 3, and size 8 shoes), toilet-trained him, and worked on his vocabulary. He had begun teaching Moke to speak while they were castaways "to keep from going nuts." Today, Moke can say "Mama" and "No" and write the letters M and O.

They also performed on TV. Moke would skip rope, ride a bicycle, stand at attention, play baseball, and bait the umpire. "I turned down night-club offers," Tomarchin says. "I didn't want Moke to lose his rest and sleep. I took him to parties, though, and he was popular." In 1959, they were earning $700 a week.

"Then I got tired of the whole mess," Tomarchin says. Besides, other trainers told him Moke was reaching the unmanageable age — a full-grown chimp can weigh 160 pounds. Tomarchin decided Moke might be better off in a zoo. In a tearful scene, he surrendered Moke for $1,500.

"I felt like I had given away my own son," Tomarchin says. "Every time I would pass a kids' clothing store, my heart would just sink." He flew to Fiji in an attempt to forget, but even his beloved South Seas weren't the same. On the return flight, a plan began to take shape.

Tomarchin flew to St. Louis and rushed to the zoo. Moke recognized him immediately. He screamed and rattled the bars of his cage. That was all the incentive Tomarchin, who was crying behind his dark glasses, needed. He went out and bought a hammer, a chisel, a flashlight, and a carrying case for a dog. When darkness came, he crept back to the ape house, and slipped in. The other chimps shrieked and screamed as the flashlight stabbed into their cages. Finally, he located Moke's cage and went to work. After 20 minutes of pounding, he swung the door open.

South to Sanctuary

"He dived into my arms and kissed me over and over again," Tomarchin recalls. "I wrapped him tight in a blanket and kissed and hugged him back. I was happy at last. Moke and I were reunited."

There was still the matter of escape. First he hitch-hiked a ride to Illinois, and there he boarded a bus. For four days the pair traveled south. Moke stayed quietly in the ventilated carrier, reassured by Tomarchin's scratching through the screen. At night, Tomarchin opened the carrier and Moke slept at his feet.

Meanwhile, zoo officials had alerted police, the FBI, and newspapers. Tomarchin began to see newspaper articles on the chimp-napping, and he grew alarmed. When he reached Miami, his first step was to consult an attorney. The next day, he gave himself up. A few days later, he also surrendered Moke. At a court hearing, Moke was placed in his custody. The chimp was so delighted he tried to kiss the judge.

It is almost like the happy days again, except for legal clouds hanging over them. Moke and Tomarchin share a two-room apartment with a friend, and Tomarchin devotes all his time to Moke. Mornings they play catch outdoors. After Moke's nap, they take a ride in a borrowed car. As soon as Moke recovers from a cold, they plan to go to the beach. Moke loves to float around in an inner tube.

Tomarchin has given a good deal of thought to Moke's future—provided, of course, he wins permanent custody and the zoo's charges are dropped. He hopes to buy a piece of jungle property here, or perhaps a small island. Then Moke could go wild at his own pace. Tomarchin expects to get married eventually—"the woman would have to understand Moke."

"I'll fight in every way I can to keep Moke now," Tomarchin says. "I'm not mad at the zoo people—it was my fault, not theirs. But I want them to try to understand the deep and close feelings that Moke and I have for each other. Moke would pine away and die without me. He's entitled to happiness as much as any human being."

At dinner, Tomarchin and Moke sit side-by-side. Moke uses a fork and spoon, but must have meat cut up. His diet includes steaks, pork, chicken. He prefers meat well-done.

Tucking chimp in, Tomarchin pats Moke's arm. Eventually, Tomarchin hopes to buy a small island, let grown-up Moke have run of jungle.

Decorative fencing: Now you can convert ordinary chain link fencing into a decorative screen that provides complete privacy and wind protection for your pool, patio, or garden. A new idea: strips of brightly colored, plastic-coated aluminum that snap into place between the chain links and are anchored firmly by tie-in slats. Weatherproof, with colors said to last the life-of the fence, the strips also increase safety for children who can't climb the fence after the installation. For colors, details, write: Plastic Lume, Inc., Dept. PP, Sausalito, Calif.

Replate your chrome: Easily applied with a cloth after preliminary sandpapering, a new material is said to restore brightness to rusted, nicked, and dull bumpers, guards, grills, headlamps, and other metal trim. Says the maker: it metallically replates—rather than just polishes—an entire bumper in 10 minutes, also can be used to give a chromelike finish to any metal, wood, or plastic surface. A $3 kit contains enough material, plus sandpaper and cloth, for the average car. Robbins, Dept. PP, 443 Encinitas, San Diego 14, Calif.

CREAMED TUNA IN A RING

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

TUNA is a great favorite. For salads and sandwiches its popularity is unquestioned. But tuna is too versatile to be confined within these limits. Let it show you what it can do to lend flavor and glamor to main dishes like the one pictured above. At right is a new and novel recipe—creamed tuna in a corn bread ring—that's as easy to make as 1-2-3.

For a Sunday night supper that will rate applause, begin with hot, sharply seasoned tomato juice. Then bring on creamed tuna in the rosy-hued corn bread ring. With it have olives, pickles, and a tossed salad. And finish supper with an easy-to-serve dessert—packaged ice cream and cookies.

CORN BREAD RING

1 cup enriched corn meal	1 egg
1 cup sifted enriched flour	1 cup tomato juice
½ tsp. salt	¼ cup soft shortening
4 tsp. baking powder	1 cup grated sharp Cheddar cheese
½ cup diced green pepper

Heat oven to (425°). Mix and sift corn meal, flour, salt and baking powder. Add egg, tomato juice, and shortening. Beat with rotary beater until smooth, about 1 minute. Do not overbeat. Lightly stir in Cheddar cheese and green pepper. Spoon into greased five-cup ring mold. Bake 20 to 25 minutes.

CREAMED TUNA

¼ cup butter or margarine	2 cups milk
3 tbsp. flour	1 egg, beaten
1 tsp. salt	2 cans (6-7 oz. each) tuna

Melt butter; blend in flour and salt. Cook until bubbly. Add milk; cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Cook over very low heat about 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir 3 or 4 tablespoons of hot mixture into egg; add egg mixture to remaining hot mixture. Add tuna, cook 3 to 4 minutes longer.

TO SERVE: turn corn bread ring out on serving plate; fill center of ring with creamed tuna. Serves six.

Car equipped with Pirelli tires (left) makes neat turn on ice while a car with normal tires skids.

Will you be driving on these...

TIRES OF TOMORROW?

by LLOYD SHEARER

MILAN, ITALY.

IN A SHORT TIME, The Pirelli Company, Italy's largest producer of rubber articles, plans to introduce on the North American market an invention that it predicts will revolutionize the tire industry.

This is an automobile tire that consists of a carcass, or casing, and three separate bands that can be removed or changed without tools in a matter of minutes.

Four years ago, Pirelli applied for patents on this invention both in Italy and abroad. They were granted, and the company began road-testing in secret a series of replaceable-tread tires.

Last October, after a million miles of testing and proving, the company exhibited the tires at the Turin Auto Show. Competitive tire makers were immediately curious. One from London said: "Such tires are old stuff." Said another: "I don't think tires with replaceable treads will hold up. They generate too much heat friction."

Pirelli executives called these remarks "examples of wishful thinking."

They concede that the idea of a tire with a replaceable tread is not new. (The earliest patent for such a device was granted 50 years ago.) But the current Pirelli tire, they maintain, is based on a new approach.

Pirelli lists these advantages:

1) In all quality tires, the life of the casing is longer than the life of the tread. The Pirelli tire permits worn tread rings to be replaced on the original casing at a price approximately one-third the cost of a new tire.

2) Tread rings of different design can be fitted on the same casing, depending on seasonal and road conditions. It is thus possible to have interchangeable treads, eliminating the need for winter or snow tires.

3) Should the tire casing blow out or become damaged, the treads may be saved for use on another tire casing.

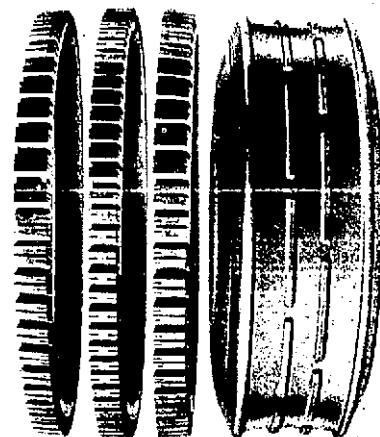

4) It is possible to fit spikes of tungsten carbide on winter tread rings. These spikes provide good road holding, also permit driving on ice-free roads without damage to the tire.

A Tight Fit

The new Pirelli tire consists of a casing and three separate tread bands. The diameter of the rings is smaller than that of the casing, so when the tire is inflated, inflation pressure secures the tread bands so firmly they cannot move.

Pirelli insists its new tire is longer-lasting than ordinary tires, holds the road better, never squeals on sharp corners taken with speed, and is undoubtedly "the tire of tomorrow."

In a year or two we'll know how accurate that prediction was.

New tire (above) consists of a casing and three treads. The slots in casing are for guiding on the treads (below), to prevent lateral movement.

CARL SANDBURG tells Parade readers...

What made

FLAT ROCK, N.C.

"AN OLD FRIEND once asked Abraham Lincoln, 'How does it feel to be the President of the United States?'"

"And Lincoln replied, 'You have heard about the man tarred and feathered and ridden out of town on a rail; a man in the crowd asked him how he liked it, and his reply was that if it wasn't for the honor of the thing, he would much rather walk.'"

Eighty-two-year-old, white-thatched Carl Sandburg leans back in his chair, closes his eyes, grips the arms with strong and expressive hands, and hesitates. As the nation's foremost Lincoln scholar, he has been asked by PARADE to discuss Lincoln's sense of humor, and he chooses his words carefully. Then he speaks again, the words deep and rolling:

"Abraham Lincoln was the first authentic humorist to occupy the White House, while no other President had as gaunt and solemn a face. These contrasts in character, the storm within him and the peace of a good Quaker heart, are what make him one of the most picturesque characters in all of history."

Sandburg pulls a quilt about his legs, reaches for a thermos of coffee, pours another cup, relaxes again. His words trail off and disappear in the high-ceilinged front room of his mountain retreat, Connemara, here 25 miles south of Asheville. He lives in a handsome white house at the top of a hill with a road that winds like a cat's tail to the highway below. Here the two-time Pulitzer Prize winner studies and reads and writes while the winter's gales rattle the tall windows.

Lincoln, whose 151st birthday anniversary will be celebrated this week, is shown in history books as a quiet, chisel-faced man, a man who is seldom portrayed with a smile. But, Sandburg points out, Lincoln was a man who loved humor and liked to be a part of it.

"He loved to go to plays, humorous plays, and minstrels. He loved to laugh."

Was Lincoln a Buffoon?

Lincoln's laughter and his use of a joke became so legendary that his political opponents tried to cash in on it and pictured the President as a laughing buffoon of a man.

Lincoln used humor to soothe his nerves in time of crisis and, most effectively, to get across a point.

There were those around him, like Secretary of War Edwin Stanton, who loathed Lincoln's humor, and others, like Secretary of State William Seward, who loved it. Seward would hold up cabinet sessions by standing toe-to-toe with the President and swapping stories.

Students of history often have wondered if Lincoln had a favorite story of his own. Sandburg thinks that he did. It, too, is a story that illustrates a point.

"If an accounting were made of the stories heard from Lincoln," he says, "more persons would say they heard this one. It is an odd little story about the state of Maine, which had prohibition in those days.

"It was against the law to sell alcoholic beverages without a physician's prescription.

"An Irishman comes into a drugstore, puts a dime on the counter, and shoves it toward the druggist as he says, 'A glass of lemonade, if you please, and could you put in a wee bit of the craythur [creature, devil] unbeknownst to me!"

Sandburg's laughter rumbles through the room. "Of course, there are those who will be unfamiliar with 'craythur' and the word 'unbeknownst.' Today the humorist would put it this way: 'Give me a glass of lemonade, if you please, and put in a drop of whisky, but don't tell me about it.'"

The Lincoln Punchline

And Sandburg roars again. "Whether the story is funny today, it makes a certain point; and Lincoln loved the word 'unbeknownst.' It is a record that in one public address he said, 'I am like the Irishman, for I have to do things unbeknownst to myself.'"

While this may have been Lincoln's personal favorite, his humor still would be considered crisp today. Sandburg recalls that a famous educator is said to have come to the White House in support of a fellow educator who was seeking a government post.

"No man," the educator explained to Lincoln, "has plunged deeper into the fountain of learning..."

"Nor come out drier," Lincoln quipped. So widespread did Lincoln's alleged story-telling become that several "authentic" Lincoln joke books appeared during his lifetime. The humor attributed to Lincoln in the joke books was foolish and flip, and Lincoln disclaimed many of these stories.

Typical was the story attributed to Lincoln of the man who married his second wife.

"I intend to enlarge my dairy," he told her one day. "You mean our dairy, dear," the wife said.

"No," he continued, "my dairy."

The wife grabbed a poker and began beating the husband about the head, saying, "Our dairy, our dairy."

Finally the man retreated beneath a bed. When he finally decided to venture forth, according to the story, he stuck his head slowly from beneath the bed. The wife pounced at him again. What did he want, she demanded.

"Our breeches, my dear."

And Lincoln was not above the common pun, Sandburg says. Once he met a little girl and lifted her into his arms and held her while talking. Then he gently set her down. "You can tell your mother," Lincoln said, "that you have rested in Abraham's bosom."

"He was," says Sandburg, "a funny man—and a great one."

—JULIAN SCHEER

They JUMP for JOY

VAN NUYS, CALIF.

AS THESE PHOTOS show, Californians are jumping. And since this is the state that started the U.S. hula hooping, all America may soon be heading skyward—from trampolines. Once seen mostly in gyms and circuses, the trampolines now are to be found in recreational centers across the country. Pitched at ground level for safety, the trampolines are stretched across pits. Families rent their own here for about 40 cents a half hour.

For children, the joys of jumping are well known. But what lures adults to trampolines? As one 40-year-old jumper explains: "The higher I jump, the younger I feel." ■

'These are my funniest'

...says HARRY MACE

"As one of the suburban tribe of cartoonists," says Harry, who lives in Redding Ridge, Conn., "I find most of my laughs in what goes on at home and next door. I swipe a lot from the neighbors." Recalling that in his youth he couldn't decide whether to become a first baseman, a jazz trumpeter, or a cartoonist, he adds: "I haven't played first base for years, but I still tout my trumpet at week-end jam sessions." In the drawing above, Harry sees himself in the middle of a hot chorus.

"Grow, you little devil . . . or I'll drown you!"

"Thank you . . . it was a sermon I won't soon forget, either."
